

WILL USE GAS IN ATTACK ON NAVAL VESSEL

Bombing Experiment to be Made With a German Submarine.

CREW EQUIPPED WITH GAS MASKS

Test Will Show Effectiveness of Chemicals Against Warships in Battle.

Washington, May 18.—The use of poisonous gases against naval vessels under simulated battle conditions will be tested for the first time in bombing experiments to be conducted off the Atlantic coast against one of the German submarines, beginning June 1.

While army and navy aerial forces are co-operating in an effort to demonstrate the effectiveness of aerial bombs against modern naval vessels, the chemical warfare service of the army will be launching a poison gas attack from the air against one of the German submarines.

Under present plans, the ship to be gassed will have a crew aboard. Non-explosive bombs filled with "tear gas" will be dropped, and every man on board the vessel will be required to keep within the protected areas and wear a gas mask.

Officers of the chemical warfare service believe that by using a gas of intolerable concentration, that is of sufficient strength to incapacitate, but not to kill, the service can prove to the world that gas is a necessary part of modern warfare.

Discards Boxing And Divorce Items

Editor of a Day Kills Sensational News and Reduces Size of Heads in Paper.

Denver, May 18.—Newspaper stories of sensational type were sent to the waste basket today by the Rev. W. H. Wray Boyle, pastor of Central Presbyterian Church, during a one day editorship of the Denver Post. He was invited to take actual charge of the newspaper for one day, following a sermon criticizing newspapers and the manner of displaying news.

Dr. Boyle took his place at a desk in the Post this morning and supervised all news printed in today's issue. Among news stories the minister bade off were those on the Sullivan and Cooke divorce cases in New York. All items relating to boxing were eliminated from the sport page, while "Casey at the Bat" was reprinted.

Page one was given over to a two column editorial on "The Ethics of an Editor," an appreciation by Dr. Boyle of interviews with prominent attorneys urging improvement of jury system now prevailing in courts.

The largest headlines on the first page were of two columns. No type larger than 36 point was used.

POSSESS GOOD HEALTH By Looking After THE BOWELS

A close motion of the bowels, once or twice a day, should be the rule of every one, as half the life of the body is passed in the bowels.

When the bowels are allowed to become constipated, the stomach goes out of order, and the liver does not do its work properly on account of backing the bile so that it does not pass through the bowels, but is allowed to get into the blood, thus causing a poisoning of the whole system.

Persons would escape constipation, sick and bilious headaches, heartburn, floating spots before the eyes, coat of tongue, foul breath, the nasty irritating, bleeding itching and protruding piles, you should keep your liver stirred up by the use of Milburn's Laxative Pills.

These pills, being purely vegetable, keep your liver working actively, helping it to remove its proper functions, and thereby removing the bile that is circulating in the blood and poisoning the whole system.

Mrs. H. Barrows, Bedford, N. S., writes: "I was troubled with sick headaches and constipation. One day a friend told me of Milburn's Laxative Pills. I got two and found they did me a world of good. I have been free from all these troubles since I began taking them. I have been a sufferer from constipation for many years, but conditions on both sides of the Atlantic are now reported to be steadily growing better."

"Omotokyo" Cult Had Many Followers

Japanese Are Astounded by Revelations from Seizure of Temple by Police.

Tokyo, May 18.—Revelations of the work carried on by the "Omotokyo" cult which began when the police raided the headquarters of the organization at Ayabe, continue to astound the people of the empire. Newspapers accuse leaders of the cult of aspiring to set up an "Omotokyo" dynasty, to which all Japanese would flock with the hope of attaining world dominion.

In the secret passage leading from the temple of the organization at Ayabe to the residence of Watanabe Deguchi, leader of the society, the police discovered a collection of portraits of Deguchi wearing a costume resembling that usually seen on the image of Amaterasu, the Sun Goddess, the traditional grand ancestor of the Japanese imperial family. It is alleged that in the temple were found crypts in which were placed the bodies of those who were slain for betraying the secrets of the organization.

Unspeaking Crimes. It is declared that "unspeaking crimes" were committed by members of the cult, who were said to have bordered on fanaticism in their zeal. Carloads of alleged sedition literature have been seized, including a famous volume bearing the title of Fire. This volume is interpreted as embodying projects for a social upheaval of "divine nature" and incompatible with the present government of Japan.

It is said that the followers of "Omotokyo" numbered 500,000. When the police seized the collection of pebbles representing the divinity of the organization, a band of the faithful clenched their fists in fury, declaring the act of the officers to be sacrilegious.

An Osaka newspaper owned by Deguchi has issued an extra edition today, in which the collection of pebbles representing the divinity of the organization, a band of the faithful clenched their fists in fury, declaring the act of the officers to be sacrilegious.

The chemical warfare service and the war department are co-operating in conducting experiments in the use of toxic gases at sea and in building up adequate defenses to protect American sailors in the next war. As a result of these experiments, important changes may be made in the design of new ships and of some already under construction, but not yet far advanced.

Greek Reverses Have Caused Much Alarm

Blame Placed on Head of M. Gournaris, Minister of War in Greek Cabinet.

