

Who once, as flush
Of dream might skim
The dusk, afar
In sleep shall hear

Thy song's cool rush
With calm rebrim
The world, and scar
The gloom with cheer.

Then, Heartsease, hush:
If sense grow dim,
Desire shall steer
Us home from far: