AMAZING FOOD FACTS

What People in Great Britain Pay to Foreigners For Things to Eat

(London Tit-Bits)

The extent to which we in this country are dependent upon foreigners for our food supply is strikingly illustrated by the import returns for 1912. Last year the value of food, drink, and tobacco imported into the United Kingdom amounted to no less than £102,789,194, and it is very significant that of this amount only £24,187,812, or 23.5 per cent, was spent within the empire and 76.5 per cent was paid to our colonies was only £18,012,454.

As a matter of fact, for such things as coffee, sugar, bacon, butter, and all that comes under the heading of groceries, we are obliged to go outside the Empire; but in what may be called the staples of human food, such as four, meat, the Empire is almost self-supporting. Canada, Australia, and British India produce nearly enough wheat for themselves and the mother country.

Two-thirds of the women live Doctor Dwyer examined met misfortune when sixteen years old. Practically everyone was in need of medical attention, and four, who otherwise would have been sent to the Bridewell, possibly to death, are on the road to recovery at the Oak Park Tuberculosis Institute.

Two-thirds of the women were mentally deficient, Doctor Dwyer discovered, and to these, she announced, workers in religious and welfare associations were able to give special attention. Without this aid they might have been regarded as criminals.

"There is one class of women of the street which deserves consideration in law and in care," she said. "The class referred to is made up of those who, having a low order of intelligence which narrows their possibilities and deprives them of reason to work for better things, are fined, and then, by borrowing or stealing to pay their fines are placed in a worse situation than before."

Meat, Wheat and Cheese

Meat is a very large item in John Bull's food bill, and in 1912 imported meat of various kinds cost the people of the United Kingdom no less than £47,187,812. Of this, £11,007,298 was spent within the empire and 76.5 per cent was paid to our colonies was only £18,012,454.

Turning to wheat, we find corn and grain costing the British consumer the colossal sum of £88,496,284 in 1912, and of this amount, says the Daily Telegraph, £38,759,042 was paid to producers in British over-sea possessions, leaving corn to the value of £49,737,242 to be purchased from the foreigner. It is satisfactory to note, however, that British possessions are rapidly increasing their production of corn, for the value of Empire-grown corn imported into the United Kingdom has increased from £18,400,000 in 1908 to £26,759,042 in 1912.

We have to rely mainly on Denmark, Russia, and Sweden for our butter, which we spent £24,364,193. Of that only £3,379,890 worth was produced in British possessions. Denmark is our largest purveyor of butter, and last year the bill which we settled with her amounted to £10,266,000. The rest, we spent in Sweden and Russia.

Flour is drawn in about equal proportions from British and foreign sources, the total value of last year's purchase amounting to £5,318,504.

Foreigners reap huge benefits through our consumption of eggs and bacon. Last year, £2,304,324 was paid for imported eggs, and of this amount over £2,000,000 was paid to foreign producers. Again, we spent over £2,000,000 on imported bacon. From our over-sea dominions we bought nearly £2,000,000 worth only, the remaining £18,000,000 going to foreign pig farmers.

Chicago, Ill., Dec. 31.—Close scrutiny of the underworld as represented in the Morda Court since April 17, and the "Psychological Laboratory report" prepared by Dr. Anna M. Dwyer, the court's physician, throws a new light on causes, conditions and the possibility of correction of moral perversion.

women of the underworld have had medical and moral advice based on principles of economics and health.

Doctor Dwyer, in her report, foresees the dawning of a new day in the treatment of these women.

The causes may be judged in part, inferentially from Doctor Dwyer's classification of the occupations given by the women she has examined in her "laboratory." Of the 759 cases the occupations were given as follows:

General housework, 225; waitresses, 174; laundresses, 186; clerks or cashiers, eighty-three; seamstresses or dress-makers, six; stenographers, four; manicure, one; scrub-women, twenty-four; without occupation, 108.

Many of those whose lives Doctor Dwyer examined met misfortune when sixteen years old. Practically everyone was in need of medical attention, and four, who otherwise would have been sent to the Bridewell, possibly to death, are on the road to recovery at the Oak Park Tuberculosis Institute.
