

CONTENTS.

v

which it was subject in Great Britain.—Approved method of cultivating the plant and curing the berry.—Estimate of the annual expences and returns of a Coffee plantation.—CACAO, GINGER, ANNATTO, ALOES, and PIMENTO: brief account of each	309
Appendix to Book V	374

BOOK VI.

GOVERNMENT AND COMMERCE.

CHAP. I.

Colonial Establishments.—Of the Captain General or Chief Governor; his Powers and Privileges.—Some reflections on the usual Choice of Persons for this high Office.—Lieutenant-General, Lieutenant Governor, and President.—Of the Council, their Office and Functions.—Origin of their Claim to a share in the Legislature.—Its Necessity, Propriety, and Legality considered.—Some Corrections in the Constitutions of this Body proposed	385
--	------------

CHAP. II.

Houses of Assembly.—Prerogative denied to be in the Crown of establishing in the Colonies Constitutions less free than that of Great Britain.—Most of the British West Indian Islands settled by Emigrants from the Mother-Country.—Royal Proclamations and Charters, Confirmations only of ancient Rights.—Barbadoes, and some other Islands, originally made Counties Palatine.—Their local Legislature how constituted, and the extent of their Jurisdiction pointed out.—Their Allegiance to, and Dependence on, the Crown of Great Britain how secured.—Constitutional Extent of Parliamentary Authority over them	409
--	------------