post has been there about 20 years. Sunday was the warmest day in re-cord in three years, the thermometer regristering 96 degrees. Yesterday, however, was still warmer the mer-cury going up to 97.5 degrees. W. W. Turner reports that at two

HOT ENOUGH?

Something About the Thermometre Records in the Maple City—This Scorching Spell.

"Is it hot enough for you?"
This, the question that is on everyone's lips these days, and strange to say, it seems a very irritating question to judge from the unprintable remarks which follow the question. People go about fanning themselves, dogs and horses go around with their tongues hanging out, and everyone is getting a taste of what it is fike down in sunny Africa. The cool drink places are doing an immense business, and the ice-man's job is looked upon with envy.

W. W. Turner, who keeps accurate tab on the fluctuations of the mercury, gives the following records for

W. W. Turner, who keeps accurate tab on the fluctuations of the mercury, gives the following records for the past four days:—

Friday—highest 89, lowest 68.
Saturday—highest 96, lowest 66.
Monday—highest 96, lowest 66.
Monday—highest 97.5, lowest 68.
To-day the mercury woke up at sunrise and got busy again. Up, up, up it climbed, until by noon it was 93 in the shade. Mr. Turner's records show that this beats the heat record for the past three years. About three years ago the mercury kept about 93 above for two days. This hot spell, however, bids fair to exceed all records for some time back, as its duration has been so long, and the chances are that it will not let up soon.

It is hard to understand why the thermometer records should not be much higher, but this is accounted for by reason of the great humidity in the air, and also by the chills.

for by reason of the great humidity spring and fore part of this summer, which makes humanity feel the heat

However, we are not the only suf-ferers. The heat extends over near-ly all the eastern part of the conti-ment. Chicago, St. Louis, and near-ly all eastern American cities have ly all eastern American cities have been sizzling and sozzling for some days; and great suffering has ensued. "If you want to get cool," remarked a citizen this morning, "just go round to a corner store where a lot of old residents sit around and tell how they remember 'way back in '61, etc., etc. You will think this hot wave a cinch. My advice for hot weather is, always side-step a thermometer and think about the hard winter we have just had, also how you are going to pay your coal bill this coming winter."

BOY VISITOR AT CITY HOTEL

Little Lad Strolled into Hotel Merrilland made himself Quite at Home.

Had Come in from Harwich and got Lost in the Maple City.

There was a bright little guest at the Merrill House last evening whose arrival was announced before Wand, and whose name does not appear on the register. His arrival was announced because no one knew he was coming—himself in particular—and if his name had appeared on the register some one else would have had fo write it, for the guest was only three years ofd and, in fact, could not make anyone understand what his name really was.

He toddled into the waiting room of the hotel yesterday morning at 11 o'clock. He looked around in a curious and interested manner and immediately climbed up on one of the Merrill House last evening whose curious and interested manner and immediately climbed up on one of the big chairs and appeared perfectly at home. Mr. Merrill noticed the boy and walking over asked his name. The Title fellow could not speak yery d'stinctly but Mr. Merrill understood his name as Frankie Rankin. It was afterwards found out that his name was Frankie Martin.

None of his relatives seemed to be around and Mr. Merrill at once concluded that the little fellow had strayed from home. He took him up stairs and the little fellow was given a bath, allowed to play around and stairs and the little fellow was given a bath, allowed to play around and enjoy "mself with Mr. Merrill's little boy of about the same age and he was then not to bed.

This morning he woke up bright and early, and was having his breakfast when Alex. Martin, of Harwich, arrived at the hotel and anxiously enquired for his little son, and found him at the table enjoying his breakfast and having a happy time. Mr. Martin was much relieved when he found his son, and could not find words to express his gratitude to Mr. Merrill. Merrill.

words to express his gratitude to Mr. Merriil.

It appears that Miss Martin came into town yesterday morning and the little fellow unnoticed climbed into the back of the buggy box and rode into town, too. When Miss Martin arrived in town she tied up her horse and still did not notice the little fellow in the back of the buggy. She started out to do some shopping, and it was then that little Frankie took it into his head to walk around and see the sights, and soon wandered into the Merrill House, where he was well cared for until his father arrived and took him home again.

His parents at first thought that he had wandered into the fields and been overcome by the heat. All of the neighbors were out scouring the country for the lost child, until he was found at the Merrill.
