conducive*to the regulation and increase of the Commerce, Min ~ and lettlement of these Countries.

But, however well his Excellency underflood the needfity of thefe informations, in order to proceed with certainty in the execution of his defigus, he was much embarraffed with the difficulty of finding people of fufficient abilaties for fuch a Commiffion; when the illuftrious Don. Jofeph de Galvez, appointed to vifit the Provinces of Cinaloa and Sonora, infligated by the fame zeal as the Viceroy, took off the weight of this difficuly, by offering to go perfonally to California, to fulfill thefe great ideas, and to put into execution fome projects, that were effected to be of the greateft importance.

His Excellency the Viceroy applauded and accepted the generous offer of the illustrious Don Joseph de Galvez, and giving him every affiftance, as well Military as Political, the Visitor-General prepared for his Voyage, and left Mexico the 9th of April, 1768.

In May of the fame year He arrived at the Port of San Blas, a Fort and Settlement, lately made, on the Coaft of New Galicia, in the South Sea, where the Veffels, defigned for the Navigation and Trade of Sonora, had been built, and where they were then confiruling other Veffels, to be employed in the Intercourfe and Trade of California.

Being at this Port, with intention to fail for the Peninfula, Don Joseph de Galvez received fome dispatches from Mexico,
