Anticipation of Further Increases Also Causes Rush To Book Orders.

The Sist of August in London had a special significance. It is the day dedicated to the ordering of the winter supply of coal by the people who have failed to attend to this important item of husbress earlier in the month. It is "Coal Day" in London, every bit as much as the 1st of May is moving day in many other cities.

There are reasons, and excellent reasons at that, for this apparently strange custom. In the first place, coal has had a habit of advancing in price year by de who get in their arriers on the last tra cost, by the skin of their teeth, as
