

WILL FILL NO CABINET VACANCIES FOR SOME WEEKS

Premier Will Return to Ottawa Tomorrow But a Departmental Business Only

OTTAWA, Ont., July 28.—On Wednesday next Sir Wilfrid Laurier will return to the city from Arthursville, but it is not with a view of discussing cabinet changes with his colleagues or arranging for filling vacancies in the senate. There has been no summons, as stated, sent out by the premier to the ministers to return to Ottawa to attend an important meeting of the cabinet this week. On the contrary, the only minister that is expected here is Hon. Rodolphe Lemieux, postmaster general, who has business with the first minister. Sir Wilfrid returns to take up certain departmental matters which were well under way before he left. In regard to the appointment of cabinet ministers, it will be some time until the return of Lord Grey, somewhat towards the middle or end of August.

SYRIAN LAD BITTEN BY A TARANTULA

ST. CATHARINES, July 28.—While helping to carry bunches of bananas from a wagon into an Italian fruit store Saturday a Syrian lad was bit on the hand by a tarantula, which lay concealed in the fruit. Immediately the boy became unconscious, and lies in a state at present. Several doctors are working over him, apparently not being able to do much. The boy will probably be taken to Buffalo to be treated.

PRODUCES ONE CARLOAD OF COPPER PER DAY

GRAND FORKS, B. C., July 28.—It has been ascertained that seven furnaces of the Granby smelter are now producing one carload of copper per day, which is shipped to New York markets. Each carload contains an average of three hundred bars, weighing about one hundred and forty pounds, making seventy-two thousand pounds of copper to a car. Copper is sold at 28 cents per pound, making a gross total of $25,440 per month.

YOUNG BRIDE DIES SUDDENLY IN MONTANA

ROTHESAY, N. B., July 28.—The sad news was received Saturday of the death of Mrs. Thomas Kelsey in Montana. She was a bride of only a few months and the news of her death came as a great shock to her many friends here, where she was known as Miss Kate Kirkpatrick. She was the daughter of the late Andrew Kirkpatrick and for some years has resided with relatives in the States. She has one brother, Thomas, here, and many near relatives, who with her friends will keenly regret the death of one who once contributed greatly to the life and pleasure of the place.

