The Position of Canada

(From La Patrie) Why should our commerce suffer from the war? . . The freedom of the seas, due to the English fleet, assures the rapid transport of all that we are able to export. Our commercial position is as strong as it was before the war, and it is bound to improve with the demands which must come to us from England and her allies.

A Double Advantage (From La Presse)

While contributing to feed the British army, which is fighting to defend the cause of the Empire, the province of Quebec, at the same time encourages the dairy industry amongst its farmers. We have no doubt that the Imperial authorities will receive, as it deserves, this generous offer from the French legislature of the dominion.

The best wrinkle of all, no plasters or pads or burning salves—they are all relics of the dark ages. The only sure corn doctor—the one that never fails to lift out a sore corn by the roots is Putnam's Painless Corn Extractor. Apply it at night and it dissolves away the painful corn while you sleep. Nothing to equal the painless removal of corns by Putnam's Get a 25c. bottle from any druggist.

In parliament on Saturday, the prime minister said that the government would do all that was reasonably possible to prevent unemployment. It had already given an order for ten thousand tons of steel rails from the steel works at Sydney. The government had been asked to take steps if possible to prevent the railway companies cancelling orders which they had placed with the various steel works. The matter would be given consideration.

days' silence regarding the departure of the expeditionary force has been absence of farewells. When the troops went to South Africa the streets were thronged with cheering crowds, stations and docks saw many pathetic scenes day afafter day. This time the men realizing they are engaged on more deadly business are gone without a word. Only now postcards are trickling in announcing fathers, sons and brothers safe and well. Some reservists only told their wives they were making a trip to London. Britain's fighting men went out in silence. WHAT IT WILL COST.

(The Canadian Courier.)
On the cost to Canada of this war the editor says in Reflections:
A twelve-months' war will cost Canada a great deal of money. It is estimated that the first contingent of 22,500 men will cost Canada twenty-two million dollars. Privates will receive one dollar per day, corporals one dollar and tencents, and sergeants one dollar and twenty-five cents. Officers get higher rates. To pay these men for one year will take ten million dollars, or $30,000 a day. To this must be added the cost of rifles, guns and other equipment, food, horses, and transport. So that the estimate of twenty-two millions seems to be about right. (The Canadian Courier.)

increase in coast armament and many othes incidental expenses.

An appropriation of fifty million dollar is the very least that can be made, and parliament will no doubt vote that amount of money this week. Brittain will assist us in raising the money, and in the meantime the dominion authorities will no doubt is a many in the meantime.
