Timiskaming—500 at 72½. There was no outstanding feature in the day's operations, trading being moderate scale in every section of the list, and prices, with one or two of the list, and prices, with one or two exceptions, holding comparatively unchanged from the previous session.

About the only noteworthy tendency in the market was the way in which values held their own in the face of what selling was in evidence, realizing being well taken care of by the buying orders in brokers' hands.

The generally active issues augment Standard Stock and Mining Exchange

The generally active issues suffered somewhat from neglect, and this allowed more attention to be paid to the stocks which have been outside of the big trading movement. Great Northern was one of these which came into prominence, these shares being traded foster in on a large scale and recording an advance of nearly two points at $1-2. Great Northern tho this gain was not held in its en-was rumored that the Great Northern, which controls the Cobalt Light, Heat and Power Co., had succeeded in having the latter concern's contract with the Town of Cobalt extended for a number of years.

Comparative firmness was displayed by the general list, with fractionally higher prices in Cobalt Lake and Beaver. Timiskaming, Rochester and Peterson held around yesterday's levels. There was nothing in transactions which were registered to indicate any change in sentiment, and the general opinion among those in close touch with the market favored the idea that the market would do better when the present softness was offset by an improvement in the call for securities.

We have frequently pointed out that in a rising market there will be days when prices seem weak. This is on account of profit-taking and professional selling. At such times as these the astute buyer will make his purchases.

The COBALT MARKET situation is strengthening every day. Our advice, and we want to make it strong, is, DON'T DELAY IN YOUR PURCHASES. PETERSON LAKE, ROCHESTER and BEAVER are the three best buys.
