THE FOWLER

By Beatrice Harraden. Author of "Ships that Pass in the Night," etc. Price, paper, 75c.; cloth, $1.50.

"Our soul is escaped even as a bird out of the snare of the fowler."

THE FOWLER

"Since writing 'Ships that Pass in the Night,' the author's spirits have considerably improved, and her way of looking at existence seems to have altered. 'The Fowler,' while it displays to the full that sympathetic grasp of human problems characteristic of the author, is free from the morbidness displayed in much of her former work."

THE FOWLER

"The author seems to understand the passionate human interest which often lies under the surface of ordinary things."—The Book Buyer.

THE FOWLER

"A 'mental seduction' is certainly an interesting subject in literature, and 'The Fowler,' with his mania for mental vivisection, and the strange mental sway, which he was able to exercise over people, attracting while repelling them, is a novel creation."

THE FOWLER

"The minor characters in 'The Fowler' are one of its most interesting features. Mrs. Shaw especially, with her pathetically cheerful philosophy and her three generations of ancestors, leaves a sweet taste in the mouth. 'Great great-aunts, great-uncles and fathers always grumble,' she used to say. 'It be something for 'em to do, bless 'em, and I don't see why they should not enjoy themselves: folks must have an occupation.'"

THE SPAN O' LIFE

"The Span o' Life's nae long enough,
Nor deep enough the sea,
Nor braid enough this weary world,
To part my Love frae me."

THE SPAN O' LIFE

The book is gracefully written and carefully polished."—Canadian Magazine.

THE SPAN O' LIFE

"is an important edition to Canadian historical romance."—Toronto Saturday Night.

"It is a romance that will thrill anyone who loves a good tale of love and adventure, and it has an added interest from an historical point of view."—Montreal Herald.

THE SPAN O' LIFE

"This brilliant novel . . . The characters are well drawn, the adventures are unhackneyed, the plot is absorbing, and the cheerful denouement is satisfactory to the reader."—Ottawa Evening Journal.
