THE QUALITY OF BULK TEA

The quality of bulk tea is always unreliable for several reasons. In the first place, being unlabelled its origin is unknown and there is no one who has any particular responsibility for its goodness. In the second place, it is exposed to the air and therefore very quickly loses its flavour, and freshness. Even if it were as good as "SALADA" in the first place, it would rapidly deteriorate and in any case it would be impossible for any dealer to follow consistently the same quality throughout the year. "Salada" always maintains an un-varying high standard, possible through skilful blending.

A Gorgeous Flower

For Shady Spots. The shady part of the garden that will not grow even decent grass can be made beautiful by the use of the tuberous begonia. So long as a bit of the grayed and get either the of the ground can get either the early morning or late afternoon sun, or for hour's duration during the mid-dle of the day, a bed of tuberous begonias planted there will bring charming results. This plant does for the shady spot what the geramium does for the sunny location, but it does more because of the variety of colours secured and greater bean ty of the foliage. The tuberous beg-chia cannot be used in an open location faking the sun during the hot part of the day because the leaves

The tuberous begonia has been greatly developed in recent years. The best varieties produce flowers from four to six inches across and bloom from July until frost takes them off. They require rich soil. When the space is reached by the roots of trees, they need pllenty moisture. If started in light soil in pots or flats set in a warm place at the first of April, they will be al-most ready to bud by the first of June, but some growers prefer to plant the tubers direct in the soil early in May or as soon as the ground would be ready for potatoes.

The plants should be set 12 to 15 inches apart, about 2½ to 3 inches deep, with the hollow side of the tuber uppermost. Tuberous begonia plants as well as dormant tubers are frequently offered as premiums for membership in the Horticultural Societies, By this means the tuberous begonia has become well known in many parts of the Province that they might not otherwise have reached. The surface of the soil should be kept stirred during the summer and a dressing of bonemeal or other manure, proferably from the poultry yard, applied from time to time.
