Germany Indignant Over French Invasion.

Nation-Wide Strike Called For Monday --
Vote of Confidence Given Poincare --
Italy Agrees With But Does Not Support
France--Christians in Turkey Must do
Military Service.

FEELING OF BITTER RESENTMENT GROWING.

BERLIN, Jan. 11. The populace is slowly yielding to feeling of most bitter resentment over the French tricolor has been hoisted in Essen. Popular indignation will find expression in a nation-wide strike on Monday, when head and hand workers everywhere will cease work for an hour. The movement has been active support of the Labor Union whose membership totals fifteen thousand. Ruhr workers will have a leading part in the demonstration with the purpose of impressing the French with an exhibition of patriotism and united strength.

POINCARÉ GETS VOTE OF CONFIDENCE.

PARIS, Jan. 11. Confidence in the Government was voted by the Chamber of Deputies this morning 478 to 86 after Premier Poincaré made his statement regarding French action in the Ruhr. Premier Poincaré was cheered fully five minutes by the crowded gallery. When he appeared this afternoon and all the deputies with the exception of the communists rose to their feet to honor him. The Premier said France employed every means of compromise and persuasion before adopting the present policy and he said constraint would be employed if Germany remained unyielding. He paid a warm tribute to the courtesy and loyalty of the British Premier throughout the negotiations. He regretted the British was unable to co-operate. The Premier said the measures being put in force were expected to yield a billion marks per year. The Premier said it might take several months to get Ruhr control working properly. German resistance, passive or other, must be overcome. He intimated that if she did not get anything, France would not be worse off than now. M. Poincaré made it clear that France would go as far as necessary to force a serious effort on the part of Germany to pay her reparations. He said that the default declared against Germany on the lumber deliveries was an insignificant matter which to take such a grave decision, but, he added, some people seem to forget that many residents of the devastated regions are waiting for that lumber to build their homes which Germans burned. "We French must not forget that that is the essence of the question."

ITALY'S AMBIGUOUS ATTITUDE.

LONDON, Jan. 11. The first stage of the Franco-Belgian application of penalties to Germany with regard to coal and timber, was carried out to-day when two divisions of Rhine troops were ordered to the task of protecting the control Commission sent to Ruhr, because their advance to Essen and other points which were occupied. The operations were conducted without untoward incidents; the French government showing a disposition to avoid needless trouble. So far as the city of Essen is concerned, the formal entry and parade of the troops with the exception of about two hundred armed in control of the few public buildings and railroad station, were withdrawn to the outskirts of the town. Apparently there is no intention of calling a strike of Ruhr miners, the German government contenting itself with more or less passive resistance consisting of a protest against the Franco-Belgian proceedings, on the grounds that they take the shape of virtual repudiation of the Versailles treaty, and the cessation of efforts for reparations. Germany also has formally ruptured diplomatic relations with France and Belgium, but is Allies. The British delegation announced tonight that the Mosul oil district would never be returned to the Turks by virtue of any clause in the Lausanne Treaty. Their spokesman, without making any distinct statement gave the impression that Great Britain hopes to settle the Mosul controversy outside the Conference. If so that leaves the capitalizations as the great outstanding problem of the Conference. The question, however, is perhaps the most vital of all.

MAKES FORMAL PROTEST.
LONDON, Jan. 11. Dr. St. Hauser, German Ambassador to Great Britain presented to the British Foreign Office late to-day Germany's formal protest against the Franco-Belgian action in Ruhr which it declared violates the Treaty of Versailles.

WHERE GERMANY BASES HER PROTEST.
WASHINGTON, Jan. 11. The legal considerations on which Germany will protest to the other powers against the French movement into Ruhr is understood here to rest on the contention that the causes of the Versailles Treaty called by France as warrant for her course were intended to cover only economic and financial measures and not the use of force.

A GERMAN VIEW.
OBERHAUSEN, Germany, Jan. 11. There are no other important iron ore and coal deposits in the world lying so near each other as the French ore fields and Ruhr coal region, and France's whole policy of occupation based on combining these two districts, said Dr. Arthur Voltman, Director of the Good Hope Mining and Machine Works here to-day.

GERMAN MINISTER LEAVES.

GETTING AFTER RUM RUNNERS.

NEW YORK, Jan. 11. Rum runners, hitherto relying on their speed to escape the vigilance of the U.S. Prohibition navy will now have to fight as well as run, it was disclosed to-day when the Lexington, an armoured gun chaser, equipped with machine guns fore and aft, and turned over to the Customs Service. The Lexington, of 220 tons, 125 feet long, carrying two motor boats, and capable of twenty-five knots, was used for the transport service during the war. She is the first of the new fast dry fleet which will replace the old dry chasers recently withdrawn. The new vessels may also be equipped with small monoplane. Rum runners are reported openly plying their trade off Sandy Hook upon receipt of word that the dry navy flagship Hansen had been transferred to Baltimore. Small craft could be seen from the shore putting out in large numbers to the fleet suspected of being liquor carriers.

Guess-Work Versus Knowledge.

Shopkeepers in Canada and U. S. A., who prefer to sell sugar in packages instead of retailing out of a barrel, say that having carefully figured the cost of retailing bulk sugar, they know package sugar pays them better. They have knowledge. Opposed to them are the grocers who "guess" that it would not pay them to handle package sugars. Asked to give proof for their belief they say "O, our clerks would be idle if we handled package sugar," this reminds one of the woman who kept a pig to eat the scraps from her table. Of course the philanthropy of the shopkeeper who keeps a clerk he doesn't need, is admirable, but whilst "c'est magnifique," it is emphatically not business; any establishment running on such a plan, is operating by guess-work instead of knowledge. Jan. 11, 1923.

PERSONAL.—Mr. John T. Meaney, Government Controller, is a passenger by the S.S. Rosalind leaving here to-day for New York on a business trip.

Llewellyn Club.

REV. G. O. LIGHTBOURN LECTURES.

Rev. G. O. Lightbourn lectured before a large assembly of Llewellyn Club members at Canon Wood Hall last night. The speaker took as his subject "With the Air Forces in the East." The lecture was illustrated by a series of seventy-five or eighty slides, which were manipulated by Messrs. Llewellyn Colley and Frank Warren. The speaker, who served with the Air Forces in different parts of the Mediterranean, was introduced by Rev. E. C. Barr. Mr. Lightbourn began his lecture by explaining the work of the Air Forces in the East. In 1917 the loss of shipping by the ruthless submarine campaign became alarming, and convoy ships proved insufficient to cope with the menace, so the Kite Balloon was brought into service. The water of the Mediterranean Sea is so clear that from the balloon they could see the bottom, which might be perhaps eighty or a hundred feet below the surface. He recalled some amusing incidents attendant on his trips from Cairo to Syracuse. Several birds-eye views of the Naval Air Station at Malta were shown, illustrating the amount of work that had been done there; also a variety of views showing the Maltese at work. Among the things done was a wall which was built enclosing the Balloon Station and Hydrogen Plant. At this plant they made the Hydrogen and compressed it into steel cylinders. The wall was built of stone. The stone at Malta is of a soft substance and the natives cut it in blocks with a saw, but it is a very good material for building purposes. The address was both illuminating and interesting. Among the visitors present were Canon Smart, Dr. Facey and the students of Queen's College.

Mr. C. E. Hunt thanked the lecturer on behalf of the Llewellyn Club for his entertaining lecture, and Mr. R. R. Wood seconded the motion, which was supported by Canon Smart. The meeting closed at 9.45 with the National Anthem. The following is the programme for the season:—
