

FOR HOUSEHOLD ACCIDENTS

Zam-Buk is so Very Useful

Read How Beneficial it Proved in this Case.

Mrs. H. Sawyer, of Keene, Ont., writes: "My husband is engaged on a farm, and one day, while chopping wood, the toe of the axe broke and fell upon his foot, cutting a nasty gash. The wound was so bad that we first thought we would have to get a doctor, but we finally decided to dress the cut with Zam-Buk."

"Well, the Zam-Buk treatment proved a great success. It not only eased the pain, but it prevented any inflammation; and right from first applying Zam-Buk, the cut began to heal. It is now completely healed, and my husband says he will never be without a box of Zam-Buk in the house, for we are sure it saved us a great deal of expense."

Over and over again Zam-Buk has been proved to be the worker's best remedy. As soon as applied to a cut, a burn, a scald or any skin injury, it relieves the pain and it sets up healing. It also prevents blood-poisoning or inflammation. It is a sure cure, too, for eczema, piles, ulcers, old wounds, bad leg, ringworm, scald sores, festering, running sores, eruptions, cold sores, chapped hands, etc. Its absolute purity, also, makes it the ideal balm for babies. Zam-Buk Soap should be used along with the balm for washing all sores and places. This soap will be found excellent for baby's bath, even where the bath is not being used.

All druggists and stores sell Zam-Buk at 50c box, and Zam-Buk Soap at 25c tablet, or post free from Zam-Buk Co., Toronto, upon receipt of price. Refuse harmful substitutes.

SALT SUPERSTITIONS.

Painter of "Mena Lisa" First to Put On Canvas. It is a curious fact that from the earliest times, many superstitions have clung about the use of salt. There is much evidence in Holy Writ for ceremonial uses of it. The Mosaic law commands that every oblation of meat offering shall be seasoned with salt, a command that is given, with variations, in various books of the Bible, such as Leviticus 2, 10, and Ezekiel xvi, 4. In the old days salt was put into a child's mouth in baptism and in some countries to this day the custom is followed of ward off the evil spirit.

Home-kept salt divines. The old Teutonic races looked upon salt springs as holy and worshipped them, runs an in Ireland it was for long the custom to place a pewter plate containing salt upon the heart of the corpse until buried. Then with coals and holy water it was thrown into the grave. Of the very many superstitions touching salt, the most familiar is, of course, that which holds it unlucky to spill it. An origin has been alleged for this in the Bible, "Last Supper" where, at the side of Judas, is represented an overturned salt vessel. It seems, however, to be a fact that this superstition dates farther back. There is evidence to show that, when the Romans for Roman sacrifices were led to death with salt upon their heads, it was regarded as the very worst of omens should they shake it off.

PURE PURITY

It is well known—and proved by Government analysis—that the sugar of superior purity is St. Lawrence Sugar. And at the same time has double the sweetening strength of other sugars. Compare it. ST. LAWRENCE SUGAR REFINING CO., LIMITED, MONTREAL.

TO AVOID A COLD. With the sudden fall of the temperature persons run a great risk of catching cold. There is one simple way of avoiding colds—keep your mouth shut while out of doors. The man or woman who comes out of an overheated room, especially late at night, and breathes through the mouth, will either catch a bad cold or irritate the lungs sufficiently to cause annoyance and unpleasantness. Chills are often the result of people talking freely while out of doors, just after leaving a room full of hot air, and theatre-goers who discuss and laugh over the play on their way home are inviting illness.

REMARKABLE SURGERY.

Surgery has taken another advance step at the Johns Hopkins Hospital, where recently two or three patients suffering from tuberculosis of the knee have been cured after the infected joints were cut away and substituted by the same parts of a body of a patient in whom the joint had died from an accident a few hours before.

MILLIONS OF BIBLES.

Since the foundation of the British and Foreign Bible Society in 1804, 22,000,000 copies of the Scriptures have been issued, of which over 12,000,000 have been in English.

