THE AIR IS FULL OF THINGS YOU SHOULDN'T MISS

"We don't dread the winter any more. Radio brings the companionship of the world right into the living room."

The lonesome evening hours are fast disappearing under the magic of radio.

Now the whole family can enjoy the world's best music, can listen to church services and receive the latest news of the world.

A good radio receiving set will do this, and more—but every radio receiver needs the best batteries, so when you purchase a radio, be sure to buy EVEREADY RADIO BATTERIES to make it operate at its best. THERE ARE NO BETTER.

Insist on EVEREADY RADIO BATTERIES. They last longer.

COMMUNISTS TOLD TO FIND GENERAL STAFF.

Executive Committee Third Communist Internationale Presidium, Sept. 15th, 1924. MOSCOW. (Very Secret.)

the Central Committee British Communist Party.

Dear Comrades.—The time is approaching for the Parliament of England to consider the Treaty concluded between the Governments of Great Britain and the S.S.S.R. for the purpose of ratification. The fierce campaign raised by the British bourgeoisie around the question shows that the majority of the same, together with reactionary circles, are seeking the Treaty for the purpose of breaking off an agreement consolidating the ties between the proletariats of the two countries leading to the restoration of normal relations between England and the S.S.S.R.

The proletariat of Great Britain, which pronounced its weighty word in danger threatened of a breaking of the past negotiations, and concluded the Government of MacDonald to conclude the Treaty, must show the greatest possible energy in the further struggle for ratification and against the endeavours of British capitalists to compel Parliament to refuse it.

It is indispensable to stir up the masses of the British proletariat, to bring into movement the army of unemployed proletarians, whose position can be improved only after a loan has been granted to the S.S.S.R. for the restoration of her economic and business collaboration between the British and Russian proletariats has been put in order. It is imperative that the group in the labour Party sympathizing with the Treaty should bring increased pressure to bear upon the Government and parliamentary circles in favour of the ratification of the Treaty.

Keep close observation over the leaders of the Labour Party, because these may easily be found in the leading strings of the bourgeoisie. The foreign policy of the Labour Party as already represents an inferior copy of the Curzon Government, organize a campaign of disclosure of the foreign policy of MacDonald.

Armed Insurrection.

The IKKI (Executive Committee Third Communist Internationale) will willingly place at your disposal the wide material in its possession regarding the activities of British imperialism in the Middle and Far East. In the meantime, however, strain every nerve in the struggle for the ratification of the Treaty, in favour of continuation of negotiations regarding the regulation of relations between the S.S.S.R. and England. A settlement of relations between the two countries will assist in the revolutionizing of the international and British proletariat not less than a successful rising in any of the working districts of England, as the establishment of close contact between the British and Russian proletariats, the exchange of delegations and workers, etc., will make it possible for us to extend and develop the propaganda of ideas of Leninism in England and the Colonies. Armed resistance must be preceded by a struggle against the inclinations to compromises which are embedded among the majority of British workmen, against the ideas of evolution and successful extermination of capitalism.

Only then will it be possible to count upon complete success of an armed insurrection. In Ireland and the Colonies the case is different; there is a national question, and this represents too great a factor for success for us to waste time on a prolonged preparation of the working class.

But even in England, as in other countries where the workers are politically developed, events themselves may more rapidly revolutionize the working masses than propaganda. For instance, a strike movement, repression by the Government, etc.

From your last report it is evident that agitation-propaganda work in the Army is weak, in the Navy a very little better. Your explanation that the quality of the members attracted justifies the quantity is right in principle, nevertheless it would be desirable to have cells in all the units of the troops, particularly among those quartered in the large centres of the country, and also among factories working on munitions and at military store depots. We request that the most particular attention be paid to these latter.

A Class War.

In the event of danger of war, with the aid of the latter and in contact with the transport workers, it is possible to paralyze all the military preparations of the bourgeoisie, and make a start in turning an imperialist war into a class war. Now more than ever we should be on our guard. Attempts at intervention in China show that world imperialism is still full of or agencies or institutions whose aim is to spread discontent or to foment rebellion in any part of the British Empire, and to impress upon its officers and officials the full and continuous observance of these conditions.

6. Moreover, in the Treaty which his Majesty's Government recently concluded with your Government, still further provision was made for the faithful execution of an analogous undertaking which is essential to the existence of good and friendly relations between the two countries.

