Standeth God within the shadow keeping
And what seemed death to the natural sense was only a hiding away of the germ immortal with God standing guard, ready to bring forth in good time. The king who comes and spreads his robe of ermine over all treads, oh so gently, because of the sleeping buds and tender blossoms beneath his feet in their carthly cradle. The awakening time is not yet and they will sleep more sweetly under the ermine robe. Why do we not think of this when our hearts are heavy laden because of what has been hidden away cuives interesting bat there ives one who never loses aight of our flowers, even though they wither here in the codd blasts that come from the sea of pain and the valley of the shad ow. He knows they are only resting for a moment to come to a more marvelous growth in the gardens that are sun-kissed eternally and whose flowers know no winter time for sleep. The earth flowers come back to us from under the winter's snow—and we are el more value than they. The little bids that build their homes in the heights that build their homes in the heights and hide in the clouds come back, when they hear of the spring's new birth or resurrection—and we are of more value than they. We too, will awaken from the sleep that closes the weary eyes just long enough for the har into the eternal summer of that "Morning Land" of which it is said, "sold the depths will come forth the hidden are heal be no night there" in either any cnow, or pitiless rain is ward to be given back perfected and a setting that glows with immortality, and our flowers will bloom again when the engel's whisper awakens that still hear heavy upon you, anny you be led out from under the days past that still hear heavy upon you, anny you be led out from under the days past that still hear heavy upon you, anny you be led out from under the estands with the shadow in that glorous samilght.

What is Dyspepsia?
Qualms, nausea, longing for food yet dreading to eat. You may have the real thing, but Ferrozone will cure yow like it did S. D. Huntingdon of Hamilton, who says. I frequently was attacked with such acute dyspepsia that I thought it must be heart disease. I used Ferrozone and was cured. My digestion is in perlect order and I can eat anything to day. Nothing is as good as Errozone for dyspensia and those bothered with weak stomachs. Price 50c. at druggists.

The Late Sir H. M. Stanley on Sermons

Did you ever stop to think that During one of his addresses in Ed-

Did you ever stop to think that God hides away so many secrets under the snow of winter? Who can tell what mysteries are buried beneath the white cover, so deep, so dazzling in its parity when it first falls on the brown leaves and withered grass? It is true to its truet and never whispers of the possibilities that are being sheltered and nourished by its enfolding. The flowers are only sleeping, their tiny pulses are thin obing with life down in the darkmas, and after they awake, rested and retreashed they will bud and thosom more beautifully than before.

The bage branches of the trees bend lovingly down in a feeble attempt to protect the little sleeping blossom and the wind, we say, sighs mournfully as it rocks them to and fro, but it is only chanting a lullaby that is known to nature's children alone. All is quiet and peace under the snow awaiting the sound of "spring's trumpet" to awaken to a larger life and greater loveliness. So when "life's winter is past" and the snow has melted at the call of God's eternal spring what wonderful surprises await us. Life, full, free, throbbing life that shown and took out the teapops and took out the teat teapops and took out the teat teapops and the snow and t melted at the call of God's eternal through London, and you know how spring what wonderful surprises await the full, free, throbbing life that will never need to sleep again under the winter's sorrow, for "Behind the dim unknown Standeth God within the shadow keeping Watch above his own."

Mull asid to myself. "If the ministers of the Gospel only did their duty those Socialists would not be doing the other sorrows."

you, and amid the sorrows of the days past that still bear heavy upon you, may you be led out from under the shadow into that glorious sunlight, and he so inspired with hope that sorrowing and sighing shall flee away, and a quiet peace mantle your horizon, so calm and serene, perfect rest will come unto you and forever abide with you.

Some time ago a friend of mine who travels for a fleur house of Minnesota, was selling to a customer in South Dakota. After the business was transacted, the customer invited the salesman to come to the bouse and be entertained for the night.

About 11 o'clock he was shown to the parlor bedroom that he might retire. The light still burning and the mother still waiting caused no little anxiety on his part. His anxiety was nob removed until the "wee hours of the morning, when the door crashed open and a drunken son fell upon the floor. The mother dragged him to the couch and there she knell beside the body of her boy, worse than dead, and rubbed sighted and prayed until almost dawn of day. When he was 'sobered up,' she took him to his room and saw him safe if his bed.

As soon as my friend sat at the breakfast table he chided the mother for wrecking her life and ruining her health over her worthless prodigal son. 'But,' says the beart-broken unother, I am trying to stone for the sin of hy life.' 'What do you mean?' says the amazed man. 'I mean,' said the mother, 'that years ago, when that boy was a puny, weakly child, an unscrupulous doctor prescribed brandy for him, to be given to him daily from a teaspoon, I innocently followed his advice, and before he was four years old he had gotten hold of it when I was out of the room and drunk the bitted dregs,' and from that sad day to this he has been a pitiful, drunken wreck, and I, 'said the mother, brayers old he had gotten hold of it when I was out of the room and drunk the bitted dregs,' and from that sad day to this he has been a pitiful, drunken wreck, and I, 'said the mother, brayers old he had gotten hold of it when I was out of the room and drunk the bitted dregs,' and from that sad day to this he has been a pitiful, drunken wreck, and I and the mother, brayers old he had gotten hold of it when I was out of the room and drun No Need of going out of Town to this he has been a pitifal, drunken wreck, and i, said the mother, breaking down crying. feel that I, by foolishly following the advice of that physician, an units of the size of the ishly following the advice of that physician, am guilty of the crime of making a drunkard of my poor boy. The poor mother sobbed and sighed and no words seemed to have power to comfort her. What a charge that poor mother and that doctor will have to face before the judgment har of God, as that poor drunkard sen receives his deom, and then, turning to those instrumental in making him a drunkard, says, 'You are guilty of this crime.'
