MAY BE CHARGED WITH ROBBERY

Joseph McQuade may Face More Serious Accusation Than Chicken Stealing.

Joseph McQuade, a young man, who is awaiting sentence in jail for purloining chickens from H. A. Wells, a resident of Knap's Corner, may confront another and more serious accusation, that of robbery. It is claimed that McQuade relieved Redmond McShane, a Fredericton man, of $500 in an East End saloon last Thursday night, while the latter was intoxicated. McShane had invited McQuade into the barroom, and after assimilating more of the proprietor's stock-in-trade than his capacity would warrant, the former toppled into a corner of the bar. He unsuccessfully attempted to arise, and McQuade came to his aid. It is alleged that the latter was aware that McShane possessed almost a hundred dollars, abstracted $95 in bills from an inner pocket in the man's coat and hurriedly concealed the money on his person. Notes of $5, predominated in the roll, which was, therefore, of rather large proportions.

After the theft it is alleged that McQuade requested the bartender to serve him, but before being accommodated, he was seized by another patron and compelled to refund the entire amount to McShane, who reposed in a drunken stupor in the corner oblivious of the loss and return of his money. McQuade was subsequently ejected from the saloon, and it is believed depleted the hen roost of local birds later in the night or early morning.

At the Elkins office it was not known where Smith was aboard the Lily. The tug boat left here for Calais, and is expected back tonight.
