School Doors Thrown Wide For Exit of 8,400 Pupils on Holidays

Red Letter Day This for the Boys and Girls Exercises in the Various Buildings Attended Well by Relatives and Friends and Marked by Pleading Programmes—Vacation Over on August 30.

Today is a red letter day for the young people whose names appear on the registers of the schools of the city. Once more the school year has gone around and at noon 8,400 boys and girls poured out of the institutions of learning with the one thought uppermost in their minds that until August 30 there would be no more Latin, no more French, no more sitting on the hardwood bench.

Those of the population of the city who saw the youngsters' happy faces today could not but travel back in retrospect to the times when "the last day" was one long looked forward to and which, when it arrived, was met with just such scenes as those which were enacted today.

On the uniform of the grades of class XI and XII were seated, in addition to Wesley J. S. Myles, principal, Dr. H. B. Brudenell, superintendent of schools, Professor William Ganong, professor of botany at St. John's College, Northampton, Mass., and other distinguished guests.

Some pleasing and novel features marked the graduation exercises of the St. Vincent's High School, which were carried out in the assembly hall of the Y. M. C. I. building in Cliff street.

The closing exercises in Aberdeen school today for the most part took the form of an oral review of the work and was carried on in the individual rooms, as there is no assembly hall. At other closing entertainments the children have been assembled in the corridors where a programme of recitations and music was carried out, but it was de-

As Hiram Sees It

"Hiram," said the Times reporter, "do you remember how you used to feel the day school closed for the summer holidays?"

"My feeling," said Hiram, "depends on a good deal on whether I had to get up an early—or set an' make less of the feller that did. An' I g'ually had on good clothes that made it feel like Sunday."

"Ah!" said the reporter, "but when you looked out of the window and saw the grasses nodding at you, and the little birds skimming over the branches of the alders beckoning you, and the little fish swimming in the pond with that air of perfect freedom—would you think of the river flowing 'be-little'—and a few solemn speeches by the trustees?"

"It was," said Hiram, "I'd just like to see that little school-house with long sloping desks and the wall an' a long bench to set on—with your feet on the wall. One feller had awful big feet, an' it was with six slaps to see him try to get 'em over the bench when he got up to the school."

"And the solemn boy who recited," said the reporter—"Do you remember how you felt when you had him in your school?"

"That was—the school—Hes—per—us—" "And the skip—per had ta—ken his half mile." "To be—him—con—pan—ee."
