BOTH WILL RECOVER.

Amherstburg, Aug. 16.—It is probable that the case against Alfred Horton, who shot his wife and her father last Saturday night, will not come up before the fall session. He was arraigned here, and remained for one week. The victims will not be in condition to give their evidence before then. John Lovegrove, Mrs. Horton's father, is progressing favorably. Mrs. Horton had a restless night, but her recovery is expected.

CAT IS EXHIBIT A.

Goshen, Ind., Aug. 16.—A flea-bitten cat is "Exhibit A" in the divorce suit of James H. Bostwick, aged 77, formerly of this county, and now living at Allegan, Mich. Bostwick alleges that his wife, who is 72, insisted every night on taking the cat to bed with her; that the feline was infested with fleas, causing him great and continued grief and anguish. He says that not only his physical health but his mental well-being depends upon his getting away from home.

THREE WEIGHTY QUESTIONS EMPLOY DELEGATES' TIME

Printers Listen to Employer Driscoll's Friendly Words—Delegate Smith Booked to Go.

Triple-featured was the third session of the International Typographical Union at the Labor Temple yesterday. Firstly, there was the address of Colonel Fred Driscoll of Chicago, commissioner of the American Newspaper Publishers' Association, important as the expression of sentiment of an employing body that had few differences to adjust with the union.

Secondly, there was the indifference shown by the meeting to the suggestion of Delegate Bandlow of Cleveland that they declare for general ownership of the tools of production, an idea branded as socialistic.

Thirdly, there was the announcement of the expansion of Delegate Selby Smith of Philadelphia, for having nominated Driscoll.

"The paramount importance of the eight-hour issue should not be obscured by bringing up another issue," said Delegate Hayes of Cleveland. Chiefly for this reason he opposed the motion of Delegate Bandlow, brought up by Driscoll, to also discuss the eight-hour question in the public view. The resolution might, with advantage, be laid over for an indefinite period of years. The eight-hour question was the resolution that moved by Mr. Hayes was adopted, the cause of Socialism was apparently, little or no following among the delegates.

There was one incident that broke in upon the speaker's reasoning of Delegate Hayes. A member who had no patience with the discussion at all, addressed a commanding tone of voice to the Socialist party by "cutting" it. To protest against this outburst, President Lynch wielded his gavel with such vigor that the symbol of authority broke into pieces, while the delegates satiated out.

After all, the separate organizations of the union will have their separate titles. Although that motion was not carried, the delegates babbled up again yesterday, and, as a result, the "Printers' body" will be known as the Typographical Union of the United States, each of the other unions or branches of the allied trades to have also its own designation.

"Colonel" Fred Driscoll was introduced by Mr. Lynch in a manner that showed the utmost cordiality, and the words of the commissioner of the American Newspaper Publishers' Association were echoed by the speaker.

The speaker termed the relations constantly improving, and referred to the body he represented as international, because it covered Canada, taking in newspapers in Toronto, Montreal, Winnipeg and Vancouver.

The colonel endorsed Mr. Lynch's statement, that last year's dealings between the two bodies had been both pleasant and profitable.

He was glad that the matter of taking the first steps towards a new arbitration agreement at the expiration of the existing one had been brought before the L. T. U., and he suggested that the convention authorize the executive committee to confer with a special standing committee of the association, he stood for that an agreement might be drawn up to be submitted to both organizations for approval at the next convention. He hoped that would favor a renewal of an agreement arbitration in settling differences and fix a basis of understanding. He agreed with President Lynch, that the conditions under which the publishers brought out magazines and comic supplements deserved alteration. The present law required the publishers, after paying for the supplements, to give the printer a recomposition, which, if done, was useless, and if inaction, brought by payment to the chapel or members thereof, was an unfair action. The great majority of publishers, industry, zeal and efficiency of President Lynch and his executive staff, he concluded with the hope that nothing would occur to disturb the harmony of relations.

Notice to Quit. That the I. T. U. is not a mere mutual benefit society, as the society was made evident in the announced expulsion of Delegate Selby Smith by the union, on the ground that he was a member of Philadelphia local union 2, and that union is ordered to carry out the mandate, failing which its charter will be revoked.

The case, which has agitated the union for some time, springing out of a clash between the local union mentioned and the executive, then the union, in beginning a strike, having refused to be bound by the conditions under which strike funds are paid out. Smith declared in a trade paper by Delegates that the local union, in refusing to accept the conditions, was in violation of the constitution. A by-law in the constitution provides that unless charges of the kind are proven or a full apology given, expulsion is the penalty. The case when tried in Philadelphia resulted in Smith's favor, but the executive carried it on to the international committee of appeals, whose report, made yesterday, expels Smith.

The case will, it is understood, be brought up this morning, when a vote will be taken. From the applause given the report, it looks as there will be a passing of Delegate Smith, who is attending the convention, but was absent from yesterday's session.

Some Minor Changes. Delegate Nook of Birmingham made good with a brace of resolutions, both carrying. One provided that a journeyman printer have the right to employ a substitute when papers are published seven days a week, and that any form who refused this be liable to a $10 fine, and the chairman of a chapel failing to report such non-compliance be liable to a similar fine. Also adopted was a resolution by Delegate West of Brockton that unions must look to it that apprentices in any newspaper or other publishing office, which are to be set on for three months, any violation to be punished by a $100 fine.

The president announced as to the printers' strike in Detroit that there were but four non-working in place of the 125 strikers, that a conference was being held and the outlook was bright.

The spirit of self-abnegation shown by the convention in carrying the motion to prohibit smoking was rewarded in a letter received from the Ladies' Auxiliary, expressing appreciation, but disclaiming any desire to shut out the fragrant weed. The epistle was greeted with much enthusiasm.

Will Go West. To-day will decide where the 1906 convention will be held. Colorado Springs and Pittsburgh having been named.

The speaker made a direct appeal to the west for indulgence. Unionism is being sold in a bad way, and the moral support of the delegates on every side, and the general talk, it really looks as though the convention pendulum would be swung back to the west.

The breezy westerners have been cutting a wide swath from the start and have succeeded in rounding up who's who in the auxiliary, the influence of whom members are being liberally banked on.

Snake Swallows Monkey.

Stoker Bears Cries and Drags Simian From Boat. New York, Aug. 16.—Members of the crew of the Hamburg-American Line steamship Barbarossa, from Bremen, tell of a terrific fight between a monkey and a stoker while that vessel was en route to New York.

"The snake tried to eat the monkey," said Carl Jorgensen, a stoker, as he sat on the stern of the ship yesterday afternoon.

I came on deck from the engine room last Saturday I heard a scream and a scream in the second aft hatchway, and a case of some monkey was being thrown about. I saw a huge boa attempting to devour a monkey about six times larger than itself.

"The snake had the monkey's head in its mouth and was trying to swallow it when the monkey was taking the monkey by inches. In another ten minutes even the long tail of the unfortunate little animal would have been inside the snake's gullet."

The constriktor had his long tail curled about a strong iron post and was starting wildly. I grabbed a small rope and wrapped it about the hind feet of the monkey. Then I tugged away for about five minutes with result. I then called two assistants, and with one strong pull we landed the monkey safe.

"No doubt you will be surprised to learn that the head of the partly devoured monkey was scarcely injured."
