Saint Catherine.

THE DANGERS OF "THE WORLD.—St. Catherine of Sweden, daughter of the world-renowned St. Bridget, was trained to virtue from her very childhood by this most pious mother. She resolved from her early years to belong to God alone, and was successful in inspiring the husband whom her father insisted on giving her, with the like love of continence where. with the like love of continence where-with her own heart was captivated. Her stay in the city of Rome, whither she had repaired after her marriage to join her mother, who was visiting the tombs of the apostles, well-nigh proved detrimental to her. The dissipation of that great town, in conjunction with a style of living and in conjunction with a style of living and manners so different from those of Sweden, inspired her with a love of the world and a distaste for the things of Heaven; she would certainly have relinquished her practices of piety, had not her mother, availing herself of her privilege as a parent, recurred to rigorous measures in order to call her to herself. Her virtue even had been exposed to dangers, which served

There are no wonders that Faith cannot accomplish. Our Lord has promised to the faithful that he who hath faith can remove mountains. Amongst a host of examples, the following confirms these comforting words. A pious solitary, named Benedict, had constructed a hermitage in the Campagna of Rome, at about twelve leagues from that town, there to devote himself solely to prayer and the labour of his hands. Having been discovered towards 543 by an emissary of Totila, chief of the Goths, who was a follower of Arianism and the master of Italy, he was urged to embrace Arianism. The holy hermit repelled with horror such a proposition. The Goths, in order to be revenged, set fire to his hermitage; the flames made great havoc around, but the There are no wonders that Faith cannot flames made great havoc around, but the hermitage itself remained intact. More enraged than ever, they cast the hermit into a flaming furnace; on opening the door of the furnace on the ensuing day, the holy Confessor was found safe and sound, to their utter wonderment. History does not record the exact period when his death occurred.

MORAL REFLECTION .- "Faith," says St. Paul, "conquereth kingdoms, quencheth the violence of fire, recovereth strength from weakness, becometh valiant in war, raiseth the dead to life." Let us be instant in craving it from God.—(Heb. xi.

"And I," answered the holy confessor of the faith, "thank my God for being blind, so as not to behold such a monster." The emperor, all enraged, had him thrown into the Tiber. But the divine light, which has so frequently made known the bodies of the martyrs, shone around his body. It was taken up by a pious widow named Can-dida, and interred with Christian rites.

HER MAJESTY'S INFORMERS.

The special Irish correspondent of Redpath's Weekly writes:

"The papers here are publishing lists of sums said to have been given to informers and others concerned in the Invincible trials. These lists are widely incorrect. For instance, Detective Superintendent Mallon is set down as having got £1,000, four of his assistants £100 each, Michael Kavanagh, the carman, informer, £500—and so cn. I have it on the best authority that what Mallon and his assistants got for their special services in working up that what Mallon and his assistants got for their special services in working up the case against the Invincibles is just nothing; which Michael Kavanagh, when he went aboard the vessel that conveyed him to foreign parts unknown, had exactly £27 10s. in his pocket. His passage money had, of course, been paid, and his outfit provided out of the lalance of the £50 allotted to him. The Gladstone government is wonderfully economical in its dealings with the Irish, nor can it overcome its parsimony even in tenderness to come its parsimony even in tenderness to informers whom it uses and then casts aside. From the cost of Kavanagh's pas-to call her to herself. Her virtue even had been exposed to dangers, which served as a still more timely warning. From that moment she regained her habitual piety, accompanied her mother to the Holy Land, never more left her, and did not fail in her duty up to the time of her death, which happened in 1382. She sometimes remained whole days and nights absorbed in prayer or in an ecstasy of divine love, without being conscious of what was passing around her.

Moral Reflection.—Whoever has to dwell in the world, stands in need of great prudence; the Holy Scripture itself assures us that—"The knowledge of the holy is prudence."—(Prov. ix. 10.)