Paris, May 18.—Reports received here from Athens show that the disaster suffered by the Greek army in Turkey caused pessimism and alarm among all classes of Greeks.

When the news was received that the Greek casualties had mounted among the thousands (4,000) according to late reports, there was an outburst of fierce criticism by the adherents of M. Venizelos, former premier, against Demetrios Gournaris, then minister of War and adviser to the King, and since made Premier, for plunging the country into war at a time when its treasury was empty.

The Athens reports show that the order for mobilization was not received with enthusiasm. Indeed, it was a shock to the Greek people, who long ago reached the point of saturation on war and who felt that the recent London Conference had precluded further military activity.

Not Anxious To Fight. The men are going to the front in obedience to superior authority rather than to spontaneous patriotic ardor. The working classes, already weighed down with the fearful cost of life, are asking themselves how their families are going to fare while the breadwinners are at the front. Certainly the government has no funds to take care of them.

Placed with their first victories, which according to impartial military observers, were secured only because the Turks offered no resistance, the Greeks saw Ankara within easy reach. There was even talk of a march to Constantinople. Popular sentiment urged King Constantine to go to Smyrna at the head of his army and Prince Andrew at the head of the navy.

There was a confident feeling that the Hellenic forces would annihilate Kemal within a fortnight. No thought apparently was given to the question of finances. The necessary funds, the government assured the people, would be forthcoming from England or America.

But the Greek casualties have had a sobering effect on the people. They have been made conscious of the fact that the Klonist army is something more than groups of scattered regulars and irregulars recruited from villages within the zone of operations. They now manifest feelings of deep anxiety. If their army fails, they will put the blame at the door of M. Gournaris.

Shipping Outlook Bright. Shipping men report that word from various sources indicate a brighter outlook for the future. For the past fortnight freights have been offering more freely, although there has been no change in rates. Both imports and exports are improving. It is believed that the improvement is due to better sales and more stable prices than have prevailed during recent months.

Although the shipping made in April was considerably better than in February, or March, when the depression was badly felt, but conditions on both sides of the Atlantic are now reported to be steadily growing better.

Saloon 'Phone Booth Had A Little Spigot

New York, May 18.—Evidence that a telephone booth in the Bowery saloon of John Dowling was equipped with a spigot was presented to the grand jury today.

It was charged Dowling's customer, presenting a dollar, would ask for change to use the telephone. Change consisted of a nickel and a glass. They served themselves.

A policeman who went into the booth to telephone noticed the spigot and turned it on.

The district attorney's office said today about 300 violations of the state dry law have been presented to the grand jury, 200 indictments have been found and 1600 cases still wait presentation to the grand jury.

A Lesson To Him. Battered ten feet into a mangle, and then abandoned it. Another took it up and at eleven feet struck gold. When Battered heard the news, he exclaimed: "I'll never leave another claim until I've gone a foot further!"

Bulgaria Summons Men To Road Work

New Law Compels All to Do Certain Amount of State Work Each Year.

Sofia, May 18.—All classes of society in Bulgaria had been called upon to fill their civil duty before the provision of compulsory labor law, which was adopted a year ago.

The law provides that men who had attained the age of twenty, and girls who were 16 years of age, were to be called upon for a certain amount of compulsory labor for the state. Men were to work 12 months, and women six months, and none was allowed to emigrate until duties imposed had been performed.

The number of persons coming within the scope of the law was 700,000, of whom 600,000 have been at work, the labor done comprising road making and the building of schools and reading rooms.

At Sarghara, several villages united in the work of draining a pond. Two bridges were built over the Topolnitsa river, while at Etropole an aqueduct had been prepared, several streets paved and four bridges constructed.

Actress Is Having Her Legs Tied Up

Chicago, May 18.—Short skirts and bowed legs make a poor combination. So Mrs. Edna Hodges, wife of Jimmy Hodges, a well-known actor, is having her legs straightened. Her legs were broken by Dr. Max Thorek at the American hospital here.

Six weeks Mrs. Hodges will be forced to stay in bed, and then six weeks will be spent in a wheel chair. Mrs. Rebecca Newcomer, Williamsport, Pa., mother of the patient, was with her daughter during the operation. Hodges is in Norfolk, Va.

"I am going to give my husband the surprise of his life when I get out of here," Mrs. Hodges said. "I am going to have my picture taken in a one-piece bathing suit."

A nurse told Mrs. Hodges she had lost her color, due to the operation. "You can buy color—but legs, no," Mrs. Hodges replied.

Kickless Skirts Wins Freedom For Woman

Proves to Judge She Could Not Assault Neighbor With Her Foot.

Boston, May 18.—An unsuccessful kick won an assault case for Mrs. Angeline Pulcari in the municipal court. Mrs. Rosina Rosetti, a former tenant of Mrs. Pulcari's, complained to Judge Crook that during an argument before she moved Mrs. Pulcari kicked her.

This charge made Mrs. Pulcari smile, and with the smile went a shaking of the head in dissent that made her ear-rings dance.