IMMIGRANTS ARE TOO FREE WITH REVOLVERS

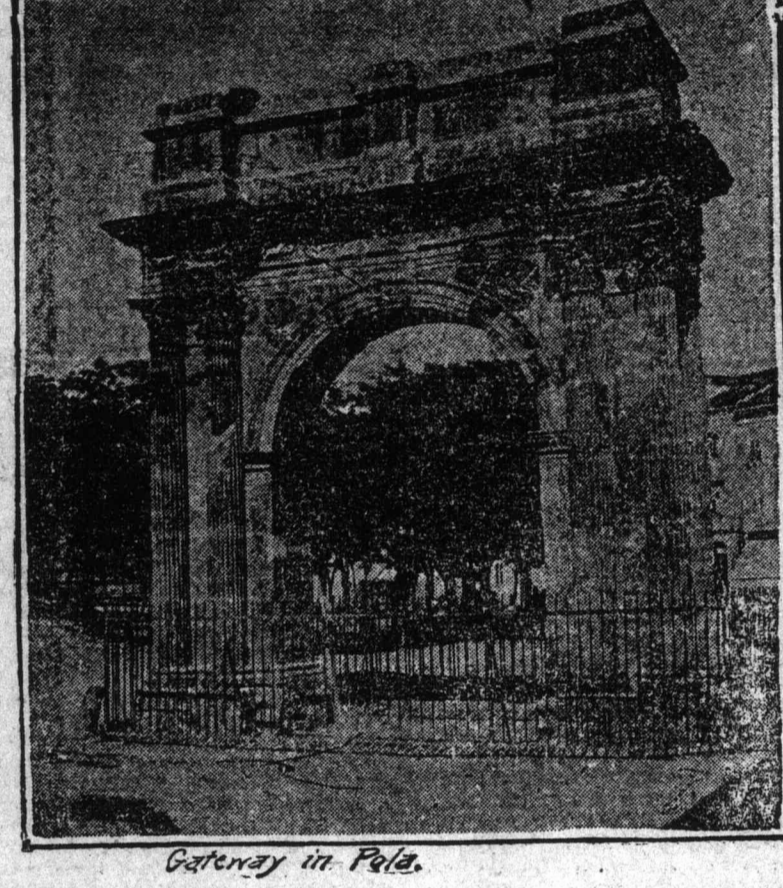

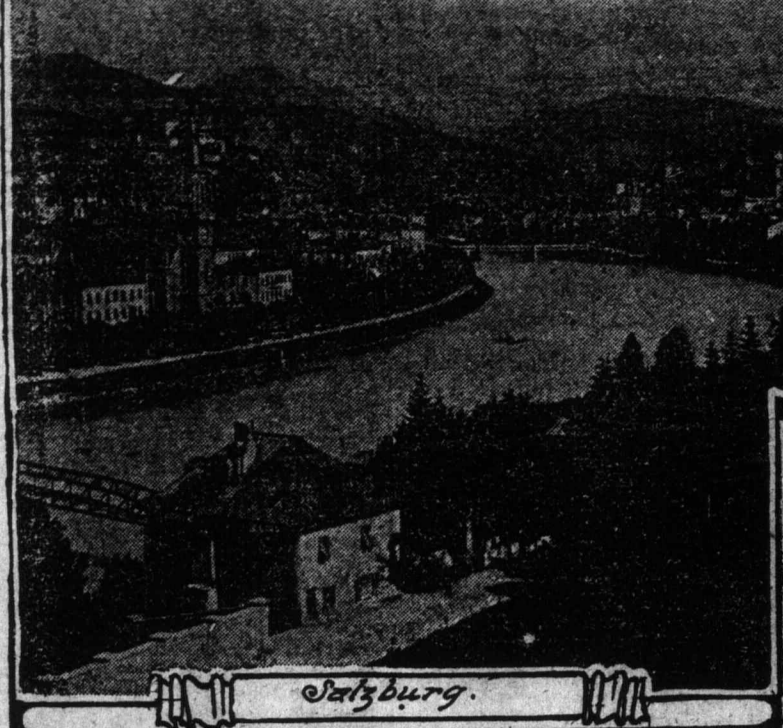

MONTREAL, July 28.—The use of a revolver by recent immigrants has become a curse. A dozen and a half cases of shootings have come up in last month and yesterday there were two cases fortunately without fatality. One was a Greek peanut vendor fired three shots at some boys who got away with a five cent bag of peanuts. A German refused orders at a boarding house, tried at the landlady through the window. The police received special instructions this morning in regard to concealed weapons and a determined attempt will be made to make immigrants keep the peace.

ARRESTED ON CHARGE OF MURDERING FARMER

TORONTO, July 28.—John McFarland of Thessalon was arrested today on a charge of murdering William Dixon, a farmer of Patton township, near Thessalon. The men were together Saturday and were alleged to have quarrelled over the mine. Ten minutes later the report of a rifle was heard and Dixon was found with the top of his head blown off. McFarland denies all knowledge of the shooting and the case will be investigated at Thessalon.

A SPLENDID TRIP FOR TOURISTS.

VIENNA, July 28.—A large part of the new Alpine railway system projected by the Austrian government in 1901, has just been completed. Part of the system is still under construction, but the greater portion is now fully completed, and as a consequence a new and very beautiful mountain district has become accessible to the tourist. The through journey from London to Trieste is also materially shortened, so that the little-known Adriatic is brought very much nearer to London. The new line runs through a succession of picturesque valleys and ravines in southern Austria which, until a few months ago, could only be reached by those who were able to devote a great deal of time and energy to the task. The best way for the American tourist to reach these new grounds is to set out for Innsbruck via the Arlberg tunnel. The capital of Tyrol is reached in twenty-eight hours from London, and after devoting a day or so to the marvellous bronzes of "Mastellan" tomb and the mountain villages on the surrounding heights, the traveller can proceed southward through the most impressive mountain district of Tyrol to Franzensfeste, and Villach, where the Alpine railway begins. Warmbad-Villach is a busy station overlooking the town and river and surrounding summer resorts; the springs were famous even in Roman times.

