A 6 months old baby girl was arrested at Boston, recently, by Boston police and Federal inspectors on the charge of counterfeiting. Her father, Samuel Malta, and her mother, Jennie, were also arrested, charged with passing counterfeit quarters and dimes. When the police searched the Malta house, molds and plaster casts were found, but no coins. One of the officers, who is a married man, noticed that the baby was wrapped up in a peculiar manner, and when several yards of the baby wraps were taken off it is said that nearly $200 in bad money rattled to the floor. The whole family was taken into custody the baby being included because it is Mr. Ploughman, teacher. To those alleged that she had the greater part of the incriminating evidence.

Remedies are Needed

Were we perfect, which we are not, medicines would not often be needed. But since our systems have become weakened, impaired and broken down through indiscretions which have gone on from the early ages, through countless generations, remedies are needed to aid Nature in correcting our inherited and otherwise acquired weaknesses. To reach the seat of stemach weakness and consequent digestive troubles, there is nothing so good as Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, a glycoric compound, extracted from native medicing

Fads and Fashions.

To wear with an ornate costume, a road hat bound with black velvet and covered with Irish lace stands in the irst rank.

Macrame laces are more than ever popular, and now comes along a charming little macrame belt for the white summer dress.

Very noticeable is the favor shown o touches of bright green, coral and red on dark colors, such as black, blue and seal brown. Bright touches of Chinese embroidry appear upon many of the tailornade coat and skirt costumes in serge, toweling and ratine.

Pleats are used in some of the tailored skirts, principally in the centerback; but they are so flatly pressed as to be scareely perceptible.

Smart frocks for children are us ually made with separate guimpes made of fine linen or batiste and finished at the neck with dainty turnover collars.

For dinner gowns and evening wear nothing is so popular as the lace-pure white, with one glowing note of color at the corsage

We even find the accessories of parasols, girdles, fichus and collarettes of silk are carrying out the taffeta idea.

Long lines of small, capricious bows are placed on skirts and bodices. Velvet ribbon, satin or silk are em ployed for these, with a buckle or button in the center.

The all-enveloping and disguising bell shapes in hats have given place to other hats of entirely different form, the broad, flat, picturesque hat being undeniably popular.

Tissu sponge, or Turkish toweling, now appears in many colors, but its chief use is in white summer suits, and it will to some extent supplant serge and flannel for these.

In this season's silks we find very noticeable the combination of plain with changeable, flowered with stripes bordered effects with plain and spotted panels with the one-tone silks.

A new evening wrap in taffeta, voile, chiffon or net is made sleeveless, having slits at the sides, finish ed off with a ruching, and is worn only on dressy occasions, over lingeries or evening gowns.

Among the leading colors are the various shades of tan, including champagne, hazel and straw, also nut and wood browns. Rose, Indian red. opal, limoges blue, shrimp and melon pink are the high shades.

Ruffles and flounces appear every where on frocks for every occasion. narrow edged with lace, or very deep or graduated, or pointed, or scalloped with posies and pert ribbon bows tucking them up here and there.

All of the new skirts are cut wider and yet many do not measure any more in width than those that have been smart this season. There is a little more fullness around the upper part, and no good skirt draws in around the knees.

Afternoon frocks in shot taffets silks are arranged in nine cases out of ten with fiehu bodices, draped to the figure with early Victorian deof silk, bordered with frayed-out down at sunset. He has drawn full
