As a politician, he played the game, and in fact he went as far as any of his compeers in carrying elections by bribery, so that in 1872 he was driven from office by a very searching exposure of his methods. Political corruption in Spain, however, is as generally accepted as it was in England under Walpole; and the Sagasta temporarily lost his office, his reputation as a man was in no way tarnished in the estimation of his countrymen. Sagasta was singularly devoid of the blind arrogance which has been the bane of so many Spanish statesmen. He fore-saw the clash between the United States and Spain, and he cherished no illusions as to the inevitable issue of such a con flict. In 1897, when he took the premier ship, he did everything in his power to avert the threatened war. It was he who recalled the ruthless Weyler from Cuba and who replaced him by the high-minded Blanco. It was he also who prepared a plan for Cuban autonomy in the hope that conditions in the island might thereby be an.ellorated. The fates were against him however, and then, like a true patriot when war was once declared, he waged in with as much vigor and efficiency as the limited resources at his command would allow. It was a thankless task, yet he caried it thru unflinchingly, and he bore the brunt of all the criticism and denunciation which were showered upon him when he signed the treaty of pence which stripped Spain of her colonial possession In all this he showed a spirit of self-sacri fice and patriotic devotion which places him among the few Spanish statesmen who in the present century have deserved well of their country. Mr. Carnegie paid several compli-ments to President Roosevelt as execu-tive, citizen and author, and then, re-ferring to himself, said he had given chiefly within the past two years 730 library buildings. During the mouth of July last, 276 applications for library buildings were received by him from all parts of the English-speaking world. When he arrived in New York last month from Europe he found awaiting him applications for 450 additional buildings. To-day he has on hand 385 new applications, making in all under consideration now more than 800, the "great majority of which," he said, "will, no doubt, be given."

He also stated that, altho the Canadian government had disallowed the use of traps for salmon in Canadian waters, that he was in favor of traps. Otherwise Brit-ish Columbia could not compete with the American packers on Puget Sound. He would leave for Ottawa on the 15th to dis-cuss the trap question with Canada's Pre-mier, and urge that British Columbia's wishes on the matter be complied with. It is well known that traps in British Columbia vould head off the countless thousands of salmon before they could reach the traps of Puget Sound. Thus the question is of grave industrial importance. 190 YONGE ST., TORONTO FEARS ANARCHISTS.
