BE KIND TO THE HORSE.

C. J. Hamlin, who owns probably the greatest stable of harness horses in America, says that many a trotter has been ruined by harsh treatment. The veteran even goes so far as to say that a horse of spirit should not be struck with a whip. Hamlin would not advise anyone who has a horse of rervous temperament putting the latter in the hands of an impulsive or harshspeaking driver. In his opinion the ideal handler is one slow to anger, besides exercising judgment and practical

SIX OR FOUR? Hamilton Times: Within a few days now, certainly before the end of the week, it will be known definitely whether the Canadian Baseball League is to be a six or a four club affair for 1899. Indications at present point to the successful formation of a six-club league. Today, Mr. Wm. Stroud, of this city, and Mr. George Black manager of the Guelph team, are in Stratford for the purpose of interviewing the business men of the city and others with a view to placing a team there. Stratford is a pretty good ball team already, and should improve with a good professional team. All it needs is the right sort of men to take hold. President Davis will likely visit the place in the interest of the league tomorrow. As soon as the Stratford people come to a decision a meeting of the league will be called to arrange a schedule, elect officers and board of directors, and arrange details for the

NEW LEAGUE. Woodstock Times: "James Davis, manager of the Bain Baseball Club, was in Brantford on Saturday negotiating the formation of a new league. He purposes, if possible, to induce Brantford, Galt and Stratford to enter, and there is every prospect of his meeting with success. There is a movement on foot in Brantford to form a strong city team, from the different factory teams there, and if the scheme goes through they will consider Mr. Davis' proposition. A meeting will be held there Wednesday night, when it is hoped they will arrive at a favorable decision. If satisfactory arrangements cannot be made for this league the Bain team will have a series of five games with a strong amateur team for the championship of the province.' STRATFORD'S POSITION. Stratford Herald: "George Black, manager of the Guelph Canadian League baseball team, arrived in the last night, and will spend the next two days in clearing the ground, executing the preliminary flourishes, as it were, for the installation of a professional baseball nine in this city, the Idea being to make Stratford the sixth and completing club in the circuit of the Canadian League. Mr. Black has gilt-edged backing, and if there is any possibility of planting that coterie of ball players in the Classic City he is going to plant it. A meeting will be held tomorrow evening in the city council chamber, where the proposal will be placed before the business men of the city to say whether or not Stratford shall be represented on the Canadian League diamond. There should, and doubtless will be, a large and representative gathering, for a good ball team is one of the best advertisements for a city. In addition to Mr. Black there will be present Cal Davis, of Hamilton, president of the league.

PRIZE FIGHT MONOPOLY. San Francisco, Aug. 5.—The new law which makes prize fights legal in California has been brought to the attention of the supervisors by Dr. Perrault, who has introduced an order fixing a license of $5,000 a year on prize fighting, or conducting boxing contests. In explanation of his measure, the supervisor stated that the power of granting permits for fights rested no longer in the board, all that now remained for the supervisors was to regulate the sport by fixing a license as a police measure. The matter was referred to the city and county attorneys for a

SOME SUFFERING THAT IS SENSELESS

Because It Can Be Easily and | ache, instead of going to the dentist Quickly Cured.

Why Should We Endure the Torments of Dyspepsia, When Dedd's Dyspepsia Tablets Cure the Disease Promptly, Perfectly, Positively and Permanently?

You've had the toothache! But you didn't suffer with it any longer than you could help! You called on the dentist at once, and had an end put to the trouble without delay.

What would you think of a man who would "put up with" an aching tooth year after year, and make no effort to end his suffering, though he could do so at the cost of a dollar or two?

Your opinion would not be very flattering, would it? The man who suffers from Dyspepsia year after year, acts just as unwisely return by putting the stomach in a as he who goes about with face swollen just as unfailing, just as thorough, just as permanent as that effected by extracting an aching tooth. He has Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets.

Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets remove the cause of Dyspepsia and Indigestion just as the dentist, in extracting the decayed tooth, removes the cause of the toothache. Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets digest the mass of food that has accumulated in the stomach owing to the inability of that organ to digest it. It is this accumulation of partly digested food that causes Dyspepsia. Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets remove it by digesting it, sending the foul decomposed portion into the bowels, by which it is thrown out of the body and the nourishing portion to other organs to make BLOOD. In this way Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets cure Dyspepsia. They prevent its condition to digest the food promptly and nerves quivering with the tooth- after it has been eaten.