"That would be impossible," she interrupted. "Impossible, Judge, I have a little skirt, see, I could not kick if I desired."

Mrs. Pulcari backed away from the bench so that the court might see and swing her left foot back as far as she could and kicked vigorously. Her dainty shoe went no higher than six inches from the floor, and the court was convinced of her innocence.

Bar Teachers Who Dance; Give Reasons

Morgantown Directors Warned Action is Illegal—Adhere to Old Fashioned Principles.

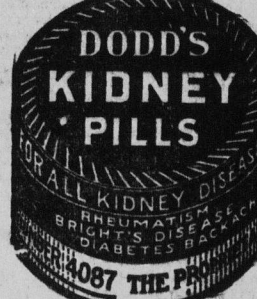

Morgantown, W. Va., May 18.—The Morgantown board of education today issued a statement giving its reasons for declining to alter its order forbidding teachers attending dances during the school year. Teachers who attend dances will not be employed next year.

The board met last night to reconsider its order at the request of the Kiwanis Club. It was informed yesterday by State Superintendent Geo. M. Ford, that "boards of education cannot legally discharge a teacher for violation of a rule against dancing and that a stipulation against dancing incorporated in a teachers' contract is void."

The board said: "There seem to be some in our city ready to surrender the faith of our fathers and give our children brass instead of gold. It may be our fathers' faith was narrow and at times intolerant, but whatever of greatness this community possesses is rooted in the moral convictions and old-fashioned principles of our fathers.

Satisfactory Behavior.

"They refrained from cheering," replied J. Fuller Gloom, "which I considered quite a compliment."

DESERTER WAS SLAIN BY WILD DOGS' LEAD

Answered Master's Will and Started to Leave Wild Companions.

WAS OVERTAKEN AND STRANGLED TO DEATH

Banker Awakened When dit Dogs Made "Raid" Home for Food.

New York, May 18.—G. Axson, assistant treasurer of the States Mortgage and Trust Company, who lives at Fort Washington, and 19th street, in a cottage with back from the Hudson River, was on the east a broad bed of ravines and rocks and stung all part of the estate. The John Rockefeller, Jr., offered to the estate a park not so long ago, was stung from sleep yesterday at dawn, when the dogs made a "raid" on the back porch and a chorus of fish howls.

The banker hurried to a window through which could be seen the back of wild land falling precipitously toward Broadway, the wilderness to be found in New York City, and a case marked and held a single fire. In a grassy clearing among boulders and brush four human yards or so below his yard eight lay in a circle, mouths slaving, eyes fixed on his house. Mr. Rockefeller recalled what he had read of and their age old custom of circling in a ring with the leader back in the center.

It was obvious that the pack of the circle of wild dogs, dogs of various breeds, were circling and the ways of ordered life on a time, but had reverted to the border of a great city to save their lives. But here he was, a man who knew where the leader was, took up a Mauser rifle, trained the window sill and estimated the drop of the high power would be at 400 yards. As he took to shoot, the leader, a big brute came bounding down the hill, gripping in his jaws a leg of which Mrs. Jones had set aside the family dinner, a cut which been set out upon the back porch covered with a linen cloth. The rumpus made by the yellow er raiding the house that had ended Mr. Jones.

Recognizes Own Teddy. His finger was stiffening to trigger when two concerns relaxed purpose. One was the unexpected to what would become of a steel bullet from a gun can drive a missile through two of oak in case he overshoot the end the bullet went singing down the road. But here he was, a man who recognized that one of the wild was, or had been, his own dog, a Boston terrier.

Teddy unaccountably disappeared year ago. Weeks were spent in looking for him, and a private detective Jimmy Gail, had been called in. There he was, a wild thing, consorting with dogs as wild as wolves. Mr. Jones knew he could not be mistaken. He put the Mauser rifle and whistled through his fingers, a the terrier had known. Teddy barked for the whistling brought to his feet as the yellow bounded into the circle. The dogs sprang up. The whole paused, gazing up at the leader, the disturbing call. The dogs loudly: "Teddy! Come, Teddy!" repeated the call. The terrier's uncertainty, his impudence to the drawn irresistibly by the remembrance. His comrades were a in motion among the rocks, n toward one of the rocky recesses which concealed an astonishing variety of wild things still ent within a city, but Teddy was up hill heartily, and something of his own dog consciousness leading him.

Seized by the Throat. The big yellow leader turned a snarl and sprang back toward straying follower. For a minute two he ran along at Teddy's side. Jones says it was plain as day was going on. The big yellow leader was ordering the terrier to the pack, commanding, threatening and the terrier was ignoring. "Then like a flash the leader bounded into the circle. The dogs sprang up. The whole paused, gazing up at the leader, the disturbing call. The dogs loudly: "Teddy! Come, Teddy!" repeated the call. The terrier's uncertainty, his impudence to the drawn irresistibly by the remembrance. His comrades were a in motion among the rocks, n toward one of the rocky recesses which concealed an astonishing variety of wild things still ent within a city, but Teddy was up hill heartily, and something of his own dog consciousness leading him.
