TWO ST. JOHN MEN HAD EXCITING TIME WHILE OUT HUNTING

Big Bull Moose With Many Bullets in Carcass Turned on E. A. Adams—Was Finally Killed By J. B. Smith.

Two of the proudest men walking the streets of Fredericton yesterday were J. B. Smith, of St. John, and E. A. Adams, formerly of St. John, but now of this city. They have a perfect right to feel proud and happy, because they have established themselves as hunters bold, and carry off the laurels for securing the first moose of the season. They got their prize in record time and had all the excitement they required in bagging their game. In fact, there was a little too much excitement at one stage of the hunt.

They left Fredericton Friday afternoon with Harry Smith's camp, fourteen miles away on the Royal Road, as their mecca. They arrived there at dusk, but not in time for hunting. Saturday morning, about 8 o'clock, they struck for the timbers to see what they could find in the way of big game. They had not gone more than a mile from camp when they came upon two moose. One moose had the protection of law. The other didn't. The unprotected one was quickly the target for rifle shots. Mr. Adams took aim and let go from his 30-30. The moose was tickled by the bullet and started to run away. Adams began to run after him, all the time peppering away with his rifle. The moose got one bullet that angered him, and to show his disapproval of the treatment being handed him, turned and charged at Mr. Adams. The hunter didn't stop to argue the right of way, but turned and ran for all he was worth, with the moose in close pursuit. Mr. Adams had the bulk of a sprinter, but the speed of a Howard Drew couldn't have saved him from a ride on moose antlers. The moose was gaining on him and was letting forth his rage. Just as Mr. Adams was about to give up the ghost, his comrade, Smith, with a well aimed shot from his Mauser, sent the enraged bull tottering into the brook.

The animal showed that eleven bullets had entered the carcass. It dressed about 600 pounds and had a fine set of antlers. The head is now at the taxidermy shop of Mr. Davis, on Queen street.

The boys say they had always been skeptical about the stories of moose turning on people, but now from what they will believe mostly anything about a moose.

LARGE ORDER FOR SPHAGNUM MOSS

Canadian Red Cross Has Received Order From Overseas for 50,000 Dressings—Enough Moss on Hand, But Scarcity of Sorters.

An order has been received by the Canadian Red Cross from overseas for 50,000 sphagnum moss dressings to be ready for delivery the 15th of October, and 10,000 dressings is the quota that New Brunswick has to supply. This is an emergency order for the dressings are urgently needed overseas, and the rooms of the Natural History Society are being put into readiness for an unprecendented rush of work. The whole building is to be used for the work, and the rooms will be open from 9 a.m. to 10 p.m.

William McIntosh, who has charge of the work, stated yesterday that there was enough sphagnum moss on hand for the needed dressings, but there was a great scarcity of sorters and graders. He stated that the society had two carloads of the moss to work on, but in order to make up the dressings in the requisite time, hundreds of people will have to volunteer as workers.

He stated that any worker would be welcomed, even if they could only devote an hour or two to the work, and that there would be a large corps of instructors on hand to teach the workers how to sort and grade. About 75 workers can be accommodated in the rooms at one time, and as there will be different shifts, it is expected that there will be room for about 500 volunteers.

This work is the most important work at the present time, and the Red Cross are dropping all other activities for the present in order that the 10,000 dressings will be ready on time.

AUTUMN OPENING TUESDAY. GOOD GOODS, GOOD SERVICE. STEALING VALUES ALL OVER THREE BRIGHT FLOORS.

—DYKEMAN'S—
It is a weakness of human nature to take the good things sent as a matter of course—and without comment it's only their short coming that affects us. Outside of a natural advance in price, how few shoppers in this store realize the difficulties war-time has imposed, in assembling such magnificent stock as to be seen here this week. Sources of supply have been curtailed, in some cases, cut off entirely, yet this store today is supplied with new, fine, and desirable merchandise as never before in all its history. Under war-time conditions this store has taken on a new disposition of service, enlarging the store and enlarging its sphere of usefulness. Good goods are here today, and here in plenty for autumn and winter wear, all at prices that are reasonable, right and natural. Every day you'll find this store ready with a bright good morning, and a right good will to serve you as you would be served. Few stores can say so much.

ST. JOHN SOLDIER GREATLY MOURNED

LIEUT. HARRISON GOES TO FRANCE

Will Be Attached To An Eastern Ontario Regiment—Proceeded Overseas in Summer of 1916.

