The winter wheat belt is just coming out of the first severe freeze of the season. Where the wheat has jointed it has been severely injured. The portion of the crop which has jointed is not large, but the growing crop is much further advanced than ever before at this season of the year. The growth of wheat in the fall was small, but on the opening of winter, when the weather became mild and rainy, the plant began to grow, and since Dec. 1 has continually made progress. In some portions of the winter wheat-belt the wheat had jointed and the last freeze destroyed a small percentage of is. In the spring wheat belt, particularly in the Dakotas, the weather recently has been very mild, taking off nearly all the snow and there is not enough moisture there to start the spring crops. The indications point to an early spring. There is no spring wheat moving and the stocks in elevators are reported as very light. Both the corn and winter wheat-belts have almost impassable roads. Farmers seem to have considerable winter wheat left. It is said that there is more wheat on hand than there was a year ago at this date, but stocks in farmers and millers' hands and in country elevators then was unusually small. If March should prove a favorable month for the growing wheat free deliveries out of farmers' hands will doubtless ensue. AMUSEMENTS. GRAND OPERA HOUSE.
