

To-Day's News.

Special to Evening Telegram.

LONDON, To-day.

Herr Bernstein, a member of the German Reichstag, writing to the London Mail, gives England a plain hint in her mentioning the increase in the German army. He says not the most fiery pan-German desires another foot of French soil, but nobody can tell what will happen if France chooses to make herself willing to be the servant of others and do their dirty work. In plain English, France is to be given her choice in keeping quiet or being destroyed; while Germany realizes her ambitions to sea supremacy at the expense of England and the British Empire. Even those English liberals who are represented by the Westminster Gazette, recognize the initiative toward increased armaments. Again comes from Germany France's patriotic reply. Germany's preparations are purely defensive. The Paris correspondent of the Westminster Gazette, says, he remembers no time when young Frenchmen so much talked about war. What is happening in France to-day, is analogous to what was performed by Bismarck and his associates in the years following the battle of Sedan. The problem for France, as well as for Germany, is how to finance these swollen armaments without provoking national resentment, after momentary patriotic fever has subsided. English opinion generally is entirely sympathetic toward France. The "Fetich Parisian" says Europe is limping toward peace on crutches and especially appealing to Englishmen; it also says, France practices no policy irritating imperialism on herself to repel attack that is now menacing the frontier and her national existence. She will accept unreservedly and calmly, whatever sacrifices that may be necessary.

LONDON, To-day.

We have wound up hurriedly one session of Parliament so as to get ready for another; it begins next Monday. This huddling up of two sessions into so small a space of time is necessitated by provisions of Parliament Act which compels measures that are to pass over the heads of the House of Lords, to be carried in three sessions of Parliament. We will pass Home Rule and the Welsh Disestablishment, whether their Lordships approve or not, but we must comply with the technical rules of the Commons Parliament Act, so we had to prolong one session of Parliament thirteen months and begin the next after two days' interval. Already plans are practically complete. In passing these, two measures the second time, drastic gullotine closure proposals will be made by the Government so as to prevent the Tories from prolonging the debates with a view of obstructing the early passage of the Home Rule Bill. About the beginning of May, other gullotine closures will prepare the way for the second carrying of the Home Rule Bill after a week or two discussion. If the Lords again reject the Bill the third time, the final carrying will come in February next year, and the bill will become law with the following May. Internal conflicts in England is overshadowed by a tremendous outburst of militarism in Germany and France. Radicals and Socialists in both countries protest against this gigantic and intolerable addition to the burdens of the people. With fierce aggravation of national passions, they prophesy such things must inevitably lead to national bankruptcy or international war.

ROME, To-day.

Marked improvement is noted in the condition of Pope Pius X.; both inflammation of the throat and hoarseness being considerably diminished. The Pope himself said he felt much relieved and hoped his tyrants would allow him to resume at an early date his ordinary course of life. The attending physician, however, insist on continued rest.

OTTAWA, To-day.

The Duke and Duchess of Connaught, and Princess Patricia leave Ottawa, it is expected, during the present week; they will spend a few days in Montreal and sail for England early next week. It is likely the Duke will return in May, but will not be accompanied by the Duchess.

HULL, Eng., To-day.

The trawler "Admiral Logo," is wrecked off Roykjavik Iceland. The crew of twelve men drowned.

What Is It?

The Deputy Minister of Customs was in receipt of a message from Port-au-Port Saturday afternoon, reading as follows:—"The hull of a schooner, green painted, partly dismantled, with no one on board, in the ice off Red Island; name not yet ascertained." Can it be the schooner Merry Widow, that has been jammed in Red Bay for two months nearly? Further particulars will be anxiously awaited.

Smallpox.

A new outbreak of smallpox was reported in the city to-day. The patient is a nine-year-old boy residing at 24 Pleasant Street. Dr. Cowperthwaite, who was called to attend the youth, suspected the disease and acquainted the Health Officer, Dr. Brehm, who diagnosed the case and pronounced it smallpox, which is of a mild form. The necessary precautionary measures have been taken to prevent the disease from spreading. The boy will likely be removed to the Signal Hill Hospital this afternoon.

Perishing From Cold.

Shortly after 11 o'clock Saturday night, Constables Whalen and Martin doing duty on Water Street West, found a resident of Catalina unconscious behind the market in Steer's Cove. He evidently had been there for hours having been overcome by alcohol and being without mitts on his hands and without a cap, his hands and head were nearly frozen, while generally he was chilled to the marrow. When aroused he could not stand, and had to be driven to the station and given a good heat and warm drinks. It was some time before he was normal and had he not been discovered he must certainly have perished.

Extraordinary Revival.

London, Feb. 22.—Another extraordinary "revival" movement is reported from Wales. This time the evangelist is a collier preacher named Stephen Jeffrey, who since last Christmas has been conducting a mission at Cwmtyrch, a mining village in the Swansea Valley. He preaches in a small iron building, erected on a hillside, which is not a church, neither readings nor psalm leads. Scores of converts have been made, and there are some who declare as at previous Welsh revivals that the sick have been cured miraculously.

Jeffrey went to Cwmtyrch at Christmas from Maelgog to conduct for three days, the ordinary services in the little iron church. At his first meeting only about twenty persons were present, but the next day there were 200. Before long the meetings had to close because the people were placed almost on top of each other and the heat was unbearable. Crowds numbering 2,000 have congregated outside the tiny church.

