"The Delta Alpha" Class of the S. S. invited the Tuxis Boys class to a corn Boil at Miss Dorothy McKinnin's on Saturday evening. After the "Feed" a social hour was spent with music.

Mrs. Strong, of Canning, was the guest of her friend, Miss Rand, over Sunday.

The annual school exhibition, under the auspices of the Institute, for the five sections was held on Friday last. On account of the weather the attendance was not so large as other years but the exhibits, especially of school work, fancy work and domestic science exceeded those of other years. It seems a pity that the prizes for essay work were not competed for outside of this section. Lucy Cogswell was awarded C. A. Campbell prize on History of Port Williams, Town Plot; Greenwich, also theme, "How prohibition would benefit Canada," Lily of Valley Division prize; Edith Murphy won Councilor Bishop's prize on "The finest police force in the world"; Dorothy McKinnin won P. D. Bishop's prize on "Interesting Facts concerning the Honey Bee" also Miss Gould prize on "Present Day Socialism"; Sheryl Balcom won Miss Jackson's prize on "Care of our N. S. Forests"; Mason Cogswell won Rev. O. N. Chipman's prize for speech on "Canada a Wonderland."

GREENWICH

Miss Marion Bishop returned home last Tuesday from a visit of a few days in Woodville. She was accompanied home by her friend, Miss Grace Lacey, of Woodville, who was her guest a short time last week.

Mrs. Ernest Johnson recently returned home from a visit at Middleton, with Mr. and Mrs. F. Johnson.

Mr. Fred Johnson is at Aylesford, where he has accepted a good position for a time.

A special school meeting at our hall last Tuesday evening at which special business was discussed and "cussed", but we hope all with good success.

Miss Rena Cox, has resumed her studies in Art again this year, at Acadia Seminary, Wolfville, as a day pupil. Rena is making good success and her work that was exhibited at the school exhibition last Friday, was greatly admired.

Miss Jennie Eisnor, of Canning, who was an honour Business pupil at Acadia Seminary, last year, is now a guest for an indefinite time at the home of her sister, Mrs. Edward Hennigar, here.

Miss Lillian Bishop, entertained over twenty of the young people at her home last Wednesday evening. A very pleasant evening was enjoyed with games and music.

Mr. and Mrs. B. L. Cox, entertained a small party of young people on Thursday evening, dancing was the chief amusement of the evening. These two parties and one or two small tea-parties last week, were given in honour of two of our young ladies who was leaving the place for some time.

The combined annual school exhibition, was held last Friday at Port Williams, was of deep interest to our pupils and their parents. Our large school of over 50 made a good addition to the line formed for the March which took place in the early part of the afternoon, teachers accompanying.

There was also a good attendance of parents and friends from here. Our school carried off a good many of the general prizes also of the special prizes. This yearly exhibition is a wonderful help and incentive to the children, in all its various lines and they should be encouraged, by both their teachers and parents, we hoped to see a complete list published.

Miss Ester Pearson left on Saturday morning, for Hartford, Connecticut, where she enters the Hospital there to train for a nurse. Her friends wish her the best of success.

Captain Avar Forsythe, of New York who came to Mount Denson, Hants Co., last week with the body of his late wife for burial, is now visiting at the home of his brother, Mr. A. K. Forsythe.

Boy, Oh, Boy!

The woman was very condescending. "My husband is very jealous," she remarked to her partner as they foxtrotted around the ballroom. "So I dance only with exceedingly plain people," "It's a fine system," he said; "I have followed it for years."

FARM NOTES

This is the season of fires caused by defective flues and disconnected pipes. When visiting an exhibition or fair did you ever hear the remark: "I have better than that at home". If the fair could only bring out and assemble all those good things "at home" what wonder.

The average yield of potatoes per acre in the United States varies from about 60 bushels in Texas to more than 200 bushels in Maine, according to the Department of Agriculture. The average for the entire country for the past ten years is 98 bushels per acre.

Did you ever try a stiff brush on the cows when the hair is beginning to shed? It makes the cows comfortable and they like it. It helps in producing cleaner milk.

If a cow has a dusty hide full of loosening hair you can scarcely keep it all out the pail. An hour will do a lot of cleaning on a few cows.

When Dr. Tolmie was in Edmonton he told of a great live stock show at which he was present in England. There was an attendance of between thirty and forty thousand people, many of them from long distances, and all paid their admission simply to see the exhibits. There were no amusements to draw them, and not even a band to enliven the proceedings.

It was a striking demonstration to him of how keen was the interest in the old land in this branch of its industry.

The world's longest potato field, with rows ten miles long, is believed to be in Union County, Oregon. The owner of the elongated patch leased the right of way from the Oregon-Washington railway and plants his crop, four rows on each side of the track. It requires a farmer one whole day to make a round trip of cultivating two rows, or 20 miles of plowing. Aside from the money this potato field brings its owner, the railroad profits somewhat in that the green vines in midsummer are a fire preventative and serve as a fire break for those started elsewhere.

Breeding a dairy cow that will give enough milk to feed 30 children a day, more than six times the capacity of the ordinary cow, is one of the feats of the industry which has been accomplished by the feeding and selective breeding. On the experimental farm, near Beltsville, Md., the department has a herd of six cows, the result of breeding work that have produced an average of more than 22,000 lbs. of milk in 365 days. This little herd yields enough milk to provide a quart a day to 170 children.

Cream may be a little sour, but, if it is clean and free from foreign odors and tastes, it will make fancy butter in the hands of an expert buttermaker. Cream approaching rancidity and carrying with it particles of dirt, whiffs of undesirable odors, and a taste of the barnyard or cellar never loses its identity. The butter it enters into is that which draws on the market and sells at a low price. To argue that because certain neighbors are careless with their cream provides a reason why no one needs to be careful is illogical. Produce and handle your cream in a careful, cleanly manner, deliver it frequently and then demand a price in keeping with the quality.

We think that the word casket as a substitute for coffin was devised as an excuse for charging more for these ill-omened contraptions. One can buy a coffin 30 years ago for a reasonable sum, but he has to pay dearly today for a casket.

CANARD

Miss Elizabeth, of Upper Canard, left on Tuesday, Sept. 25th, for New York. Misses Ethel and Nellie Nursdon, are spending a few days with their parents at Upper Canard. They will attend Acadia College during the coming year.

Mr. Hamilton, of Wolfville Academy, gave a splendid address in the Lower Canard church Sunday evening.

Miss Marjorie Eaton, who has been on a case during the past two weeks, has returned home.

The Presbyterian Congregation united with the Baptist on Sunday morning.

MARKETING NOT AN INDIVIDUAL PROBLEM

Aaron Sapiro says marketing is not an individual problem. It is a group problem. You cannot market without a distinct consideration of what all the other producers are doing at the same time. You cannot market without knowing what the market absorption is, or what the market demand is, what the money markets are, and the other elements of trade.

Production can be done individually. Marketing can be done sanely only on a collective basis, and through organized effort. The co-operative structure represents that organized effort. The farmer must have some way in which he can take the crops from individual production through the group problem as financing and marketing. This way is cooperation, with experts handling these technical group problems from a commodity standpoint and not from a local standpoint.

The commodity idea must be handled within practical limits. But the commodity idea is the only thing to bear in mind when you are thinking of successful co-operative associations.