The Paris Commune

To the Editor of The Advertiser:

Kindly allow me, in your columns, to correct what appears to be untrue, in your editorial of March 23 last, on the Paris Commune. The article in question stated that the "Commune rose against a constitutional republican government." This statement would appear to be untrue to the facts. There was no constitutional republican government in France at that time. On Sept. 1, 1871, Napoleon was captured by the Germans. On Sept. 4 he was deposed by popular acclaim, and some members of the old imperial house of depu-ties proclaimed themselves the government, and took on themselves its functions. On Feb. 12, in obedience to Bismarck, a new assembly was hurriedly elected for one specific purpose, to decide on peace or continue the war. They concluded peace on Feb. 26, and from that time on they were usurping their powers, and France was without a constitutional government. On the 18th of March this usurping administration ran away from Paris, abandoning the whole machinery of government, including the executive palace, the Hotel de Ville. "Thus was Paris, on the 8th of March, deprived of even the semblance of government."

At this juncture the Committee Can-At this juncture the Committee Central, composed of delegates from all the arrondissements of the city, twenty in number, called for elections.

By these elections, held on the 26th of March, 1871, "the largest legitimate constitutional government in France was established." Its name was the Paris Commune. "This Commune was elected by such significant and imposing numbers that there could be no doubt that the elected were really and fully representative of its wishes." above facts being established, it would be apparent that the so-called republican government which fought the Commune was itself the "sinner" against Communistic Paris. You then assert "that they (the communists) confiscated the possessions of the rich, and forced banks and railroads to stand and deliver. This statement appears to be absolutely misleading, The Commune had all the fabulous wealth of Paris absolutely under its power and control, for nearly two months. By all the rules of (socalled) civilized war, "from the moment that the Versaillese shot in cold blood the first prisoners taken, the Communists had the right to confiscate every penny piece." That the Versail-lese did execute the Communists taken prisoners there is abundant evidence to prove. contained three milliards of francs ($600,000,000), the bank of the Hopes, of Amsterdam, 300,000,000 francs; banks of the Rothschilds were said by them to contain double the amount held by the Bank of France. 100 other banks held uncounted bil-lions, the amount of which cannot be even guessed at. There were the great magazines, and store houses, filled with costly fabrics, shops with jewels of untold value, palaces with costliest gems of art, pictures and marbles of population, which had for months endured privation, hunger and distress during the siege by the Germans. For five weeks of the Commune the great guns of the forts were throwing their destructive missiles to the heart of the

Yet with all this untold wealth at their mercy there was no pillage nor murder, no vandalism or plunder. There was organization and order. What did the Commune confiscate? 1 answer, Nothing! Never was Paris so quiet and orderly. Never were persons or property so safe. The Bank of France had on deposit the credit of the National Working-men's Association. The latter fund was used by the Commune. Includthe Commune by the Bank of France was 7,200,000 francs ($1,440,000). This sum constituted the sinews of war on deposit to the credit of the city in the bank on the fall of the Commune to the amount of 3,016,816 francs. The fact is that the Commune failed because they refused to use the wealth piled up for them. They refused to soil their hands with the wealth taken from the wage slave, even though it were to effect their emancipation. Whether we doubt its wisdom or not, let us recognize and honor its lofty thought of the slave.

You further charge that "the Commune massacred the archbishop of Paris, the president of the court of cassation, and about 200 other ecclesiastics and prominent persons." This The Commune did not is not true. order any deaths of hostages during its regime. It is true that the archbishop and the president of the court of cassation and about an even number of priests and soldiers to the number of 74 persons were executed, but not till after the Commune had ceased

The last sitting of the Commune was on May 21. From May 22 to 29, called the bloody week, during which time over 100,000 men of the Versaillese army were within the walls of the city, and at which time the Commune ceased to exist, was when the hostages were executed. On May 24, a rabble did shoot six persons, including the archbishop. On the 25th, 12 more were done to death; and on May 26 and 27, there were 56 executed by a mob. These persons cannot be said to have met their death at the hands of the Commune, but at the hands of frenzied individuals and mob violence, made mad by the terrible carnage and cold-blooded massacres of many thousands of the Communists, perpetrated | stantial results.

cution of these persons by irresponsible mob violence which is liable to break out, especially under such provocation, and the horrible state of the city at this time cannot begin to be compared with the "official" slaughter of the many thousands of men, wo-men and children shot in cold blood during and after the fall of the Com-

The instructions given to the Versaillese officers to shoot down all "federates" was akin to the slaying of the Irish by Cromwell, or more recently of the British in the Soudan, in which battles all the dervishes wounded have been killed. The wholesale massacres of which the victorious army was guilty blasts them for all time. The abattoirs of Loban and Sartary, together with the heaps of corpses which lined the walls inside the city, tell the tale of tens of thousands who were murdered, helpless, untried and unre-corded. Thousands were killed in battle, thousands were shot in lines against the walls, thousands slaughtered in droves by machine guns, scores were buried alive, the living and the dead, the innocent and the guilty, the aged and the youthful, men, women and children. It is estimated that from 40,000 to 60,000 souls were destroyed in

