

Happy Mother Tells How Children Were Restored

THE value of Tanlac as a family medicine is again very forcibly demonstrated in the home of Mrs. Josephine Deckert, 1912 Bank St., Baltimore. After putting this splendid tonic to the test with herself and three children, Mrs. Deckert says:

"Tanalac has been such a great blessing to myself and 3 children that I have won my lifelong praise. My health had been so wretched for two or three months that I was just dragging around. I could neither eat nor sleep to do much good and had a world of trouble with indigestion. I have just finished my third bottle of Tanlac and am almost a well woman already. John Frank, aged six, and Carolina, who is four, both complained of headaches, pains in the stomach and were very restless at night. They had no appetites, were thin and pale, and took no interest in play or anything else."

"And Joseph Paul, two years old, was in just about the same fix. I could not get him to eat, he was fretful day and night and was very thin and pale. They have taken about two bottles of Tanlac each now, and healthier, happier children could not be found. John Frank has gained six pounds. Carolina eight and little Joseph is as fat as a butterball and playful as a kitten. I certainly have good reasons for praising Tanlac."

"The experience of the Deckert family is only typical of thousands of others whose statements are on file in the Tanlac office. Hardly a day passes that does not bring scores of such messages of praise from every part of the United States and Canada from families where mother, father, son and daughter have all found health, contentment and the joys of living through simply taking a course of Tanlac. Tanlac is sold by all good druggists.

The "Gallant Three Hundred."

Everyone knows the story of how the "Noble Six Hundred" rushed into the "Valley of Death at Balaklava" the maddest and most splendid feat in the annals of war, but little is known of the charge of the Gallant Three Hundred who, a few hours earlier, flung themselves at the Russian hordes with a valour equally great and glorious. The thrilling episode occurred in the chilly dawn at the end of October, 1854, and seldom has British soldiery faced such fearful odds. On the heights above them were three thousand of Russia's fastest horsemen, and with all the advantage of position. But even with the hopeless task before them, every man in the British line was convulsed with laughter, as down the hill in panicky flight raced hundreds of red-furred Turks, pursued by the flash of Cossack swords. But there was little time for merriment. As the Russian cavalry, with the thunder of hoofs, bore down upon them, laughter died on the lips of the gallant 93rd. Every jaw was set with firm resolve to stem that torrent or die in the attempt. The voice of their Colonel, the gallant old warrior, Sir Colin Campbell, rang out in stern accents, "Ninety-third! Ninety-third! Damn all that eagerness! Remember," he added, as he rode down the line "there is no retreat from here, men. You must die where you stand." And with one voice, came the thunderous answer: "Ay, ay, Sir Colin, we'll do that," and they did. On they went with Sir James Yorke Scarlett, ruddy-nosed and white-whiskered, heading the way.

"Down the hill, down the hill, thousands of Russians. Thousands of horsemen, drew to the Valley—and stayed. For Scarlett and Scarlett's three hundred were riding by. When the points of Russian lances arose in the sky, and he wheeled into line, and they wheeled and obeyed."

"Then he looked at the host that had wheeled, he knew not why. And he turned half round, and he bade his trumpeters sound, and he charged, and he rode on ahead, as he waved his blade. To the gallant three hundred whose glory will never die—'Follow,' and up the hill, up the hill, followed the Heavy Brigade."

Can the Aerial Camera

RECORD THE MOVEMENTS OF THE CARIBOU

An interesting photograph is on exhibition in the window of Messrs. Dick & Co. Ltd., Water St. Mr. Cotton secured this picture a few days ago when flying over the interior of a part of Newfoundland far removed from civilization. When it is considered that the photograph was taken under very adverse weather conditions, in bad light, the value of Aerial photography in connection with survey work will be appreciated. The tracks being so clearly defined must be in regular use, otherwise, the fall of snow, which is clearly shown on the ground, would have covered them unless, of course, they are filled with water, as sometimes happens. Accurate detail of the ground is not clearly seen owing to the glare thrown off by the light covering of snow. The main track running towards the centre of the picture from the left side is evidently frequently used, as a regular trench has been worn into the ground.

ALTITUDE OF 3000 FEET.

This particular picture was taken from a height of three thousand feet above the ground at an angle of about 45 degrees to the vertical, and gives much the same view that would be seen when looking down from a mountain top. An Aerial Photographic Map made up of a series of vertical photographs overlapping each other, and so making an accurate pictorial map, would doubtless show every movement of the caribou herds, and so establish some definite information on this subject. It is unlikely that these tracks are made by mankind or any animal other than the caribou, as the area is far from civilization and from tracks used by trappers and dog teams, while no other animal in Newfoundland would move in this fashion. Tracks show up just as well when no snow is on the ground owing to the refraction of light.

BATTLE RECORDS.

During the war the Aerial Camera was used daily in recording the movements of troops and guns in the battle area. A track leading to a hedge or farmstead, frequently gave away the position of a hostile battery or headquarters. This achievement was arrived at after much research and experimental work by the Photographic section of the Royal Air Force who were able to develop a highly sensitive plate which duly recorded tracks which are sometimes almost invisible to the average man on the ground. For instance, two or three men walking across a grass field will leave that portion of the grass that they had passed over slightly trodden down. These blades of grass being at a different angle to the rest of the grass in the field throw off a different volume of light and this is duly recorded on the photographic plates.

