WEDNESDAY, FEBRUARY 9th, 1898. —India may be a gem in the British crown but she is proving an expensive treasure; worth the holding undoubtedly, even though the cost of the effort is paid in the life blood of English soldiers and native allies. History is repeating itself in India and the mutiny of 1857 will quite likely be no more deadly than the uprising of 1897. The subjugation of the Afridis is not yet accomplished, though the tenor of military reports to the Imperial government last fall practically announced the suppression of the revolt. The colonial authorities their truthfulness. The colonial authorities are blamed for not placing in the field a force sufficient to stamp out the insurrection in short order. The lesson that has not yet been learned by the Afridis might have been taught them and the neighboring tribes of hillmen, quickly, by a strong and properly directed punitive expedition. Failure to do this will probably result in a spread of the uprising next spring among the hill tribes and the story of the campaign will be grue-perhaps have not done as much as we might, some indeed. It isn't only the hillmen that Britain has to fear. Russia's jealous eyes have long been directed toward India; Russian outposts have been advanced to the very frontier, and the troops of the Czar have been for months within easy striking distance; Russian intrigue is credited largely with the responsibility for the present outbreak and an early collision between Russian and British troops is not at all improbable. The situations in India and China are directed toward the same end and are apparently part of a deliberately planned programme to destroy British supremacy in the east and increase the dominion and prestige of the Russians. -The Bridgetown Board of Trade is de serving of the strong support of every local business man and the citizens generally. It was constituted strictly for the promotion of general business interests, and during its few months of existence has grappled with some hard problems, materially affecting the welfare of our town. A Board of Trade when comprised of enterprising men and having a large and representative member ship is a mighty lever in lifting a town to a higher level of business prosperity. Our Board has shown itself to be comprised of the necessary enterprise, and we hope to see a large increase in the membership. The President's report is concise and to the point. and we recommend its perusal to our towns-

-The snowstorm of last week did an astonishing amount of damage in the maritime provinces and in New England, and will go on record as the most disastrous for years. In this province, traffic was pretty generally obstructed for two days, but in Maine, Massachusetts and New York the damage was not confined to a delay of traffic alone, many lives were lost and great destruction wrought to shipping and telegraph and telephone systems. Fifty vessels were wrecked on the coast of Maine and Massachusetts and more than a score of lives were sacrificed. It was an old fashioned stormsurely, but it completely upset the modern methods of business, and the hustle and bustle of the busy world affected were quieted for a time. -Halifax is congratulating herself upon an easy escape from the discriminating I. C. R. freight tariff that was recently imposed. But after all there was nothing to be afraid of since the said schedule was only a joke perpetrated by an employe of the railway At least Manager Harris disclaims all knowledge of it and so does the minister of railways. Evidently the Intercolonial is not out an incumbent. It is a most unusual case and if the office is really not an undesirable one, there must be an undue lack of appreciation for responsible positions among the candidates in-waiting for positions in the government's gift.

—Federal parliament is now insession and in the speech from the throne the plebiscite bill was announced as one of the government measures to be introduced at once. It is as important matter and the government will find its action watched by a large uumber of self-appointed critice. It is a question in which the masses are interested and interests ed to a greater extent than ever before in the history of Canada. We hope to see the matter placed squarely before the people without any side issues attached, so that an intelligent vote may be recorded when the time comes.

Bridgetown Board of Trade

The annual meeting of the Bridgetown Board of Trade was held in the office of the Secretary, Fred R. Fay, Esq.

It will be observed from the report of the president, Mr. Mark Curry, which we publish in full, that although the Board was formed less-than six menths ago, much good to the town has already resulted from its establishment. Correspondence has been opened up between the Board and the General Superintendent of the D. A.