In a letter received recently from England from Lieut. S. L. T. Harrison, of Moncton, he stated that he expected to leave shortly for France to fight with an Eastern Ontario regiment. Lieut. Harrison was chief recruiting officer of the 132nd Battalion. At Valcartier Camp in the summer of 1916 he proceeded overseas with a draft of unattached officers. Shortly after arriving in England he took a course at the Canadian military school, Shorncliffe. After finishing the course Lieut. Harrison was attached to the Reserve Battalion of the 132nd Battalion. Later he was transferred to another reserve in the same position. Lieut. Harrison made several efforts to go to France but as substitutes the sea of the day were denied the privilege, he had to content to remain in England in an administrative position. However after persistent efforts he had succeeded and his many friends throughout the province are pleased Lieut. Harrison holds a medal from the humane society for saving a prominent North Shore lady from drowning.

THE PRACTICE MUST BE STOPPED

Commissioner Bullock says it has been brought to his attention that many teamsters, for the purpose of getting into the habit of waiting until nearly time for the ferry boat, and then trotting their teams down North Rodney wharf in order to catch the trip. This practice results in wearing out the plankway very fast, and the commissioner wishes to call to the notice of all concerned the by-law which provides that no team shall proceed at a faster pace than a walk of this wharf, and announces that this practice must stop.

BOUND FOR SIBERIA.

FRANK STOCKDALE ADDRESSED THE RETAIL MERCHANTS

Heard At Combined Meeting at Noon Yesterday—Changed Business Conditions Was His Subject Last Evening.

The Merchants' Institute conducted by Frank Stockdale, under the auspices of the Retail Merchants' Association of St. John, had a most successful opening yesterday. At noon Mr. Stockdale addressed a combined meeting of the Rotary Club, Canadian Club and Retail Merchants' Association, on the value of a man to his community, and in the evening he addressed a large gathering of business men on changed business conditions which the retail man of today had to meet. Mr. Stockdale is a pleasing speaker and made a deep impression on his audience. He told the men he did not mean to run a retail business, but he did propose to make a report to them on what he had seen and learned during the past four and a half years spent in investigating conditions on one end of the continent to the other, and allow the merchants themselves to make the application.

Dealing with the value of man to the community, Mr. Stockdale said the values were rated as follows: The value of a man who works in the community is ten per cent; the value of a man who lived in the community is 50 per cent; the value of the man who spends is 60 per cent, and the value of the man who saves is 10 per cent.

What any city needed was to develop the community spirit as this tended to forward business and other interests.

The evening lecture in the Board of Trade Rooms was well attended. A. O. Skinner, president of the provincial branch of the R. M. A., occupied the chair. In introducing the speaker Mr. Skinner referred to the fact that practically all branches of trade were represented and voiced the hope that the speaker would do so to the male members of the Retail Merchants' Association would do so in the near future.

Mr. Stockdale in opening his address referred in flattering terms to the Canadian Retail Merchants' Association, which he claimed was the best on the continent, in that there was only one organization for the whole continent, and this fact made it a power at the seat of legislation. He expressed the hope that in future meetings more ladies would be present as his talks on salesmanship and advertising were as applicable to them as to the male members of the selling staffs.

He assured his audience that he did not intend to inject any theory of business, but to bring to them a report of things as he had found them all over the country and tell them some of the things which had been done to alleviate certain conditions.

His subject for the evening was changed conditions. The conditions under which business was being done of necessity were changing all the time.

First there was the peddler who brought the goods to the door of the buyer; he was followed by the general store; both of these were today practically extinct. Following these came the specialty store, then came the department store, next the mail order house and the latest was the chain store.

The mail order house went back to the peddler stage, instead of sending a man they sent a catalogue which was much cheaper. But the specialty store had one advantage which none of the others enjoyed, that of personal service, and their chances of staying in the frame were just as good as any of the larger stores.

In these days of increasing cost of doing business it was necessary to every merchant to mark his goods very carefully if he was to show a profit at the end of the year. It was essential that a proper set of books should be kept and all the cost of doing business set down if a man was to know whether he was making money or not. A great many confused marks with profit and figured that it was an arduous task, and that if he sold it for one dollar they had made thirty cents, when in reality they had made possibly a loss.

In order to be a successful retailer a man must have a keen business judgment which he had seen for the merchant was "buy in cold blood, sell with enthusiasm," but the majority of merchants just transposed this.

St. John Business College evening classes will open next Wednesday evening. See advertisement on editorial page.
