Directors Decide to Erect at Minatitian, on the Coatzacoalcos River, a Modern Sawmill, with 2 Double Cutting Band Saws. Capacity 100,000 feet per day, or 30,000,000 feet per annum.

The quantity of timber on the Company's property is estimated at 10,000 feet to the acre, or over one billion feet. The profit on these high-class woods averages over $20 per thousand, which means $600,000 per year from a mill of this capacity. This money will be applied to paying dividends, planting rubber, cattle raising, etc. Rubber pays $300 per acre, cattle raising on the Isthmus pays as high as 50% annually. There is also $50,000 coming in from sale of one 5,000 acre tract to the Chimas Plantation Company of New York.

Why the necessity for thinking imperially? New Zealand is not yet filled up; Australia is practically forbidden to emigrants; South Africa is barred as it has already too many; Western Canada is really the only place in the British empire still open to the overflow of population."

Regarding the words uttered on the same occasion by the Bishop of Riponto to the effect that marriages were tooften matches for social convenience, The Glasgow Herald says: "If Britain and Australia, so say nothing of Canada—where the French-Canadians remain an object lesson of industrious domesticity—were true to themselves we should hear less of the yellow peril and more of white progress than we do.

Report Carried.

The carrying of the committee's report brought an outburst of enthusiasm. The feeling among the delegates was evident that the printers of America were finally committed to a struggle, generally recognized as being based upon one of the most clear-cut issues of years.

Martin P. Higgins, president of the International Union of Printing Pressmen and Assistants, gave promise of the support of the pressmen, even tho it failed to extend to all districts. On behalf of his union, he wished them godspeed in their movement.

A fighting speech was that made by President Robert Glockling of the International Brotherhood of Bookbinders. He claimed for them that they were eager to lend a hand if the

The striking Grand Trunk machinists met yesterday at the Labor Temple. They say the condition of the strike is quite satisfactory in spite of contrary reports from Stratford and Fort Huron, where it is said the men are going back to work.

If Printers' Demands Are Not Met by Employers, This Action Spells Strike.

The report read by the eight-hour day committee on Thursday afternoon was yesterday endorsed by the convention of the International Typographical Union. This means that the final step has been taken, and that the campaign is now under way.

It had not been expected that any opposition to the adoption of the report of the eight-hour day committee, as read on Thursday, would be stirred up, and none developed when the repert was formally brought before the convention for endorsation yesterday morning. That report, which is in the nature of a defi, pure and simple, to employers, it declaring for a general strike at the beginning of the year unless the demands are acceded to, inet the full and complete endorsa tion of the convention. Indeed, the suggestion was made by Delegate Davies that they go further and include non-union as well as union men in the strike recommendation. The president, in pointing out that the I.T. U. could not endorse non-union men, made the forecast that if it came to a test of strength many non-union men would join in the strike, and he declared that all would be supported. Mr. Lynch also said that the union was prepared to meet the Typothetae o-day or to-morrow."
No Loss.

Chairman Hayes of the eight-hour committee, in bespeaking the delegates endorsation of its stand, argued that there would be no loss of printing work to United States offices. It would make the condition of the printing trade more settled. The present output was greater than when the men worked longer. With shorter hours they would be able to produce better work.

ternational Brotherhood of Bookulla ers. He claimed for them that they were eager to lend a hand if the chance to do so arose. The employers were persisting in the old stock arguments of appealing to workers not to drive trade away to other countries. Mr. Glockling asserted that if the men were more prosperous they would become heavier consumers and thus afford employers a better market.