MARCUS AURELIUS SAID:

"A wrong-doer is often a man that has left something undone, not always be that hath done something. A fresh man's head may be as hard as any hickory beam but if he has a husky frame he'll make the football team."

"Don't you ever get homesick?" asked the domestic man. "No," replied the traveller. "I'm never home long enough."

"Some people never make a stand so long as they can get it."

ITALIAN TRIALS.

The reports in American papers of the trial of the Camorristi at Viterbo have made many people wonder if there is any system at all about criminal trials, and if there is, what the system is like. There is a system, and a very simple one, though utterly different from that which governs procedure in American or English courts, says an exchange.

The trial takes place before three Judges and a jury, to which are added a certain number of extra jurors who are sworn and are present in court to take the place in the jury box of any juror who may in the course of the trial be incapacitated from further service. The depositions of all the witnesses have been taken in writing and signed before the trial begins. Each of the Judges has a copy of these before him. The prosecutor and the counsel for the accused furnish the court a list of the witnesses they desire called, and these are summoned all by the court, which has the power to punish non-attendance.

The first thing that happens when the trial begins is the questioning of the accused by the presiding Judge. In Italy, as in most of Continental Europe, a man accused of a crime is considered by the law to be the very best and wisest and own guilt or innocence. In England and America the accused need not testify unless he chooses to do so. It is the first and most important witness.

The accused is allowed the widest scope in defending himself. He has the right to offer anything he can in the way of justification or palliation, even hearsay evidence is admissible. The Judge has absolute discretion as to what testimony he may receive and what to credit, and unfairly would be an object of execration on the part of one Judge is possible, but there are always the other two Judges on the bench with him, and they are a perfect check against unfairness.

When the accused has given his testimony he is confronted personally with the principal witness against him. Strictly speaking the prisoner has no right to interrupt his accuser, while the accuser is telling his story, but in practice the Judge permits the confrontation and debate between accuser, accused and Judge, the latter giving the accused the widest scope to demonstrate his innocence. A LOVELY $8 CRY.

"My wife had a three-minute cry the other day that cost $8," said the man, "but she says she got her money's worth, and I guess she did. It was her birthday day, and in a generous spirit bettering the day I had arranged that she and the old lady should have a little chat over a dead secret. I had made all the plans on my own initiative, and the call came to her as a complete surprise. I answered it myself.

"Helle," said I, "what do you think? You insisted on talking to you."

"She nearly fainted," she said, "and she slumped into the receiver, and then began to cry. With the repetition of the occasional repetitions of 'Oh, mother,' that was all that she did for three minutes. I had to leave her afterwards that her mother's vocabulary was equally limited. Personally I considered the interview a failure, but my wife insists that both she and her mother had one of the loveliest experiences of their lives."

THE ARTIST ANSWERED.

The artist was painting—sunset, red with blue streaks and green dots. The old music at a respectful distance, was watching.

"All," said the artist, looking up suddenly, "periods in your face. Nature has opened her sky pictures page by page. Have you seen the lambent flame of fire leaping across the liquid sea of red-stained suppurous insects floating in the lake of fire in the west; the ragged clouds of midnight black as a raven's wing blotting out the stars, the moon?—" "No," replied the rustic, sharply; "not since I gave up drink."

Fur Hand-Bags.

Hand-bags of fur recall old times with a vengeance only in so far as mere sound is concerned, for the new bags have very little in common with the old seal skin affairs, which somehow one usually associates with the shabby and semi-bald appearance which they frequently wore before being discarded. Ermine figures most prominently in the new bags, although they are obtainable in many of the costlier furs.

New Epergnes.

Bohemian and cut glass are utilized in making the new epergnes highly ornamental. One delightful pattern in Bohemian glass showed the central vase tinted in a golden that blended into a green, and the three surrounding vases in varying iridescent tints that harmonized with the central vase and gilt standholder.

Seven Days' Use of Catarrhose Performed Regular Miracle.

Miss Counter's Case Proves the Wonderful Efficacy of Catarrhose in All Throat and Nose Diseases.