There are no wonders that Faith cannot accomplish. Our Lord has promised to his country's good. The happy pair are well mated, for the lady in the case, having had her suspicions aroused by words let fall by Smith in all a lover's trusting confidence, gave private information to the police which set them on the track of her present husband, and which indeed would probably have led to his sudden death at the hands of the hangman Mar-wood if he had not saved his neck by

Good Night.

Good night! we answer back and smile, And kiss the drooping eyes, But in our trembling hearts the while The wistfal queries rise:

Ancient wisdom tells us that curses are like chickens; and a peculiarity shared by both compared subjects completes the pro-verb and furnishes a heading for our discourse. For years and years, decade after decade, we Catholics have had to bear the maledictions of the Puritan Pharisees. Those choice specimens of mankind, as they considered themselves, stood in the high places of the synagogue, and, as they cast their eyes. high places of the synagogue, and, as they cast their eyes upon the poor publicans (Catholics) outside, took joy in repeating the proud prayer: "We thank Thee, O Lord, that we are not such as these." Such as these, indeed!—these priest-led, groveling, immoral, scandalous Papists! nay, these children of the vile enchantress, these men of blood, these lust-loving, dust-lighting Romanists these sons of Belia! dust-licking Romanists, these sons of Belial! Out upon them. They have the seal of Satan and the stamp of damnation upon them. All of our Praise-God Barebones, and Rev. Amen Halledujahs, and Luther Knockpopes have olfactory nerves of such power and delicacy that they can detect, on the very persons of these Romish corrupters, the smell of fire and the taint corrupters, the smell of fire and the taint of the charnel-house.

It was in this spirit that they concocted books and cooked statistics, showing that the mystic Babylon was decaying, disintegrating, going to pieces from mere rottenness; that Catholic countries were ten times as immoral as Protestant, besides being backward, uncivilized, nay, barbarous and savage; that monks were lazy, that priests were wicked and tyrannical, that convents were dens of infamy. Then that convents were dens of infamy. Then, again, after this light artillery had played again, after this light artillery had played havoc in our ranks, as they supposed, they ground out long controversies and sleep-compelling disquisitions on the prophetical parts of Scripture—a heavy artillery indeed, whose ammunition was expended on the airy imaginings of anti-Christs, Men of Sin, Scarlet Women, etc. And all for this, that, by the violation of every natural tie, and the trampling under their hoofs of every true sentiment, and the hooding of their eyes to every ray of light, they might perpetuate the reign of that Protestantism in which they found their profit.

But, O wondrous Providence, the tools cusations and prophecies it spit upon others realized in itself. It is decaying and disintegrating; it is immoral, if we may trust statistics of divorce and profligacy, which Protestant ministers have not been backward in furnishing and commenting upon, since the conscience of the country has been roused; godly Connecticut and pions Massachusetts offer now to fuel, cure bad breath and rescue oratory from the swamp into which the state Legislature had consigned it.

"Werry well," said the president as the judge sat down; "we will now listen to some oratory from Brudder Chewso on de pertinent subjick of divorce."

The judge arose, removed his coat, pushed up his sleeves, cleared his throat with a sound like a tin pan rolling along a gravelled roof, and began.

tieut and pious Massachusetts offer now to public curiosity dens of such revolting infamy as were never dreamed of by your Maria Monks in their maddest visions. And then, to cap the climax, they give us Theodore-Parkers and Henry Ward Beechers, who explain away the Christian religion entirely, and are insomuch anti-Christs as they deny the divinity of Christ. Having drawn out the parallel thus far, we leave it to be considered.

The Bad and Worthless The Bad and Worthless are never imitated or Counterfeiter. This is especially true of a family medicine, and it is positive proof that the remedy imitated is of the highest value. As soon as it had been tested and proved by the whole world that Hop Bitters was the purest, best and most valuable family medicine on earth, many imitations sprung up and began to steal the notices in which the press and people of the country had expressed the ery indeed, whose ammunition was expended on the airy imaginings of anti-Christs, Men of Sin, Scarlet Women, etc. And all for this, that, by the violation of every natural tie, and the trampling under their hoofs of every true sentiment, and the hooding of their eyes to every ray of light, they might perpetuate the reign of that Protestantism in which they found their profit.
