FRANK CONFERENCE WHAT IS WANTED

Lloyd-George Tells How Liberal Party Feels Towards the Colonies.

London Jan 30.-Mr. Lloyd-George speaking to the Canadian Associated urer that his son intended to drop out. Press, said: "Tonight at the great Liberal demonstration at York I in of the bylaws of the society. The tend to touch on the Liberal policy society then sued for the arrears for towards the colonies. I will tell my the six months, $1 50, and also $1 ashearers that the Prime Minister labors sel for Preston argued that the sus under the strange delusion that if the Liberals came to power they would the society had no other remery. Judge make a point of snubbing the colonies. Why on earth should they do anything so fatuous?

"The self-governing colonies are much more in sympathy with the Liberals than with the Tories on nine points out of ten in the rival programmes of the two parties. The colonies had no state church; they had absolute popular control in theological tests in the state schools; theological tests in the state schools; they were without exception home rulers; their liquor legislation was now all on Liberal lines. The great experiments made in reference to land, labor and social questions in Australia and New Zealand were in the direction of proposals supported by the advanced section of the Liberal party in this country.

"Nothing would suit British Liberals better than closer union with the colonies. It would enable our people to realize would enable our people to realize how the land prospers under Liberal legislation granted by Great Britain to the colony that would accord that liberty to its representatives at a conference. "What happened in the Parliament of Manitoba proved that Canada is not at present prepared in return for a preference to make even substantial reductions in its tariff against British goods. The Canadian woolen and cotton manufac-turer has a greater dread of British com-petition than of American trade rivalry. He wants to be protected against Ger-many. I believe there is much that can be done to promote trade and co-opera-tion between the colonies and the mother country without pulling either into tariff

What is wanted is a conference where, after a frank statement of limitations on both sides, methods could be discussed whereby Britain and the self-govern-ing colonies could render greater help to each other, both commercially and imperially. But Mr. Balfour thinks the Liberals are hostile to the idea of conferring with the colonies. Quite the referring with the colonies. Quite the reverse so long as you make it perfectly clear to the colonies that there are certain proposals which it would be futile to discuss in the present state of British opinion—for instance, taxation of food. It will be much more straightforward and businesslike to let them know the limitations of such a conference in advance than it would be to drag them here, thousands of miles, as if the idea of taxing corn were an open question. of taxing corn were an open question, and then turn around and tell them it was ruled out by popular vote at the elections. The colonial delegates would have limitations imposed also. They would not be permitted to discuss the election of absolute free trade within estion of absolute free trade with the empire. There is no colony that would allow its delegates to entertain a scheme whereby all duties against British manufactures should be abolished in re turn for preference given."