Windsor, Oct. 24.—Miss Counter's case will prove of great interest to everyone troubled with sore throat, bronchitis or weak lungs. When asked for a statement, Miss Counter said: "About seven years ago I contracted a heavy cold that settled on my lungs and resisted all treatment. After I had tried several doctors here and specialists in Detroit without benefit, I went to my druggist and asked him for the best remedy he had for cold on the lungs. He recommended Catarrhose, which cured by cold in a week. It brought back my voice, and I have been ever since free from my old trouble. For coughs, colds and lung trouble I am sure that Catarrhose is the best remedy. It goes right to the sore spot, gives quick relief, and makes a lasting cure."

THE SOUL'S FAREWELL TO THE BODY.

Farewell, thou, to the elements return, Woe never all conversions from this day. Back to the mother earth thou goest, thy time Has come, no power can bid thee stay. Thy reign was brief, yet in that space what wonders Thou didst accomplish. Voices will And praise thy memory; what matters it? Their praises now are all in vain.

Thou hearest not their voices, though I And weep and pray, they cannot waken thee. The seal of fate is stamped upon thy face, And on thy brow death's power to live and learn To feel bright happiness and dark despair. My promptness caused the frigidity of fate The way to do, the will to dare.

I filled thy bosom with the flames of love, The fire of genius took its root in me. I breathed thee, controlled thine every move, I breathed the breath of life in thee. And yet we needs must part; a voice on high Bid us to journey on, on different paths. Thou to thy last cold resting-place, the grave, I with by God to live and praise.

Farewell, farewell! The parting is for aye. Thou owest a debt to Nature, like all men. The body must to earth return—the soul Goes up on high, and then—what then? Nellie Spencer Hall.

Minard's Liniment Cures Colds, &c.

Gentlemen,—In July, 1905, I was thrown from a road machine, injuring my hip and back badly, and was obliged to use a crutch for 14 months. In September, 1906, Mr. Wm. Outridge, of Lechute, urged me to try MINARD'S LINIMENT, which I did, with the most satisfactory results, and to-day I am as well as ever in my life.

THE "LATEST" IN THINGS DELIGHTFUL.

It would be hard to find anything in its line more beautiful than the new embroidered Chinese grass lawn table covers. These are most handsomely embroidered with dragons, flowers, butterflies and beetles—the latter showing a marvelous amount of labor, even the details of the beetles' wings are not neglected, and they come in such gorgeous colorings that none but the Orientals could conceive them. The Japanese importations show many exquisitely embroidered and drawn thread-work linens, bedspreads and tea cloths. One of the latter was thrown a delight by a new table centre, the cream de la creme of the collections, gorgeous in its dashing and handsome combinations of the real old Nankin blue and gold yellow.

THE NEW BABY-CAR.

The importations of this article are small at present, for it is expected that American manufacturers will have a similar carriage out in the spring. The English baby-car permits of the back being lowered and the footrest raised, so as to allow the child to be wheeled in a position facing the nurse. It is finished throughout in black enamel, and the costlier model has rich effects in nickel-plated attachments. When folded it requires very little space, and, therefore, will appeal to the traveler.

HINDUS IN CANADA.

Religious Congress at Chicago Started the Immigration.

The present Hindu population of Canada numbers about 5,000, all men, for no women are allowed to accompany them to Canada or to follow them after they have arrived and settled.

These are resident entirely in British Columbia and chiefly in the cities of Vancouver and Victoria and on the farms in the neighborhood, where they are industriously employed in the many forms of manual labor, for which they appear to have both special adaptation and desire.

I am indebted to Dr. Sunder Singh, the accredited agent for these people in Canada, for the statement as to how the eyes of the Hindus were first turned toward America and Canada and the first beginnings of modern immigration from India were inspired. He says that the visit of Hindu religious reformers to the great parliament of religions which was held in Chicago in connection with the World's Fair first aroused these people to an appreciation of the advantages of Occidental civilizations and democratic institutions.

