BRITISH NOTES.

Body Stealing-A Heavy Gale. LONDON, Jan. 8.—There is great alarm caused throughout England by the introduction of the new American industry of body stealing. There is good authority for the statement that an attempt to steal the bodies of Napoleon and the Prince Imperial was only frustrated by the great strength of the granite sarcophagus. It is said the Queen gave orders that the tomb of the prince consort he securally quarted. There prince consort be securely guarded. There would be little difficulty in stealing the emains of many eminent men whose tombs are unprotected.
