

ODDS AND ENDS.

If nobody's noticed you, you must be small;
 If nobody's slighted you, you must be tall;
 If nobody's bowed to you, you must be low;
 If nobody's kissed you, you're ugly we know;
 If nobody's envied you, you're a poor elf;
 If nobody's flattered you, you flatter yourself;
 If nobody's cheated you, you are a knave;
 If nobody's hated you, you are a slave,
 If nobody's called you a "fool" to your face,
 Somebody's wished for your back in its place,
 If nobody knows of your faults but "a friend,"
 Nobody'll miss them at the world's end.
 If nobody elings to your purse like a fawn,
 Nobody'll run like a hound when it's gone.
 If nobody's eaten your bread from your store,
 Nobody'll call you "a miserly bore."
 If nobody's slandered you—here is our pen—
 Sign yourself "Nobody" quick as you can.

—INFANTS SWALLOW MILK OF MAGNESIA with avidity, and it never fails to regulate their digestive organs and bowels.

—All Languages Spoken. — A French hotel-keeper posts this notice in his office: "English, German, Italian and Spanish spoken here." An Englishman arrives, and in fantastic French asks for an interpreter, only to be told there is none. "What! no interpreter? And you say on your sign that all the languages are spoken here?" "Yes, sir, by the travellers."

—"You're a smart fellow," sneered a lawyer to a witness, the other day, in a Brooklyn Court. "I'd return the compliment if I wasn't under oath," replied the witness.

—An old negro cook says: "Sass is powerful good in everything but children. dey needs some oder kind of dressin'."

—Dining lately at a restaurant in Piccadilly, an American cousin had the misfortune to be served with chicken broth of the most watery description. Calling the waiter he thus addressed him in the nasal twang of his mother country, "I guess, waiter, if you'd just take this broth down and get that chicken to wade through it once more, it might improve it."

—Such a preparation as the Children's Carmine Cordial has long been looked for, that is to say, one that could be administered with perfect safety of not endangering the child's health or constitution. —At the lower end of Woodward avenue and old apple woman offered her fruit to a sea captain who was sighing over the good times of 1864. She wanted three cents apiece for her apples. He gave her a pleasant look and said:

"Well, well. Why, you look as young as you did ten years ago. Same bright eyes and red cheeks—same white teeth."

Take an apple for two cents, Captain," she replied.

"I presume you are fifty years old," he continued, "but who'd know it? Lots of ladies at thirty look as old as you do."

"Take an apple for a cent, Captain," she answered smiling like a rose.

"Some rich old fellow will come along some day searching for a buxom wife," said the Captain, "and you won't have to peddle apples any more."

"Here, Captain, two for a cent, take two of the biggest?" she exclaimed, and then ran after him and dropped two more into his coat pocket.

—Those who bought stock in the Philadelphia Centennial show will get back only $1.75 on each share costing $10.

—A Detroit restaurant hangs out a sign of "free chops," and when the old loafers come around he shows them an ax and a wood pile.

—Minister— "Don't you know it's wicked to catch fish on the Sabbath?" Small boy (not having had a bite all the morning)— "Who's catching fish?"

—Tiny Martyrs to sour stomach and colic can be cured with Milk of Magnesia, of which they like the taste.

—A London firm advertises to sell, for seven shillings, all about your coat-of-arms, and how to blend the arms of a husband and a wife. Just as if they didn't know how.

—The Editor of a country paper says: "Wednesday's post brought us a letter addressed, 'Rev.,' another, 'The Hon.,' another, 'Col.,' and the last, 'Esq.,' On the way to dinner we accidentally stepped on a woman's train, and she addressed us thus: 'You brute.' Who among the lot is right?"

—Naturalists say that a single swallow will devour six thousand flies a day.—No wonder they are called swallows.

—If your child is restless or troublesome, crying continually, and you find it impossible to quiet him, do not condemn the little being as cross; on the contrary, it is using the only means it has of telling you that it is suffering. Relieve it of its anguish by a simple dose of the Children's Carmine Cordial and in a few moments it will be as happy and as comfortable as you please.

—Among the replies to an advertisement of a music committee for "a candidate as organist, music teacher," &c., was the following: "Gentlemen—I notice your advertisement for an organist and music teacher, either lady or gentleman. Having been both for several years, I offer you my services."

—Cleveland young women write comments on the margins of the library novels they read. One emotional creature writes, "The pangs of love are grate, I know how it is myself."

—GIVE UP DOSING with powerful drugs for dyspepsia and try that bland, but searching specific, MILK OF MAGNESIA.

—If the evening is warm, shout "Whoof!" as you sit down, and inform the company generally that you do not wear flannels. (Unless you do; then own up like a man; don't lie about it.)

—If a young lady takes her place at the piano to sing, it is your duty as a gentleman to accompany her with a very bass "oom-pah, oom-pah, bum, bum, bum," especially if you have a voice like a crow and cannot sing a note. When the lady is through you should whistle the refrain for your neighbor, who may not have heard the song.

—It lends an air of easy elegance to a gentleman to chew his toothpick all the time. If you have forgotten your own borrow some one's else.

—Take out your tobacco pouch (you should never attend a party without it) and make as though you would take a tremendously large chew. This is irresistibly funny and never fails to make the lady who cannot chew, very envious.

—To appreciate anything you must first know its good qualities, therefore try Luby's Parisian Hair Renewer if you wish to restore gray hair to its natural color.