From Villach the new lines pass through Veleds on the edge of a miniature Lake of Como, with a wishing bell pretty situated on an islet in the center. The town of Trieste is reached by a light sweeping curve to the blue Adriatic, where Trieste lies spread out like a map beneath one's feet. The great Austrian port is being busily reconstructed, and soon it will possess one of the most efficient harbors on the Mediterranean. The new terminal station is close to the palatial quay-side, from which steamers of the Austrian Lloyd are quickly despatched to the Adriatic coast. The whole of this coast is one long panorama of wooded islets, bare limestone hills seemingly without an inhabitant, and smooth inlets on which lie ancient towns thronged with strange figures in rich Dalmatian garb. Records of old Rome are scattered in astonishing profusion. Inscriptions to emperors serve as window ledges and stepping stones. After Rome came Venice, and the evidence of her rule are even more insistent. The townships, still speaking the Italian tongue in unbroken descent from classic times, look down from sculptured balconies on to crowds of crimson-clad Slavonic peasants. At Cattaro one is at the very gates of the Near East.

THE RETURN JOURNEY. The return journey may be varied by a stay at Abbazia and so through the famous Semmering Pass to Vienna. From the capital one can proceed westward and homeward to Salzburg, with its wonderfully picturesque castle, to Innsbruck, the original point of departure. With the exception of the Semmering portion, the whole of this itinerary is served by the Austrian state railways, which are very efficiently controlled from the headquarters of the Ministerium in Vienna. It is not without a faint hope that I might catch the suburban train which I was to make the catch of the season. However, while I was anxiously watching my brother play a grille my reel ran out at the levelled kind of four feet. There is no drag or clutch on a Nottingham reel, and I at once pressed my thumb on the line. It was then I got this "See!" And a white scar down my side in a nice gratifying place stone dead. Curious, wasn't it? Jack said I frightened him to death by shouting. But a nice old Norwegian farmer, who weighed over two hundred pounds, grappled at the tail of my bait had caught him by the head and that the points had at last reached his brain. "He was a monster," he said, "and he weighed forty-three pounds. They told us no one had ever caught such a fine one in those parts. Jack's biggest fish was thirty-five pounds, and he got him in the Tay last year." Scotland the next year after. He has been dying to beat my salmon ever since. "I shall never forget my first salmon," said his companion, a bright little slinky woman, "it was on the Rhine, not very far from Basel, and I was one of a party at a perfectly lovely old place there, close to the river. One day all the men just got off fishing and I took up a handsome little rod I found suspended on hooks on the railing of a footbridge over a tiny brook and fished a bit with a cast and a fly got one or two short rises and worked down to a little pool where my stream joined the river. The banks were high and I was dang' before cast about a foot over my head. A flash of lightning a great flash jumped for it and got it. In a second he was off with the line, and as the reel was very stiff, because I was holding down the drag without knowing it, my rod bent dreadfully. I shouldn't wonder but I was screaming. For I didn't a bit know what to do. Imagine my surprise, for I imagined myself quite alone, when a ruff voice said, 'If ze lady will me bermet' and a man's hands took the rod right away from me. "Of course the drag was released and the fish take out a whole lot of line. Then it sulked and the man reeled in about perfectly cool, and mumbled, 'I thought you good lady show how fish to quisky cast,' and gave a vicious jerk! Just fancy a real wicked jerk! "Of course the salmon was in the net, and he was as fat as a pig. He snapped it at the spindles, smashed about top joints and went away. "The big German stood there with the broken rod outstretched, and with an open positive with his mouth wide open. Then he held the poor ruined rod on the ground and slowly stamped on it, grinding his teeth like nothing I ever heard before. I simply sat down and cried like a baby because I did not know like a baby because I did not know what I thought of him."

The night was dark and practically the last seen of Galley was when he was standing on the rail of the boat with an arm around the post. He was supposed to be sick and no particular notice was taken of his actions. The next thing heard was a splash and the young lady who was with Galley cried out that he had fallen.