"Of the charge that women and children fought desperately for the Commune." This is true, and will ever be a monument to their honor. One barricade was defended wholly by women (120), whose efforts and bravery were almost beyond belief. Many of them, when defeated, threw them-selves upon their antagonists, were run through by bayonets, and died crying, "Vive la Commune." The women and boys of the working class were active in the building and defense of street obstructions. Applications were continually made by women who wished to assist in the defense. They showed much more energy and pertinacity than the men. One band of excited women invaded the military headquarters and demanded a mitraileuse, each one wearing some sign of mourning for a father, a husband, a brother or a lover. They harnessed themselves to the big guns and the am-munition wagons and dragged them to their station, and displayed the greatest valor and intrepidity. Such were the women whom dastards dare to calumniate, the women of the Commune.

Your assertion that "the Commune organized incendiary battalions" is not true. On the contrary, they took great precautions to protect the public buildprecautions to protect the public buildings. Huge amounts of sand were piled in the yards to deaden the force of the projectiles. They did not burn or attempt to burn Paris.

One hundred and fifty great guns were pouring shot and shell on Paris. Nothing could live under the terrible fire of Fort Valerien and Montretant, which was the most terrible the world had ever seen. The Arc d' Triomphe had ever seen. The Arc d' Triomphe was struck 27 times in one day. The wonder is, not that part was burned, but that the whole city was not de-In regard to the assertion "that 10,-000 people, innocent and guilty alike perished." This number is but a fraction of the holocaust of victims of the Bonapartist, Royalist and clerical vengeance which surpassed in infam-ous ferocity anything that history re-

Tongue cannot tell nor pen adequately describe the horrible state of the city. The decomposing bodies of thousands of dead threatened a pestilence. The wholesale executions were not limited to musketry fire. The mitrailleuses were turned on the crowds of prisoners.

The splendid struggle of the Comof 1871 was characterized by the Edinburgh Review as the greatest and most determined attempt that hisory has ever seen, to settle the social question by means of arms. Looked at by the poet the tale of those five weeks struggle is a page torn from an epic of the "heroic" age. To the economist it is the most brilliant uprising of the people for a principle the world has ever seen. To the moralist, it is an overwhelming proof of the "divinity of man." To the socialist, it is a dirge and a war cry. men and women and little children, whom Immortality has gathered to her side, were of us, for us, the becursed, kicked wage-slaves of the world, who dared to strike where we dare not raise a finger; dared to die, where we tremble in living. Our masters, finding their backs not bent meekly to the whip, shot them down in their tracks, as wild beasts are shot. content with this, they have lied to us about these heroic martyrs, who have died to set us free. Not content with their robbery living, and their murder, where they dared to resist, they have defamed them, all these years dead. The blood of these men, women and children of the Commune call out to us from the shuddering earth today

Such, Mr. Editor, are my reasons for writing you, and are the same reasons for which I, for one, would join with them in chorus, "Vive la Commune!" A. B. BARTER. London, April 1, 1899.

[NOTE BY ADVERTISER: So far as The Advertiser is concerned, all the space has now been given that we can afford for the glorification of the horrible and bloody tragedy of the Paris "Commune." The danger of such 8,826,866 francs to the credit of the glorification by professional agitators City of Paris, and 1,390,000 francs to is that their effect on half-baked minds is that their effect on half-baked minds has always been to produce that state of ill-balanced frenzy that has so ofing this, the total amount paid out to ten resulted in assassinations of prominent people, like Lincoln, the late Empress of Austria, and others. The by the Commune, and left a balance sane English-speaking idea of political agitation does not glorify murder, assassination, destruction of priceless collections of art, as in the case of the Paris Louvre, nor the inculcation of hatred by class against class. We observe that Mr. Barter assails the conduct of the British forces in the Soudan. No doubt "war is hell," as Gen. Sherman says; and real war will not soon become a matter of pelting opponents with rose-leaves. But wherever the British flag has been pushed there ordered liberty has soon followed, and the condition of the oncebarbarous section has become a thousand times more civilized and prosperous than it was before. Our correspondent reserves all his indignation for Gen. Kitchener and his rescuing army. Let him read Slatin Pasha's book, and he will get some idea of the monstrous, cruel and tyrannical yoke imposed upon unwilling people by the infamous Khalifa, and which yoke it has been the high mission of Great Britain to break. To Mr. Barter it would probably be useless for The Ad-vertiser to say it believes that Providence, in allowing Britain to hold sway in so many parts of the earth, has high and beneficent final ends in view; but nevertheless that is The Advertiser's conviction.1