Although day after day it poured in torrents, people have walked miles over the hills to hear preaching, and all over Wales congregations gathered in the little chapels are praying that the revival will spread. In a week or two possibly Jeffrey will be considered another Evan Roberts.

To The Boys

Aim high my boy, and strive to climb The heights where heroes stand, Whose purposes are all sublime And aspirations grand.

Each hero's life a lesson is And if you read it well, It gives you help and strength, and this is what it has to tell.

Be true; be earnest for the right In every time and place; Towards high endeavour's beacon light.

Set steadfastly your face, Be brave of heart; if sore defeat O'ertake you in the way, Then with fresh zeal and courage meet The foe another day.

The great men of the world are those Who swerved not left nor right, When base ignoble men opposed, But kept the goal in sight.

Though baffled beaten for a time, From each defeat we gain A strength that makes the strife sublime, And takes away its pain.

Be brave, be steadfast and be true; And ever, as you climb, Keep God's clear beacon light in view, And win, in his good time.

Froze a Soap Bubble.

Then Broke it in Pieces and Floated Them on Liquid Air.

A frozen soap bubble broken in two and floating like an iridescent, transparent eggshell on the surface of a vessel of liquid air was one of the marvels exhibited by Professor Dewar in a lecture before the Royal Institute of Great Britain.

The lecture was upon the subject of atmosphere and the curious effects of intense cold, the liquid air and soap bubble being adjuncts introduced to facilitate some explanations.

A few spoonfuls of liquid air were poured into a vessel, and the intense cold caused by evaporation immediately brought on a miniature snowstorm in the atmosphere directly above the vessel. A soap bubble was then placed in the freezing stratum. Almost instantly there was a change in the color of the transparent globe, the bubble becoming much darker; the movements of the rainbows film grew slower; it contracted somewhat in size, and a little later it froze.

A slight but dexterous movement of the rod upon which the bubble was suspended broke the latter into two pieces, which fell upon the liquid air and there floated for an hour, gradually accumulating a tiny snowdrift from the almost imperceptible precipitation constantly going on in the freezing atmosphere above.

Garrison Revolted

And 95 of them stood Against Wall One at a time, and were shot by A firing Squad.

El Paso, Texas, Feb. 25.—Ninety-five Federal volunteer soldiers were executed last evening at Sauc, below Juarez. They compose part of the garrison which revolted yesterday, angered by the killing of ex-President Madero, their former leader.

One at a time, advices received here relate, the soldiers were stood against an adobe wall. Ninety-five times the firing squad aimed and fired. Most of the men are said to have displayed much courage, declining the execution mask.

More than fifty of the garrison escaped before the arrival of a strong detachment of Federal regular troops from Chihuahua City.

The rebels of a day had cut the Mexican Central Railway, which was repaired a few hours later. Five of the volunteer officers escaped death and will be sent to Juarez.

Saved Little Girl.

Burglar Turns Doctor When He Finds Intended victim's Child in With Croup.

Los Angeles, Feb. 15.—Dropping his role of Mr. Hyde, a burglar was magically transformed into a kindly Dr. Jekyll by a mother's tears this morning, and before leaving the house he had entered to loot, he had worked nearly two hours over an infant suffering with croup and saved its life.

Mrs. Fred. Morris told this story to the police to-day, and then when they demanded a description of the intruder she refused to give it.

Mrs. Morris, distracted by the illness of her child, had paced the floor all night in her endeavour to ease its pains and at two o'clock this morning she started downstairs to go for a physician. In the hallway a man confronted her.

"Throw up your hands, lady, and be quiet," he whispered gruffly.

"My baby is dying; I am going for a doctor," Mrs. Morris screamed and pushed by the man, but he grasped her arm and demanded that she let him try to save the child.

"I've got five kids of my own, ma'am," he explained, stowing his revolver in a hip pocket. "That's why I'm out this way, to keep them from starving to death, so I wouldn't like to see another one go."

Mrs. Morris led the burglar to the child's room. He mixed vinegar, sugar and water, which he made the child swallow, and then rubbed the convulsing chest with sweet oil for an hour. Finally the child slept and the burglar tiptoed out of the room.

EXPRESS ARRIVES.—The Bruce express with several passengers and a number of men for the sealfishery arrived here at 8.30 a.m. to-day. A storm delayed her on the night she left Port aux Basques.

Yesterday at Cochrane St. Church.

The morning service at Cochrane Street Methodist Church yesterday was very largely attended. The service was conducted by the pastor, the Rev. C. A. Whitmarsh, M.A., the speaker being the Rev. Dr. Endicott, returned missionary from China. The doctor in beautiful and chaste language spoke for fifty minutes on "The Evolution of the Christian Church in the Foreign Mission Field." His description of how to secure an audience in China where you have no church, the getting of a point of contact, arresting the attention, telling of the people in Christian lands and whom they worship, one invisible spirit maker of Heaven and earth, and the story of an early convert, were graphically portrayed. The learned doctor is a powerful and pleasing speaker and his address came with telling effect on his hearers and made many friends for the great mission cause. The choir rendered "There is a green hill far away;" from the psalms exhibited by Professor Dewar in a lecture before the Royal Institute of Great Britain.

The lecture was upon the subject of atmosphere and the curious effects of intense cold, the liquid air and soap bubble being adjuncts introduced to facilitate some explanations.