CAN MAP OUT CARIBOU AREAS.

Exactly the same state of affairs happens when the track passes over earth. The earth pressed down by the foot of man or animal throws up a different volume of light to the surrounding earth, and this is movement recorded. Mr. Cotton states that he saw these tracks running chiefly toward the area shown in the photograph, which seems to indicate that the caribou concentrate in that particular portion of the country.

Mr. Cotton also says he can undoubtedly map out the exact areas where the caribou move, and the extent of their movements by taking a series of Aerial Photographs. This information will, of course, be of great value for protection purposes, as well as for the legitimate sportsman. A careful study of the photographs would no doubt solve the much discussed problem of migration. One of these days it is hoped that the Aerial Survey Co. will be asked to make a photograph of the whole of Newfoundland. This, in addition to definitely showing the movements of the caribou would also give exact quantities and types of timber in existence, full particulars of the water ways both for transportation of logs and for power, and also information that will be of great value to the geologists.

Dance at S.U.F. Hall.

HALLOWEEN CELEBRATION.

At the S.U.F. Hall last evening, Mr. Max Cotton's dancing class spent a very enjoyable time celebrating the Halloween festival. The hall, tastefully decorated with ribbons, streamers and festoons, presented a bewitching appearance. Miss Marion Corbett presided at the piano and a splendid musical programme was provided which was greatly enjoyed by the dancers. At 10.30 a delicious supper was served by the ladies present and it was thoroughly enjoyed. Dancing was then resumed and at 1 o'clock, when it terminated, all present expressed their keen enjoyment of a rare evening's fun.

Reduce the Price.

OF BREAD AND BISCUITS.

Editor Evening Telegram.

Dear Sir—You are possibly aware that the two Butterine Factories operating in town sent notices to their customers last week announcing a reduction of two cents per pound on their Butterine effective on Wednesday, November 1st. This concession of butter, one of our principal food products, will help to some extent in reducing the present high cost of living, and the thanks of the community are due these manufacturers for their liberality in reducing their prices without pressure or solicitation. Don't you think that it would be a very nice thing, Mr. Editor, now with a long hard winter ahead of us, if the Bread and Biscuit makers were to follow the example of the Butter factories and reduce their prices on Bread and Biscuits in sympathy with the recent decline in the value of flour. This time last year Flour sold at $19.50 and today it is selling at $8.50, or a reduction of two dollars per barrel, and I claim that there should be a corresponding reduction in the price of Bread and Biscuits, and it is to be hoped that the Bread and Biscuit factories will take this hint and reduce their prices without delay, otherwise I may be tempted in another letter to show the general public some of the large profits that these big monopolies are making at present out of the trade and average householder.

Yours truly,
"BREAD and BUTTER."

Cause and Effect.

There are many causes for the present trade deadlock in Newfoundland, and while the price of fish is called low, yet if conditions were as in pre-war days, $4.00 Labrador and $6.00 Shore would be considered a fairly good price. One cause for the decline in the markets is due to the Shore Labrador salted fish sent over during the War, which could not retain its once healthy state because it lacked proper cure. Some exporters took advantage of the circumstances in European countries, whose people were war worn and hungry, and started an example which was unjust, in piling half-cured fish on the buyers across who when they could not dispose of their stocks, turned a deaf ear to us even though a better quality was guaranteed.

Thousands of quintals of fish, which took many hours of toil and worry to catch, sell, buy, pack and ship, were actually dumped overboard on arrival in Mediterranean ports, merely because of inferior cure. Another cause of depression in trade is due to the high rate of tariff of which all but the present rulers, realize is a great barrier to importation, and also a discouragement to the younger folk who find their earnings of little value, compared with other years.

Government interference in stipulating prices to European buyers, through regulations, was another cause of crippling sales and especially when too high a price was demanded.

All the causes which affect our wealth, our morals and our estates, summed up, is accountable for the depression, and we think very unreasonable burden thereby laid at our feet unjustly, especially in the years of a poor voyage.

If this country is to survive—and perhaps she may—a change in mercantile affairs and a change of policy on the part of the Government must come before we win the reputation and respect of the outside world. Otherwise the effect of mismanagement, if continued, will make it still harder for people to exist, and still harder to sell what bit we may produce. —Twillingate Sun.

The Vagrant's Life

"I CANNOT SPEND MY TIME IN THE PEN."

(This heartbreaking poem, contributed by the Vagrant, is a very own poem, and is on fact.)

I'm down with a fit of depression. My nerves are completely worn. Though some say the ways of depression. Aar hard, I've not found them. I've looked for a means of escape. Through stealing again and again. But in spite of my fervent desire, I cannot get sent to the pen.

Although I'm a very good fellow. I let myself always get caught. For I want to get down for the night. But prosecute me, they will. The shopkeeper looks me in the face. And pity is writ on his face. He won't get me three months in clover.

But just kicks me out of the pen. I once threw a stone at a man. And hoped it would get me sent to the pen. But the owner, he only grins. He'd insured it for plenty of money. I up and I hit a policeman. Did it land me in quod, I don't know. The judge said "You must be a peace, man."

Or next time I'll send you a letter. And now on the streets I roam. And work, if a living I'd make. While I think of my happy home. Who in luxury dwell by the sea. On Christmas I'll sleep in a bed. And think of them eating and drinking. While I'll have to feed in a cage. And likely get took with a cage.
