his actions. I believe he acted from highest motives, and it is my judgment that the testimony and the verdict of history will be that he was justified in his conduct.

But he is not fitted for leadership who gets his inspiration only from his ancestors or from his contemporaries. He must have the prophet's vision, he must have the prophet's vision, he must have the Godly man's faith he must have the martyr's courage, and he must have the strong man's power to initiate and to carry through to successful conclusions.

I believe that history will rank William McKinley as amongst the great leaders of men; leaders whose goal was the enlargement and betterment of human life; leaders in whom self was regarded only as it might possibly be a force to exert an influence for good upon the nation; men of high ideals and unselfish motives, of clean methods. McKinley was among such men. He with Washington and Lincoln, were perhaps the three most conspicuous Presidents of the United States, conspicuous Presidents of the United States, conspicuous by their inherent qualities, and made conspicuous by the affecting influences of their inherent qualities, and made conspicuous by the affecting influences of their inherent qualities, and made conspicuous by the affecting influences of their inherent qualities, and made conspicuous by the affecting influences of their inherent qualities, and made conspicuous by the affecting influences of their inherent qualities, and made conspicuous by the affecting influences of their inherent qualities, and made conspicuous by the affecting influences of their inherent qualities, and made conspicuous by their and the capture of the verified in his provided in the evidences and sympathy you the half-masted flags, and the emblems of mourning on every band, I have felt boat I did not live in a strange land, but almost I have gone around this city and seen the half-masted flags, and the emblems of mourning on every band, I have felt did not live in a strange land, but almost I have gone around this

I can hardly realize that I shall never more see William McKinley, never grasp his kindly hand again. Nothing is left but his shadow (portrait), the great statesman, brave soldier, noble President, grand leader, loving husband, dutiful son, Christian man, has been cut down in bis prime. "We ne'er shall look upon his like again." Hail and farewell!

The services closed with singing a verse each of "America" and "God Save the King," and the benediction by Rev. Dr. Campbell.

STOPPED THE TELEGRAPH.

Throughout the United States.

Chicago, 'Ilis., Sept. 19.—Upon orders from the officials of the different telegraph companies or upon common impulse of the operators where direct instructions were not received, the entire telegraph system of the United States was suddenly hushed for five minutes at 2:30 p. m., the hour set for lowering the President's body into the grave at Canton. At that moment on all the huge network of wires, from the Atlantic to the Pacific not a "sounder" in the land gave a single tick and the great American cables were as pulseless as the late chief magistrate himself. It is estimated that fully 100,000 telegraphers thus simultaneously paid homage to the memory of McKinley. The total number of miles of wire affected was upwards of a million and a quarter. In the Western Union Chicago office the hundreds of operators all arose at their desks when the moment came and joining their voices sang with deep feeling the President's hymn, "Nearer My God to Thee." The Postal Telegraph Company, the North American Company, and Chicago and Milwankee Company, and all similar organizations were included in the general stoppage.
