Letters From Our Soldiers

"If Everybody Could Have a Look at Ypres They Would Give up Politics Until This Job is Finished"—Baseball Equipment From Saint John Welcomed

Corporal John K. Campbell, one of over fifty members of St. Stephen's Club, Amherst, to enlist for active service, and who is now with the 1st Canadian Division Signalling Company in France, writes to William Fraser of Amherst of the battle of Ypres and says: "The First Canadian Division performed one of the greatest feats in military history, when they held up the German advance after they had smashed the French lines on our left. It was the use of their weapon, gas, but I hope it will never again be our lot to spend another ten days like we did, especially the first four, after the 'half' opened. It is utterly impossible to describe what it was like. Death and destruction all around. We are all unscathed so far. The Nova Scotia boys were drafted into the different battalions when we were in England, and I lost run of them, but I see by the casualty lists, that they must have been in the thick of it all and numbers of homes must realize what this war is costing."

"I wish everybody at home could have a look at the Ypres battle ground. I think they would give up politics until this job is finished and finished with a vengeance. A day or two before the fight started, I was around to the bridge headquarters and passed through a number of villages. You could not imagine a more peaceful scene. They had been putting a few shells into Ypres early in the day, but not a shot was to be heard in the trenches. The only signs of war to be seen were the troops in reserve around their billets. The crops in the fields were just turning green. Everywhere were people working in their gardens, sitting outside their houses, which are nearly all built close to the road. Here women and girls were weaving lace."

In two days the same roads were veritable armies of dead. Soldiers lay everywhere. Some reinforcements who were some men of the ammunition column, and the ambulances. Not a few were men who had been wounded and were making their way back, only to be caught in the tornado of shells, on all roads. One of the most pitiful sights was the civilians (old men). There are no young men in civilian clothes in this country, women and children who were caught while fleeing to a place of safety. Dead horses fall to attract any notice. Even dogs, pigs and chickens could not be seen. The villages are nothing more than piles of brick and mortar.

Amherst Shells and Boots
"So you are making shells at Robbs? Well, make them good. I would have thought that an Amherst shell would show the Germans any mercy at the end of its trip across the line. If you make them as good as the Amherst boots issued to me at Valcartier, and they only wore out after I left England and a couple of months at the front. I wish I had a chance to get another pair. The Imperial boots are too heavy for comfort."

"The Signalling Company was the recipient of some base ball paraphernalia from St. John, N.B. It is appreciated you may depend. It is no trouble to get footballs over here, but baseball goods must come across the ocean. I am still with the Signalling Service, working with the quartermaster. We have to do with the providing of all electric goods from a telephone cell to a cable wagon."

Well Entertained
Writing to his mother in Woodstock from Northumberland War Hospital, Newcastle Upon Tyne, Gosforth, July 31, Sands Gillespie says: "This is Saturday and we are having a theatre party to entertain us today at 2.30. We were out to the place last night; they were jolly fine, believe me. I shall in all probability be here some time yet, as the new boys have just started to grow and it will be six weeks before it comes good so I can leave here, and I have been here two months the day before yesterday. I am going out next Wednesday to the home of a Canadian girl named Mrs. George Rolston, who was reported in the casualty list as being injured from gas shock, is back on the firing line, as the following letter to his mother, Mrs. William Rolston, Northampton, N. B., will show."

On Firing Line Again

EARL AND COUNTESS OF ABERDEEN TO VISIT BOSTON IN OCTOBER
Boston, Aug. 18.—Boston is to have a visit from the Earl and Marchioness of Aberdeen early in October, when they are to be the guests of honor at a banquet of notable Boston people. A committee of which Joseph A. Denison is chairman, will meet them in New York, and Mrs. William Howard Taft will have the entertainment of the marchioness in charge.

John Nolen, the landscape architect, a personal friend of the victors, has charge of the lectures which they are to give in behalf of the Irish industries.
As governor-general of Canada, the Earl of Aberdeen met many Americans personally. And as lord lieutenant of Ireland, he won the esteem of thousands of Americans of Irish descent.

The marchioness has also been extremely active. She is president of the International Council of Women, president of the Irish Industries Association, and of the Women's National Health Association of Ireland.

She founded the Victorian Order of Nurses in Canada, received the degree LL.D. from Queen's University, Toronto; she is the author of "The Irish in Canada with a Kodak," has edited "The International Congress of Women," and the three volumes of "Ireland's Crusade Against Tuberculosis."

A WONDERFUL RECORD
To the Editor of the Times-Star:
Sir:—The following is from The White Ribbon Tiding:
"Although Russia is at war it seems in many respects to be enjoying a new lease of life. The treasures of the savings banks are being hoarded. During the eight months ending April 1, 1914, the increase in the savings amounted to only $3,820,000. Then the war came on with its unprecedented expenses but prohibition is the order of the day in all Russia, and during the eight months from October 1, 1914, to April 1, 1915, the increase in the savings banks has amounted to $100,000,000 or forty times as much as before prohibition."
"The effect on the health of the nation has been just as marvellous. The falling off in diseases, especially those caused by alcohol or those to which alcohol contributes has fallen off twenty per cent."
