being cation. er, and

T1830.

1830.
eath of
y was a
l heard DuchKing at
meholy

out was
to it was to kingave just oucester
s worth
a great
ame on.
es entire
a desire
ion and

ed. Sir m to let ippened, that the was to use, and oucester King's

and Sir Ie could

The Council met about twelve, the new King having come to town. The Privy Councillors swore allegiance to William IV., doing away with the silly report that he was to style himself Henry IX. An order has been signed for the Proclamation (this I know from Scarlett, who was present), and the streets are now crowded with people waiting to see the ceremony. His Majesty returns to Bushey to dinner. Nothing is known of the measures of the new reign. It is supposed that the Duke of Wellington will retain his power, but he must share it with others. The King's death is rather opportune; for I do not see how Ministers could have gone on for a fortnight longer. It is expected that the business of the session will be huddled over, and then will come the dissolution. We shall soon see how the cat jumps. Unless I come in ingloriously for a government borough, I see no chance for myself. Seats are said to be scarcer and dearer than ever known: £1500 a year, or £6000 taking all chances.

END OF VOLAI.