TREMENDOUS LOSS

The Railway trouble going on in the United States is an example of a union trying to break a strike. It is not employers vs employees altogether this time, it is an attempt evidently of the red element endeavoring to wreck and disobey the saner, more conservative section of the workers who belong to old and established unions. The outcome from present appearances, will be the net result of the average strike, a tremendous loss of production and earning disorganization of business and traffic affecting a whole continent irritation and ill feeling between employers and employees.

The strike is said to cost the United States three million dollars a day and the workers themselves are the ones who pay most of it.

LEACOCK'S VIEWS

With the views of Prof. Stephen Leacock, as expressed in the London Times that prohibition in Canada and the United States has been an appalling failure, a good many people of reasonably sound morals will be disposed to agree. They may not go so far as Mr. Leacock and declare it an "appalling failure" but they will declare that it has not been much of a success.

It is all prohibition but it does not prohibit to the extent of its severity; nor does it prevent people of means from getting and drinking all they want.

In one own local police court the number of liquor cases of one kind and another that come up in the course of six months is quite convincing evidence that this legislation has not accomplished anything like what was expected to accomplish by its authors.

If under prohibition there could be little or no discrimination, if liquors were prohibited absolutely from coming in, then the results from the standpoint of drinking would be more apparent. As it is, however, he who wants liquor very badly can get it either by importation or from medical practitioners who have reduced the dignity of their profession by assuming the obligation of dispensing.

WOULD ABOLISH FLOGGING

TOKIO, April 15—Baron Saito, governor general of Corea, says he believes the independence movement in Corea is dying out, although he admits that the Coreans still are making secret efforts to free themselves from the Japanese rule. The baron has been in Tokio lately to urge the Japanese Diet to provide funds to enable him to abolish flogging of Coreans and substitute imprisonment as punishment.

The baron said that he was making efforts in Corea to put into effect the emperor's receipt that the Coreans be advanced politically with the ultimate object of establishing local autonomy. Coreans, he said, were being trained to conduct the public service in Corea. In addition the government will establish a railway engineering school in Seoul to teach Coreans to operate their own railways.

Manufacturing And Art Akin

A strong undercurrent is bringing art and industry together again, after a century of alienation. In the old days, they were mutually independent. The furniture-maker, the pot-and-pan maker, the weaver, the stonemason, were all craftsmen, and, in so far as they did their work well and gave it good qualities of form and color, they were artists.

Today conditions are quite different, because of the tremendous development of machinery. When the manufacturer began to realize the almost unlimited possibilities open to mechanical ingenuity, he usually forgot to provide for the thing that the machine alone can never possess—the human instinct for beauty. This gave the designing of articles of everyday use in home-building and furnishing, clothing and various other necessities over into the hands of people who had no special aptitude or taste except in a few fortunate instances.

Thus, although the purely mechanical and utilitarian manufacturers of the new countries, where art is not held of serious account, easily began to work high in the world's trade, yet the carpets, printed textiles, wallpapers, metal work, stained glass, and all such things, were contented to stay in second or third place.

It is time for this state of affairs to be changed in Canada, especially at this time when attention is rightly directed to the importance of encounging and developing home industries.

A National Industrial Art Association has been proposed. This organization would do well to assist manufacturers in obtaining competent and skilled designers, with originality, and, above all, a good understanding of technical demands and limitations. The result would be that Canadian manufactured products would begin at once to take a higher rank not only among Canadian buyers, but also in foreign markets, and particularly in the United States where the importance of Industrial Design is only now beginning to attract much attention from the manufacturers.—From 'Industrial Canada.'

JOLLIFFE—SHAPLAND

The marriage took place on Monday at Niagara Falls, Ont. of Miss Anna Elizabeth Shapland, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Shapland 116 Park St. that city, and Mr. Harold Jolliffe, son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Jolliffe of 77 Henry street St. Catharines, the ceremony being conducted at the parsonage, Morrison street Methodist church Rev. J. E. Todd officiating.

The bride was prettily attired in a navy blue travelling suit and wore a sweetly appropriate picture hat ornate with rose buds caught in net, which was interwoven with dark ribbon extended for short streamers. She carried a dainty bouquet of sunset roses intermingled with sweet peas.

The bride was attended by Miss Esther Fowler and was the recipient of many delightful gifts from her many friends in this city.

Mr. H. V. Stephens, who attended the groom, met Mr. Jolliffe while with the Canadian Overseas Forces, both being associated with the 31st Alberta Battalion.

The happy couple left for the Green City to spend their honeymoon. Upon their return Mr. and Mrs. Jolliffe will reside at Niagara Falls.
