The Boyle Stock Company commences the third week of the summer engagement at the Grand Opera House this evening, presenting William Gillette's famous military play, "Secret Service." Of the many prominent American military dramas, none stand out more prominently in public favor than "Secret Service." Dealing with incidents previous to the close of the war of the rebellion, and the siege of the City of Richmond, it is a story filled with interesting dialog and a drama of intense action, never failing to keep the attention of the auditor. It is unnecessary to state that the Boyle Stock Company will give it a presentation the equal of any traveling company. The two weeks that have just closed have given the theatregoers of Toronto a good idea of the ability of the members of the company, which is without question the best organization playing stock that has ever visited Toronto. The usual matinces will be given on Wednesday and Saturday.
