

town! There, there are the things; take care of them. It's very curious you should be going. Good bye!"

Blanche hesitated, and held back. De Lisle left the chamber, and came hurriedly upon the listener.

"Ah!" he said, "another parting! Adieu!" And he left the place, apparently in great good humour.

END OF VOL. II.