Famous Men In Days of View

Premier Salandra of Italy attained to this office about a year ago, succeeding Giolitti, who had ruled Italy for upwards of fifteen years. Salandra was formerly a newspaper man and is a forceful writer and an effective speaker. The present Italian Premier is the first Italian to come from the south of the kingdom, having been born at Troja, the hottest town in Southern Italy. He is regarded as the ablest man in Italy, being an excellent lawyer, an able writer and a student of finance.

Teturned to Italy in 1859 and on this occasion was successful and freed Italy from the yoke of the Austrians and saw the country united under an Italian king.

Lord Suffield, who has just been appointed commander of the Yeoman of the Guard, is known in Canada as he was A.D.C. to the late Marquis of Lorne when the latter acted as Governor-General of Canada. Suffield also served on the staff of three Viceroys of India, was attached to the household of Queen Victoria, and also went through the Boer War with the Scotch Guards, retiring with the rank of Colonel. As Commander of the Yeoman of the Guard he receives a salary of six thousand dollars a year and a number of perquisites. He succeeds the Earl of Craven.

Lieutanent-Colonel W. J. Stewart has been transferred from the Divisional Staff to the Permanent Staff. Ever since the war broke out, Lieut.-Col. Stewart has been looking after the transportation of Canadian troops and his work was done so effictively that he won promotion and now has been transferred to the permanent ranks. He has been connected with the Canadian Militia for the past 39 years, serving in turn with the infantry, the artillery, the army service corps, and then on the Divisional Staff. He is regarded as one of the most efficient officers in the country.

Mr. White was also a promnent Free Mason.

Mr Alexandre Millerand, the French ling the situation in an admirable manner. Millerand is a lawyer by profession, and was known to hold strong socialistic sentiments, but once in power he became a safe and moderate statesman, and developed remarkable organizing ability. He has represented the same constituency in Paris for 25 years, a somewhat remarkable record for a country where frequent change is the order of the day. The French Minister of War has been called "the political father of military aviation." He has made a special study of aviation and became convinced that an air fleet was a necessary arm of the service, and consequently built up the very efficient fleet of aeroplanes that in 1900, the Emperor Francis Joseph Askin street church, Sunday morning of Austria bestowed upon Millerand in a sermon which included an outthe title of Baron, but as he never used the title during times of peace bitions for the congregation during the is not likely to use it hereafter.

Gluseppi Garibald, the great Itaspirit, but it failed and Garibaldi fled the country with a price on his head He finally escaped to Brazil where he became an adventurer and took part in many wars waged by that country with her neighbors. Here he gathered around him a band of Italians which formed the nucleus of the army which afterwards liberated Italy. In 1848 he returned to Italy with his soldiers and cast in his lot with the Italian party who were seeking to free the country from the rule of Austria. That effect failed and
