STRING MEETING AT FORT WILLIAM

(From Telegraph Man on Tour.)

Fort William, July 2.—The initial meeting of Premier Laurier's western tour took place last night and was in every respect a grand beginning to this renewed conquest of the west. The place of meeting was the rink at Fort William, and attendance probably between 2,500 and 3,000.

The Party Which Does Things

We have learned already that they do not take their politics so seriously here as in the west as we in the maritime provinces are wont to do. There is no nervousness and sharp division of feeling. They would say themselves they are too busy to get excited over politics; we might call it a phase of the general indifference to politics but the pursuit of the dollar certainly they have for the parties is the way they can make of them.

The west wants many things done for it, and if it gives its support to the Liberal party it is doing it because it is a party which does things. Here at the head of the great lakes they want help very decidedly, and although the twin cities of Port Arthur and Fort William cannot agree on anything else, they are at one on the question of government development of their waterways.

This opening address of the premier's was important in several respects. It set at ease the minds of the people of the twin cities with regard to the policy of the government towards their development. Both he and the minister of railways stated emphatically that the importance of these places in the great scheme of Canadian transportation was such that their development was its obligation. They were the gate of the traffic of the west which was now merely in its infancy. In a few years the west end of the west would be a billion bushels one, and it would make a beeline for Fort William and Port Arthur.

The minister of railways dealt with several phases of the Transcontinental railway question. He made the statement, advisedly he said, that in a few years the Canadian Northern would run from ocean to ocean. The National Transcontinental would be one of the finest roads in the world when completed. No other transcontinental road in America approached it in the matter of low gradients. While the grade of even so great a road as the C. P. R. were about one and one-half per cent, those of the N. T. R. were, except in two places, and going west six-

HON. GEO. P. GRAHAM, MINISTER OF RAILWAYS, IN CHARACTERISTIC ATTITUDE, SPEAKING ON THE GREAT TRANSPORTATION PROBLEM AT FORT WILLIAM.

"You have the man to do the work." It is a characteristic document and interesting word picture of the premier drew of Fort William as it was 100 years ago. He imagined the Lords of the North—the McKenzies and McTavishes, and other great names—gathered here at Fort William, as was their custom, for the yearly meeting at which the past year's work was gone over and plans for the coming year discussed. We could see the rough and ready, the unshaven and bearded men, the factors gathered around making merry on fire which they were unused all through the year—the French and Spanish wines, and their wild imaginations they could not have begun to conceive what Fort William should be in 1910, and it was almost as if we were to-day to conceive the expansion of it in the near future.

PURIFIED HIS BLOOD

Dr. Morse's Indian Root Pills Healed Mr. Wilson's Sores. When the sewers of the body—bowels, stomach and skin ducts—get clogged up, the system is unwell, and the blood is impure and frequently sores break out over the body. The way to heal them, as Mr. Richard Wilson, who lives near London, Ont., found, is to purify the blood. He writes: "For some time I had been in a low, depressed condition. My appetite left me and I soon began to suffer from indigestion. Quite a number of small sores and blotches formed all over my skin. I tried medicines for the blood and used many kinds of ointments, but without satisfactory results. What was wanted was a thorough cleansing of the blood, and I looked about in vain for some medicine that would accomplish this. At last Dr. Morse's Indian Root Pills were brought to my notice, and they are one of the most wonderful medicines I have ever known. My blood was purified in a very short time, sores healed up, indigestion vanished. They always have a place in my home, and are looked upon as the family remedy." Dr. Morse's Indian Root Pills cleanse the system thoroughly. Sold by all dealers at 25c a box.

navy will fight for Great Britain, we will have one navy and the King of England will be its king.

Premier's Golden Phrasing

The premier made an announcement which will perhaps do something to remove the perturbation which the present tour is causing in Conservative circles. There will be no election this fall! There have been an election, why should we have another now? There will be no election until the time expires according to law.

The object of the present journey over the four provinces of the west was that the premier and his colleagues may become better acquainted with the new people in those provinces, to extend a welcome to the new citizens. Western Canada, and it would be the privilege, as it was the duty of himself and colleagues to renew their acquaintance with the people and conditions.

The premier's address closed with a characteristically eloquent reference to the late king and the new, which drew the audience very close to him. It was that touch of Laurier oratory and golden phrasing which men hope it may be their good fortune to hear when they know that Laurier is to speak. It left his hearers thoroughly satisfied with his leader, their country and themselves.

The speech of the minister of railways was also a notable effort, and it contained much meat for the reporters. With characteristic mindfulness of his old confederates, he had prepared a number of copies of this portion of his address relating to the Quebec bridge, which was really live news. Some statistics of a comparative nature regarding this structure are given hereafter. Speaking here, where the question of transportation is of so vital importance, it naturally formed the keynote of all the speakers.

Roblin Gets Answer

The arrival of the Laurier party came at an exciting and interesting moment. When Premier Roblin learned that the Liberal party was in the west, he hurriedly brought on before there might be an opportunity to hear the other side of a very interesting question, the presentation of a bill for an entirely Roblin point of view, has been well worked as political capital.

Here's the Type

"J. J. Carrick, M. P. P., came into Port Arthur about seven years ago, from Terre Haute, Indiana. He is a man of considerable capital, possessed of a good 'jolly' manner, free-handedness, abundant good-nature, and 'hot air.' There is a very large proportion of the west capitalized entirely on 'hot-air,' who make no bones about confessing that they are artists of that type. Carrick did not teach school long; the profession is a perfectly honorable one in the west, as elsewhere, and rather more lucrative; but the sage references made by Falstaff to honor applied perfectly to Carrick. Honor cannot 'set a leg' and what he more to do, instead of 'pull' one. So Carrick early left the profession.

The Quebec Bridge

Much had been made, by the opposition, of the Quebec bridge disaster, when it was said would mean a serious delay in the completion of the road. Nothing of the kind would happen. The bridge formed no part of the plan of the road; it was not in the contract and had been begun long before the road. It was to have been built, anyway, and the company had been told that if the bridge should not be ready when the road was, that trains would be ferried across at Quebec. There has been serious trouble over the bridge, although the best engineering skill available had been engaged in its construction, and it had fallen; but he would make the prediction that the new bridge would be completed and it would not fall. It would be the greatest structure of the kind ever erected in the history of the world. He then gave some interesting comparisons with the bridge of Fort William, already referred to.

Canada still wants more railways, and we shall build more, and more, and more, until we get all we need. We shall not be satisfied, however, until we can carry not only all our own goods, but can be kind and affectionate to our neighbor to the south and carry some of his goods also.

Winnipeg, July 12.—The west is the land of "hustle." Westerners are "hustlers," they say so themselves, and it is one claim, at least, which they loudly boast of. Whether hustling is an unmitigated virtue or not is a matter about which there might be easily two opinions when we come to regard some of its effects upon both the hustler and the hustled. It is particularly so at all events, it is from this spirit that much of the material prosperity of the west springs.

and he is the largest advertiser in each of them. His advertising is not dignified. He does not say anything about lots "close in," "good buys," or use any of those other abstractions of the western real estate dealer; but he has every one reading his ads, and tucked away down at the bottom in an obscure place is a concise reference to the property he is pushing for the time being.
