

The Serap Bag.

Golf must be an enthralling pastime or so many people wouldn't engage in it, but to the looker-on who has nothing "gamey" in his composition it is the most foolish sport possible to imagine, unless croquet is excepted. Yet, there are hundreds, nay, it is more likely thousands, of human beings with their stockings rolled down, waiting about knocking a little ball into a hole, and actually getting excited about it. The small boy who carries a bundle of sticks is called a "caddy," the only facetious thing about this mournful sort of thing is the fact that a "caddy" can be highly ornamental or just a more boy with supreme contempt painted on his freckled countenance. Among gilded golfers he always has an air of elegant manners, which no doubt is part of the performance, but it confuses ordinary folks not accustomed to so much from youngsters. However, while the idle and the athletic must be occupied, perhaps golfing answers every purpose of a show-off.

The international yacht races appear to have ended up in a close contest as to who can write the most letters for the newspapers. Dunraven is certainly doing handsomely in this respect.

It's fine to riding go;
But that's the time we should look out

Lord Rosebery has been having his town house reconstructed, in the most gorgeous and elaborate style, and now it is about completed, the rumor of a new mistress again floats in the air, "which her name, it is Wales."

Here is a new wrinkle. Soup with one's dinner is an abomination, but soup taken after the theater and before going to bed is a life-saver. So saith "one who knows," though revolutionary and upsetting the old-time ideas.

In a Parisian omnibus, an ill-bred male passenger made a grimace when a very stout old lady got in.
"Hippopotamus!" he exclaimed under his breath, but so loudly that the old lady heard him.
"Sir," she said, "you know an omnibus is like Noah's ark—it takes in all the animals, even donkeys!"—Exchange.

"I will kill him," cried the poet, "if I have to tie him fast and read him to death with one of my own sonnets."

Charity begins at home, but should not end there.

"Are you bothered with tramps at your country place?"
"No. You see, my daughter goes to a cooking-school, and we give all that she makes to the wandering. They come once, and never come back; and of late they have been avoiding us altogether."—Exchange.

By down and shore the southwest bore
The scent of hay, an airy load;
As if at fault it seemed to halt,
Then, softly whispering, took the road.
To haunt the evening like a ghost,
Or some belated pilgrim lost.

High overhead the swift clouds sped;
Beside the moon they hurried their sails:
From in the skies their merchandise
Of vapor, built in topling bales,
Fulfilled a visionary pier,
And spanned the eastern atmosphere.

Low in the west the sun addressed
His courtship to the dark-browed night;
While images of molten seas,
Of snowy slopes and crimson height,
Of valleys dim and gulfs profound,
Aloft a dazzling pageant wound.

What shadow fell on glade and dell,
Uncovered shoulders nestled deep,
And here and there the braided hair.

Small Boy—Did you see a little boy about my own size around the corner?
Old Gentleman—Yes, I believe I did.
"Did he look angry?"
"I didn't notice."
"Did he look frightened?"
"I didn't notice. Why?"
"Why, I heard he was round there, and I don't know whether he wants to lick me or whether he's hidin' from me. Wish I did."—Pearson's.

WHEEL VS. HORSE.

W. C. T. U. Prefer the Former for Sunday Locomotion.

But Only When Necessity Not Pleasure Demands—Interesting Debate at the Convention Yesterday—Grocers and Tobacco Resolutions.

At the annual county convention of the W. C. T. U. yesterday afternoon there occurred an interesting little debate on Sunday bicycling. A resolution deprecating this practice for pleasure was under discussion, and several had taken a strong affirmative position. Then a delegate pointed out that many doctors used the bicycle on Sunday in preference to a horse and buggy when calling on patients.

"But we are not in a position to judge whether a wheelman is out on pleasure or duty," commented Mrs. J. W. Jones. "This motion would make it appear that all wheelmen who ride on the Lord's Day are breaking the Sabbath. In passing it we may only call down upon ourselves the ridicule of the public."

Mrs. Thornley said that a great amount of Sabbath riding for pleasure existed, and that the county hotels did a big Sunday business catering to wheeling parties. But when necessary, the wheel, as a means of locomotion on the Lord's Day was, in her opinion, preferable to the use of the horse. In amendment, she moved that the resolution be referred back and altered so as to commend the use of bicycles on the Sabbath where necessity demands their use, in place of carriages, and at the same time discountenance Sunday riding for pleasure.

Mrs. Keenleyside said that boys came to borrow her son's wheel to go all over the country on Sunday.

"Well," added another delegate, "this is better than hiring and abusing horses." The resolution went back to committee.