His Majesty's Government mean that these undertakings shall be carried out both in the letter and in the spirit, and it cannot accept the contention that while the Soviet Government undertakes obligations, a political body, as powerful as itself, is to be allowed to conduct a propaganda and support it with money, which is in direct violation of the official agreement.

The Soviet Government either has or has not the power to make such agreements. If it has the power it is its duty to carry them out and see that the other parties are not deceived. If it has not this power and if responsibilities which belong to the State in other countries are in Russia in the keeping of private and irresponsible bodies the Soviet Government ought not to make agreements which it knows it cannot carry out.

I should be obliged if you would be good enough to let me have the observations of your Government on this subject without delay.

I have the honour to be, with high consideration, Sir, Your Obedient Servant, (in the absence of the Sec'y. of State) (Sgd.) J. R. GREGORY. M. C. Radovski, etc., etc., etc.

Thinks Nutting is in Labrador

MAN WHO TRIED TO CROSS OCEAN IN SMALL BOAT MAY BE ALIVE.

HALIFAX, N.S., Nov. 26.—(Canadian Press)—William Washburn Nutting, the New York Journalist, who attempted to sail from Norway to New York in a small boat and has not been heard of for several months, may still be alive, according to a letter received to-day by the Halifax Echo from Rufus W. Sweet of Goldenville, Guysborough county, Nova Scotia, who has just returned from Greenland where he left Mr. Nutting and party on September 8 or 7.

Mr. Sweet, who is well posted on Greenland, believes there is still a good chance that Mr. Nutting and party are alive. They may, he writes, have been picked up by some whaling crew or landed on some remote part of Labrador. In either case they would be beyond the reach of wireless and have to wait considerable time before getting in touch with the outer world. Nutting and Sweet spent two days together at Julianehaab, Greenland, early in September. In parting Nutting told Sweet he intended to strike for the northern part of Labrador and have a look at the natives on his way south and to reach Nova Scotia by the first of October.

Mr. Sweet said Nutting's boat was well built and he did not consider there was much chance of his party being on the Greenland coast.

Mrs. Adams Escapes Operation

The following statement contained in a letter from Mrs. A. A. Adams of Provost, Alberta, should bring hope to other women who are in the same condition she was. She says: "I was in a very bad condition and my doctor said I could not have children without an operation. A friend recommended Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound: I have taken three bottles and now have a bonny baby girl. I am recommending the Vegetable Compound to my friends who have female troubles."

Borgia Poisons

The constant criminal trials in which poison plays a tragical part, brings to mind the myth that the Borgias and other "monsters" of historical infamy possessed knowledge of secret poisons which are unknown today. It was shared by their contemporaries, and had its origin as much in the general ignorance of the natural causes of sudden death as in the immunity with which the poisoner could practice his art.

Post mortems were unknown until the fifteenth century, when the popes removed the ancient ban on dissecting the human body. Not that that helped much in detecting murder by poisoning, for no certain method of chemical analysis was discovered before 1836.

Hence in an atmosphere of mystery and terror grew up the fantastic legend of deadly drugs and poisons which destroyed at a touch or a sniff: of great poisons removed by the scent of a bouquet or the wearing of a glove; of precious stones which changed color in proximity with secret poisons. And so when persons of importance died—probably of appendicitis, peritonitis or angina pectoris, and especially if their bodies became discolored or decomposed quickly—death was attributed to poison administered by their enemies.

As a matter of fact, so far from the science of toxicology being better understood in the Renaissance period than it is now, the number of known poisons has more than doubled since the beginning of the nineteenth century, and the staple poison of the fifteenth and sixteenth centuries was nothing more subtle than arsenic. Even the famous Aqua Toffana, arsenic mixed in the brine of boiled hog's flesh—a preparation which was supposed to be more deadly than a plain solution. In short, it has been said with much truth that arsenic was practically synonymous with poisoning. Vegetable poisons were practically unknown, although the ancient Egyptians, and later the Romans, knew of prussic acid from the distilling of peach juice. The alternative poisons of the Renaissance appear to have been corrosive sublimate—a horrible epidemic about which there could have been no "secret"—and cantharides, an animal poison which enjoyed some popularity. On such slender and primitive resources have been built up the legend
