public at once. It was already admitted that the results of Mr. Hurdman's investigations showed that the average over-run was 1010 per cent. and the highest over-run was 171.9 per cent. But it would seem as if the commission did not propose to make public this information secured by experts on behalf of the province. Their action in this regard was most unfair. The two commissioners had unde no effort to secure this important information before them. In fact, they knew of the tests and did not avail themselves of them when preparing their reports.

"While personally surprised, I concluded that, even in this form, it was the duty of the Liberal party to place no obstacle in the way of an inquiry for which the government took full responsibility, into a matter which we considered so vital; consequently, there would help the government counsel that I did not give. This was not playing politics; very much the reverse. The correspondence or copies of letters which were in the Liberal files, when requestively repudiated by the Hurdman report. They are matters of record. I shall not refer to them now. Every member will remember the ruling last session that these matters, which were before the commission, are sub judice, and could not be discussed in the house. We bowed to that ruling. We have no responsibility for the position in which I have allowed unjust criticism to pass unnoticed or without observation.

"Last December," Mr. Dewart continued, "when Mr. Harding retired as counsel for the government, a studied attempt was made to put a political complexion upon any suggested connection with the 'beginning of the timber inquiry, and the 'mysterious pair who saw has commissioners were elaborately exploited in The Mail and Empire. There was no secrecy about the matter. It was not a matter for any party political capital. When, for the first time, at the end of November, I learned certain facts, I as a matter of duty and honor, laid them promptly before the commissioners. There was no possible personal or political advantage or disadvantage, so far as I was concerned. It was simply what any plain, honest man would do, and I claim no special credit for doing what I did. Nor will I suffer any suggestion that I was actuated by political malice."