Resolutions were adopted expressing sympathy with the early closing movement, and against the use of birds or sprays in headgear. The latter caused quite a laugh, as it is old enough however, after the president called for order, and after each delegate had taken a surreptitious glance at her neighbor's hat.

One resolution pledged the members to be as far as possible patronize such groceries as do not traffic in tobacco. "Where, then, will we go to deal?" asked Mrs. Jones. "We will have to get up a store of our own." Several members gave the names of city grocers who do not sell tobacco. The resolution was declared carried. One delegate anxiously inquired if following the convention was binding on all the delegates whether they voted for the resolution or not.

"Because, in our town," said she, "all the grocers sell tobacco." Mrs. Thornley—it is binding on the members just as their consciences make it so.

The previous Delegate—Then, if my conscience does not swing, I will not let it bind me. (Laughter.)

One delegate wanted to know if a woman who sold tobacco could be a member of the W. C. T. U. The question was referred to Mrs. Thornley, who answered: "A woman can be a member who pays 50 cents and signs the pledge."

Mrs. Jones—I suppose she could also be a member if she wears a wing and an osprey? (Laughter.)

The convention viewed with pleasure the increasing tendency on the part of temperance people to refuse to follow leaders who were unwilling to avow their position on that great moral reform. It expressed pleasure at the growing disuse of tobacco among Christians. The Ward Hotel catastrophe was referred to, and while the convention expressed itself as grateful at the county hour of closing being made 10:30 it referred to certain "un-enforced restrictions," as instanced by the drowning near Springfield.

The delegates thought that a Government pledge to prohibition should appoint as its representatives the enforcement of the present excise law officials whose sympathies were with the law and not with the violators.

Though late in the day the London League Commissioners were taken to task for giving the hotelkeepers an extra hour of sale.

Root beer was affirmed to contain an intoxicating element, and its use was discouraged.

A sympathetic resolution was passed favoring woman's franchise, and the unions were requested to put forth renewed efforts for the education of the young upon the evils of intemperance, and to more rigidly enforce the tobacco act.

The officers elected were: President—Mrs. C. B. Napier. Vice-president—Mrs. (Rev.) Harrison, Melbourne. Recording Secretary—Mrs. (Rev.) Kerr, Mount Brydges. Corresponding Secretary—Mrs. A. E. Gordon, Strathroy. Treasurer—Mrs. Darch, London.

The Tenth Annual Fair of the Dorchester Agricultural Society.

Successful in Point of Attendance and Exhibits.

The Attendance Was Large—Speeding in the Ring—No es.

Annual fall fair, No. 40, of the Dorchester Agricultural Society, was held on the society's grounds at Dorchester Station yesterday, and like the 39 which preceded it, the show was a success. In every respect—attendance, entries, and quality of exhibits—it exceeded any previous year. The increased attendance is easily accounted for. "The Donnybrook" (as the fair is generally called), has always proved a great attraction. It draws people not only from the township of Dorchester, north and south, but from Nissouri and London townships to the north and Westminister on the west, Oxford on the east, and Elgin county on the south. From the city a large number always go in rigs, but more generally they go on the train. Yesterday about 200 went down from London. The noon express carried a large number; the afternoon accommodation carried quite a few, while the morning trains carried smaller delegations. And while London did more than its share in making the Donnybrook a success, the district surrounding Dorchester Station did nobly. From about 10 o'clock in the morning the crowd began to pour in and every concession and sidewalk leading to the village was heavily traveled. The farmers brought their sweethearts, the sons brought their sweethearts, and the younger children came in groups, until the attendance at the grounds must have reached 3,000.

The fair was not actually begun until after dinner. The morning was mostly occupied in getting the exhibits into shape and preparing for the visitors. The weather was not altogether desirable for a country fair, however. It was very dismal, with a cold wind blowing from the north and Ontario House. The rain did not last long, but it was officially announced that the fair would be opened by Sir John Carling, and that Joseph Marshall and Wm. Shore, the representatives of East Middlesex and the Dominion and Ontario Houses respectively, would be present. Sir John was there, so was Mr. J. Marshall, but through some unavoidable cause, no opening ceremonies were indicated.

The arrangement of the exhibits in the grounds was the same as last year. The sheep and swine were in wagons and pens along the tracks. The cattle were kept in kraals a little to the east, while the horses were tethered to trees near the cattle kraals. The poultry and roots were located on the west side.

THE EXHIBITS. The exhibit of fancy work was not up to the average, neither were any of the departments shown in the frame building. There was room for all displays and to spare. Entries in every other line were above the average. Every class of sheep was well represented, while in swine, Tamworths were very numerous. Horses were up to the mark, and while thoroughbred cattle were none too plentiful grade cattle were exceptionally numerous.

