THE CHURCH AND THE MEETING-HOUSE.

Good evening, Thomas; I suppose you are going to work in your garden this fine open weather...

Thank you, James; it is very kind of you to remember me in this way...

Before I answer your question, I should like you to tell me what Christ compares his Church to...

And where does the Bible say that I may not, if I like, leave Church and go to a meeting-house?

Before I answer your question, I should like you to tell me what Christ compares his Church to...

And where does the Bible say that I may not, if I like, leave Church and go to a meeting-house?

Before I answer your question, I should like you to tell me what Christ compares his Church to...

And where does the Bible say that I may not, if I like, leave Church and go to a meeting-house?

Before I answer your question, I should like you to tell me what Christ compares his Church to...

And where does the Bible say that I may not, if I like, leave Church and go to a meeting-house?

The law of the land has regard principally to temporal matters. If a man is a quiet and obedient subject...

Unthink. Well, James, I will call at your cottage shortly, and hear what you have to say to me...

Unthink. You see, James, I am very punctual in coming to have a little more talk with you.

Unthink. And where does the Bible say that I may not, if I like, leave Church and go to a meeting-house?

Unthink. Before I answer your question, I should like you to tell me what Christ compares his Church to...

Unthink. And where does the Bible say that I may not, if I like, leave Church and go to a meeting-house?

Unthink. Before I answer your question, I should like you to tell me what Christ compares his Church to...

Unthink. And where does the Bible say that I may not, if I like, leave Church and go to a meeting-house?

Unthink. Well, James, I may have been, nay, I confess I was, a careless and worldly-minded hearer at church...

pleased mercifully to render the causes of division in some cases, instruments of good. You ask me if you are not bound to keep to the meeting-house...

Unthink. Why, then, to be sure, I should not. But I cannot help thinking that I should be little, if at all benefited by what I should hear at church.

Unthink. It is not the feelings you have which are any sure proof that you have received good to your soul.

Unthink. No; I cannot say I have.

Unthink. And yet you are then reading the words of the inspired prophet, the apostles, and evangelists, and even of Him who spoke as never man spoke...

Unthink. That was because they had no real religion in their hearts, but were hypocrites. It is different with us who have received light; we ought not to put it under a bushel, or to be ashamed of telling what God has done for our souls.

Unthink. If we are all real christians, Thomas, we shall show our light without walking in the steps of the proud and self-righteous Pharisees.

Unthink. We are all real christians, Thomas, we shall show our light without walking in the steps of the proud and self-righteous Pharisees.

and as soon as I got to sleep of a night, I used to be going building." At length, he applied to the mayor court, and got leave to build. He used to work at his house, when his day-labour was over; and often by moonlight; and was again by four the next morning, having to go to Cambridge, nearly five miles, to his work, and to return in the evening.

Joseph Austin's garden is not less the object of his attention than his house. It contains above a dozen apple-trees, and about half a dozen plum-trees, besides gooseberry and currant bushes. A netarine and a peach-tree, and a grape-vine, grow against the back of the house; and one of the fences in the garden is made of dwarf plum-trees.