The educational work carried on by American missionaries in the high schools of India also prepared the way for a sowing of good seed in a ready soil, the fruitage of which turned the eyes of educated Hindus toward this new world. Economic conditions in India furthered a movement of emigrants to Canada in 1905, when, and continuing until 1907 not a few came to this country.—From the Victoria Daily Times.

FORESTRY IN SAXONY.

(Forestry Branch Press Bulletin No. 33.) The aggregate area of the state forest of Saxony is less than 450,000 acres.

The yield of the state forests in the year 1908 was 226 million feet board measure. In this total are comprised 85 per cent. of wood and timber fit for technical use, and 17 per cent. of firewood. The age of final maturity, beyond which trees are not allowed to remain is, for spruce, 80 years; for pine, 80 years, for all hardwoods, 120 years. The diameter of the trees, measured at four and a half feet above the ground at these ages depends entirely on the quality of the soil. It varies for spruce between eight and ten inches; for pine, between six and ten inches. The entire gross expense for forestry in 1908 was a million and a half dollars; forty per cent. for salaries; forty per cent. for logging and forest experiments; and twenty per cent. for planting and road building. The entire gross revenue from forestry in 1908 was three million, nine hundred thousand dollars, equal to five dollars and thirty-two cents net per acre.

WORLD FROM THE SIDEWALK.

Have you ever stood in the crowded street. In the glare of the fitful lamp. And marked the tread of the million feet. In their quietly musical tramp? As the surging throng moves to and fro. To mark the figures that come and go. In the ever changing scene.

Where the sinister treads with the publican proud. And the priest in his gloomy cowl. And Dives walks in the motley crowd. With Lazarus, cheek by jowl; And the daughter of toil, with her fresh young heart. As pure as her spotless name. Keeps step with the women that make their mart In the haunts of sin and shame.

How gaily steps the country lass. In the midst of the city's ills. As freshly pure as the daisied grass. That grows in her native hills. And the beggar, too, with his hungry eye. And his sad, wan face and crutch. Gives a blessing the same to the passer-by. Though he gives him nothing or much.

When night has beaten the world's tattoo. And in dusky armor dight Is trodding with echoless footsteps through. The gloom of the silent night. How many of these shall be faintly red. And will sink to slumbers sweet; Yet many shall go to a sleepless bed And never a crumb to eat!

Ah, me! when the hours go joyfully by. Through the world we stop to heed. Our brothers and sisters' despairing cry. In their woe and their bitter need. Yet such a world as the angels sought. This world of ours we call. If the brotherly love the Father taught Were felt, by each for all.

WHAT TO DO IN CASE OF FIRE

(By Prof. John Marshall.) Perhaps no single ejaculation is capable of producing so instantaneous and so widespread an alarm as the cry of "Fire!" Nor is this surprising when we remember that fire is each year responsible for an almost incalculable loss, both of life and property.

Fire drill nowadays has its place in the routine of every well conducted school; nor can it be doubted that the capacity for prompt and intelligent action thus inculcated in the minds of young persons of both sexes has, in emergency, proved the means of preventing appalling disasters. But while this capacity for combined action is desirable, there seems to be a danger of fostering it at the expense of what one may term "fire education."

A small number of men sympathizers took part in the suffragist parade in New York city, among them several members of the faculty of Teachers' College. One of these professors had the honor of leading the male contingent and of carrying a banner.

"Did you notice," he asked a friend, afterward, "what the inscription was on that banner they gave me to carry?" "No," replied his friend, "you carried it as if you were afraid some one would decipher it."

"It read," chuckled the professor, "The men vote—why not we?"—From Success Magazine.

First, I find it a great benefit to go to market as early in the morning as permissible, thus obtaining vegetables, etc., while fresh, and saving, perhaps, a pound or two waste. Another way in which I have reduced expenses is by purchasing more than one can, pound or what it might be, at a time; for instance, prunes, 15 cents per pound, or two pounds for 25 cents, and a well-known laundry soap, 5 cents per cake of seven cakes for 25 cents."