MOYER RELEASED ON $75,000 BAIL

Pettibone Held However for Speedy Trial. Latter's Wife Breaks Down When Order for Husband's Release is Given—Comments on Jury.

BOISE, Idaho, July 28.—Charles H. Moyer, president of the Western Federation of Miners, and co-defendant yesterday of the murder of former Governor Steunenberg, was ordered released on bail in $75,000 today by Judge Wood, who presided at the Haywood trial. The attorneys for the defendant expected to have the bond ready for filing tonight, but the arrangements had not been wholly completed at a late hour, and Moyer resigned himself to another night in jail. He will probably be released tomorrow. No application for bail has been made in the case of George A. Pettibone, the third of the alleged conspirators, but a motion was made for a speedy trial, and his case is ordered set down for Tuesday, October 12. It is generally claimed that the state has more incriminating evidence against Pettibone than any of the others, while it has been generally conceded that the case against Moyer is the weakest of the three. The defense in the Haywood case admitted that there were a number of things for Pettibone to explain as to his association with Harry Orchard and the sending of money to him. Haywood today continued to receive any congratulatory telegrams from all sections of the country. Aside from the personal contributions of the senders, the messages have nearly all expressed the sentiment that labor has triumphed over the oppressive measures of capital. Haywood spent the day at the cottage occupied by his family and received many callers. Moyer and Pettibone were brought into court at 2 o'clock. The latter's wife was present and broke down and cried when the order was made releasing Moyer and holding her husband. The formal application for Moyer's release and no word of objection was offered by Senator Borah to fixing the amount. Senator Borah named $25,000. "This is reasonable and it suits us," said Mr. Darrow. Judge Wood said he would personally approve the bond and would make it continuing so that Moyer could remain at his home in Colorado until wanted. Bond for Moyer is to be given in the name of Peter Broetz, of Butte, Mont., who has been associated with the defense. The Butte local of the Western Federation of Miners is the richest in the organization and Mr. Breen said, carries a deposit of from $100,000 to $140,000 constantly in the bank. Arrangements were made by wire today by Mr. Breen to have the Butte union make $25,000 subject to draft by the First National Bank of Boise. Some officer of the Boise bank will sign the bill bond as surety. A telegram to Mr. Breen tonight said the arrangements at Butte had been completed. Discussion of the verdict in the Haywood case was widespread today, and verdict came as it did. The order and goodwill are to reign. "There was bound to be a great disappointment, whatever the verdict may have been. But the jury which tried the case was one whose honesty, integrity, ability and good citizenship no one doubted." The jurors in the case continue publicly to discuss the part they played in the snit and verdict. Samuel D. Gilchrist, the last man to vote for acquittal, said: "There has been published one statement that I want to correct. One of the jurors is quoted as saying that the jury had to spend a long, disagreeable and tiresome night in order to convince two jurors that the defendant was not guilty. I want to say that they never did convince us. I believed that he was guilty, and I still think he is guilty, and I want the world to know it. I simply acquiesced in the verdict of acquittal because I felt that I could not do otherwise after I found that the other eleven jurors voting acquit, but I was convinced that I was right. Kindly make the correction for me." A. P. Burns, juror No. 11, said: "I was firmly convinced when we left the court room that the first ballot would show a vote for conviction. I still retain the belief that Haywood was guilty and only changed my vote because it struck me that if the verdict presented left eight men unconvinced of the guilt of the defendant it would be impossible to get men in another trial so it would be better to settle the question by acquiescing in their direction."

YOUNG BOY CAUGHT ON BOARD VESSEL

Taken Off While Schooner Was in Canso Straits. Rain Does Much Damage to Potato Crops in the North—News of Campbellton and Vicinity.

