Planning on attending LBR next year? If you are, then you'll be lucky enough to share your house with one of the two Resident Fellows on the university's campus.

Ann Cameron lives on the second floor of the spacious and elegant Lord Beaverbrook Residence. She serves as a resource person to the student population, to enhance international, cultural and social environments. Ann works as a professor in the Psychology department and continues her research with young children, in both the fields of violence in the school system and interpersonal and communication skills. Cameron began her scholastic career at the University of British Columbia, where she obtained both her Bachelor of Arts degree and her Masters in Arts, with honours in Psychology. Ann went on to obtain her Ph.D in Psychology at the University of London, in London, England. Cameron worked for a short time in the Psychology department at Dalhousie University and has since spent the last twenty to thirty years experiences and assets. The Residence

Cameron comments on the mature enviroment of LBR, "We have mature students intermingled with more junior students, this creates a mature enviroment, which is very much a The job of Resident Fellow entails a large number of tasks."The Resident Fellow is typically a faculty member, who has involvements in research and teaching, with as much community involvement as possible," states Cameron.

Cameron's large wooden door is always open for students to pop by and talk about academics, personal matters, simply to chat about house affairs, or to look for change for the washing machine. projects and spirit oriented events "The house held a coffee house in November. Some students performed and others spent the day in my kitchen baking fabulous goodies and mocha cider. Other students worked on promoting the event and selling tickets. By the end of it all, all most the entire house had become involved in the endeavour," laughs Cameron.

Ann Cameron fully enjoys her present position as Resident Fellow of LBR and looking back, "would do it all again." Cameron looks back on many memories and takes the most pleasure in reminiscing about student gatherings which she held in her apartment. "I fondly remember students sitting by my warm fireplace chatting with senior creative artist, Molly Bobak. Bobak did a lot of the paintings in my apartment. That just showed how artistically and culturally mature these students are."

Cameron is unsure of exactly what the future holds in store for her, but is confident that she will re-apply for the position in 1998. Cameron, a mother, grandmother and teacher of all ages, expresses great happiness in holding the position of Resident Fellow. "It's wonderful, I love it."

A co-ed replied to a request for guinea pigs for a Sociology experiment and was asked this question: "Do you believe in God?" "Yes," she answered. "Well," replied her interrogator, "I'm glad to see you're a non-conformist." Does this exchange illustrate a trend

At the end of the day, an apres-ski event was held at the Hilltop Pub, where the totals were announced and prizes awarded during dinner. Snow White and the Seven Unconventional Dwarfs were awarded a prize for having the most team spirit, due largely to their valiant but rotten attempt at the Super Slider Snow Slalom. When asked why he contributed largely to his team's last place finish in the slalom, Jody McDonnell replied that he had "never Beaver-bogganned before."

This is your Campus Editor again (I always have something to say). I just wanted to say thank you to everyone who came up to me and told me that they liked last weeks Flashbax. I had a lot of fun doing this column last week and it makes me happy that people are enjoying it. However, I also want to say that this week's column is obviously based on a more serious nature than last week's. All I can say about that is that it's important to me to show the full spectrum of the 50's, 60's and 70's thought pattern. I hope that you continue to enjoy reading Flashbax. If you have any suggestion or questions please feel free to e-mail me, Dennis German, at bruns@UNB.CA.
