to have had the idea that because a store front looks good that the business must be successful. We do not see the failures because where one fails there are others waiting to take their chances. The city business man who buys his stock with borrowed money which he pays back when he turns the stock over has more worry than the farmer with a mortgage. So we must conclude that, although returns come quicker in other lines of business and the success or failure of the venture is determined sooner than where a farm business is being started; still to the man who is really a farmer the lack of a large amount of capital is no real objection to him following farming as an occupation providing he is willing to profit by the use of capital that he can borrow. So it is obvious that from the class who say that they would farm if they had plenty of money we can expect no real farmers. They are the kind who will never rise high in any occupation.

A good hurdler was never produced without training over many hurdles. The height to which a hurdler may jump is limited only by his ability—and the degree in which he develops it, so a good farmer cannot be made by having a farm handed to him equipped with all the requisites necessary to carry on the business unless he has had considerable previous experience. In farming as in every line of industry the limit of success possible of attainment is determined by the limit of a man's personal ability. Among the maze of uncertainties, apparent to one who seeks to decide in what channel his energies will be directed, one fact must always stand out clear. "Nothing of value can be had for nothing."

Veterinary.

Colt Uneasy at Nights.

Three-year-old colt has good appetite and is in very good condition. At nights he continuously kicks, tries to rub his rectum, scratches his tail, paws and looks towards his flanks. There are no signs of worms. Should I call my veterinarian?

L. F. B.

Ans.—He suffers from some intestinal irritation. It would be well to have him examined by your veterinarian, as you suggest. If you do not do this, mix 3 oz. each of powdered sulphate of iron, sulphate of copper and tartar emetic, make into 24 powders and give a powder every night and morning. After the last has been taken give a purgative of 8 drams aloes and 2 drams ginger and feed nothing but a little bran until purgation commences.

Miscellaneous.Gate Across Lane

I have bought a property in town, and am now in possession. There is a rear entrance, or right of way, which does not go all the way between two streets, but is available for the use of about half a dozen houses.

The entrance of alley is from the street which is on the north side of said block. The occupant and owner of the south half of house indicated has put a gate across the lane at the south side of this property. There is no occasion for having a gate there; but the opinion is held that the party may put a gate there, but cannot prevent those to the south from passing through the gate and using the right of way. This opinion is held, owing to the fact that the right of way is not indicated on the town map and is not for the use of anyone, except those whose property back up to the alley. The point I would like your opinion on in this: The gate not being necessary for any purpose whatever, can people to the south of that gate be legally required to close it every time a person or team passes through it?

The writer has considerable teaming to do through that gate this summer, handling building material, and if not obliged to close this gate as well as open it, will not take the time to do so at every load.

A. S.

Ans.—No.

Are you half an hour from town—or only 15 minutes?

TARVIA roads move farms and suburban homes half-way to town.

Of course, the distance remains the same, but the running time (or driving time, in the case of horse-drawn vehicles) is cut just about in half when communities build Tarvia roads.

The pictures tell the story. The automobile shown on the left is plowing over (or, more correctly, through) a "30-minute road" to town, wearing out tires, wasting gasoline, racking the car and its engine, carrying only half a load—and making the trip take twice as long as it ought to take.

The right hand picture shows a "15-minute road." It is just as long as the other, but Tarvia has made it a firm, smooth, easy-traction road, the same

Winter and Summer, Spring and Fall.

Light cars can roll heavy loads over it with ease and safety. In fact, experience has proved that on a road like this, one automobile (or one horse) can do the work of two on a road like the one shown on the left.

Tarvia roads are mudless, rutless, dustless, water-proof, frost-proof and automobile-proof.

For this reason many people imagine that they must be expensive. But Tarvia roads are not expensive; in fact, they are very low in cost.

The initial cost of a Tarvia road is more than that of ordinary water-bound macadam, but the great saving in maintenance far more than offsets the difference in first cost.

In the face of these facts, can you and your neighbors afford to keep on using a "30-minute" road another season?