CAMPBELLTON, July 28.—William Duncan, the 14-year-old son of Geo. A. Duncan of the I. C. R. shops, who disappeared from Campbellton a few weeks ago, was captured on board the schooner Empress. The vessel was boarded by John Grant, I. C. R. policeman at Mulgrave, while passing through the Straits of Canso. He immediately sent word to the boy's father, who took the first train for Mulgrave and brought him back. The four Protestant churches of the town united this year in a Sunday school picnic to New Mills. Nine cars were loaded, mostly with the boys and girls of the Sunday schools. Among the attractions were a series of sports and a baseball game played between a team largely made up from the Union Brotherhood of the Baptist church and a picked team from the other churches. The score was 18 to 11 in favor of the Brotherhood. Wm. Sprull, proprietor of the Royal Hotel, took a small party of Americans out fishing, and in the two days' outing killed over twenty salmon on the Restigouche waters. The season for salmon fishing, however, has not been successful. Most of the American and Montreal fishermen have returned to their homes. Edward Price, Jr., is following in the footsteps of his father, the popular and well known driver on the I. C. R., who has more than a local reputation as a fisherman. Last week he hooked a twelve pound salmon at Flatland and safely landed him. The rain which has been falling almost continuously for five weeks has done considerable damage, especially to the potato crop. Some of the farms on the lower ground are almost submerged in water. There is a heavy freshet on the Matapedia and Restigouche rivers. Yesterday there was a steady downpour of rain all day and tonight the wind is still blowing from the east, although there are some signs of clearing. On Wednesday, July 24th, at the residence of John Thompson, Glenora, Martha, his youngest daughter, was united in marriage to James Mann of Mann Settlement, P. Q. Rev. R. J. Coleman, Episcopal cleric at Campbellton, tied the nuptial knot. About supper was served. The following night another large party gathered at the residence of the groom at Mann Settlement and a very enjoyable evening was spent. The churches of the town united in a mass meeting in the Presbyterian church on Wednesday evening. Rev. Dr. Campbell of St. John, secretary of the Canadian Bible Society, delivered a most eloquent address on Canada.

CAUGHT A BIG SALMON BY CHANCE

Woman's Experience With a Light Trout Rod. A German Meeting With a Monster and the Obliging Stranger Who Tried to Help and Broke the Rod.

GASPE BASIN, Canada, July 28.—The difficult feat of catching a twenty-seven pound salmon on a woman's ten ounce wire wound cane rod was performed here a few days ago. An angler on one of the upper reaches of the Grand River had allowed his wife to kill a salmon on his heavy rod. The fish was strong and will and had to be carried with a long line, as his first rush carried him down the rapids into a second pool seventy feet further on. The man's heart was on the jump all the time the fight lasted, and it was a relief to him when the fish was gaffed to take over his tackle, doubly precious in that remote place. His wife appeared to be quite contented with that exciting experience with the sea trout in a little still water hole not far from the next salmon pool. She was sternly enjoined not to allow her husband to make their way into and disturb the pool. It was not easy with her light apparatus, but she did contrive to bring to land three or four one or two pounders in good style. Then a fierce run warned her that she had a bigger fish, and she was slightly worried as to whether she could prevent its splashing into the forbidden water. However, she put on all the strain she dared, whereupon the water bubbled and heaved, and out leaped a huge, glittering creature, which fell back with a resounding crash. "Saumon! Saumon!" cried the guide. "Nonsense!" shouted the man from his pool, "there could be no salmon in that dark water. It's a big chub or a white trout. Keep out of this pool." The quick witted guide sprang into the water between the still hole and the sparkling salmon resort to drive the fish up stream, and standing there waist deep waited a chance to use his little net. The woman's reel held the usual 100 feet of light silk line, and instructed by the guide she kept up as steady a strain as the light rod would allow. For some time the fish dashed to and fro in a space about thirty feet between his legs he managed to grasp it with his hands and hands. The useless little net was discarded, and with one hand under the gills, the other above the tail, he dragged the struggling creature to the shore. The trout stood the strain well, excepting at the joints two brass ferrules being split and badly started.

CHATHAM, N. B., July 30.—Magistrate Connors has sent Herbert Mayo up to stand trial for stealing $146 from the schooner Whitebird. Cripps who was implicated in the case was allowed to go. Joseph Whalen was fined ten dollars and costs for entering Geo. Sewell's house.
