S. F. Drachuk of Hamilton met a weeping stranger. The weeping stranger claimed to have $1,000 that he must get into safe keeping immediately. If Drachuk would show he was a man of means he would leave the $1,000 with him. To prove he was a man of means Drachuk drew $500 from his bank, and now the stranger has it. He is still a stranger to Drachuk and to the police.

Four men who were playing checkers in the basement of the public library, Brantford, were overcome by escaping gas from the furnace and had to be carried out unconscious.