"And the very good," said Mr. Whetter, one of the judges. "Entries in all classes of cattle are ahead of last year both in quality and quantity, and the entries for the whole fair are in excess of 1894."

When the judging in every department had been completed, the special attractions were begun in the ring. They comprised trotting and pacing, open half mile, running, open, best two and three, purse $50, township trotting and pacing, and township running race, horses to be owned by a farmer and ridden by the farmer or his son. None of the events created any unusual amount of interest outside of the open trot. There were three starters—Dunham's "Slip," Kilbourne's "Gipsy Girl," and Michael Dunn's "Ladies' Delight." The latter was driven by James Buchanan, of Ingersoll, and it was between Ted and Gipsy Girl as to which could do the most running. Buchanan managed to finish second in the second and third heats, but was put back on account of bad breaking. In the second heat he was put back by the judges.

The "Ladies' Delight" was driven in front of Kilbourne and prevented him (Kilbourne) from taking the lead. Buchanan kicked, but his objection was not considered. The sum of the races are appended:

Open trot:
Kilbourne's Gipsy Girl..... 3 1 1
M. Dunn's Ted 2 2 2
Dunham's Nip 1 3 3
Township running race:
Kilbourne's Nelly 1 1 1
Kilbourne's Jennie 2 2 2
K. Dunn's "Ladies' Delight" 3 3 3
George's Sorrell 4 4 4
T. Howe's Flyaway 5 5 5
Open running race:
Brady Bros.' Homer 1 1 1
P. McKays' Lombard 2 2 2
R. McKays' Dan Mack 3 3 3
Kilbourne's Jenny 4 4 4
Township farmers' trot:
H. Beadle's Bess 1 1 1
L. Smith's Nelly 2 2 2
James Buchanan's Brown Jerry 3 3 3
H. Baw's Henry 4 4 4
R. Banker's Tontine 5 5 5

Also among the special attractions were exhibitions of slack wire and acrobatic work by the Messrs. Partridge, Stevens and Eber, of this city.

NOTES. The board of directors has Richard Venning as president, James Wilson as vice-president, G. W. Neely secretary-treasurer. The following committees of management are named from the board:

Horses—George Wade and Philip Rickard.
Attraction—J. A. James and Joseph Woods.
Sheep and Hogs—George Patterson and J. H. Rowe.

Grain and Roots—D. McLachlan and J. Wilson.

Ladies' Work—D. D. York and W. McConnell.

Fruit—Wm. Sutherland.

Music—President and secretary.

Gate—President, vice-president, and Wm. Malpas.

The Dorchester Brass Band furnished music.

Hokey-pokey peanuts were selling at the same old price.

The money order, cheap jewelry, fakir and corn-cure men were all on hand.

The judges in the racing were Messrs.

James Craig (London) and G. Turrell (Aylmer). There was no time.

Among the visitors were Mr. John Gilson, Liberal candidate for the Commons in East Middlesex, Sir John Carling, Mr. Joseph Marshall, M.P., and a number of city aldermen.

FATAL FIRE. Cincinnati, Oct. 10.—A big fire occurred yesterday in a five-story tenement, 621 West Sixth street. When the firemen arrived women and children were screaming piteously at the windows.

Thomas O'Flaherty, a deaf mute, jumped from a fourth story window into a net and escaped.

Mary Holmes, aged 80, was taken to a dead. Rachel Davis, aged 4 years; Mamie Penson, aged 19, and Mrs. Emma Davis, were all dreadfully burned, and will die.

The less seriously injured are: Julia Davis, nervous shock and exposure; Ida Minkovsky and Miss Theresa Lang.

HEADLIGHT FLASHES. Grand Trunk Branch in Michigan to be Overhauled—Will Have 1,000 New Cars.

Battle Creek, Mich., October 10.—The repair shops of the Chicago and Grand Trunk in this city are to be considerably enlarged and improved. An additional force of men will be set to work at once to repair and put in running condition all the engines and disabled freight cars along the line. This work has formerly been done at Port Huron.

There is an increased activity in railroad circles in this city since the visit of President Wilson. It is stated that he consulted with Traffic Manager Reeve, and in consequence the rolling stock on the road is to be added to and improved upon wherever it is necessary. A contract will be made for 1,000 additional box cars of 60,000 pounds capacity each, in order to properly handle the increasing business of the road.

A number of new style locomotives designed for speed and power will also be added to the company's equipment. The road bed of the company is in good condition, but wherever it is necessary the road will be laid with the best quality of steel rail. The station buildings along the line are to be put in first-class condition.
