English Court in Mourning For Japanese Emperor - A New Departure - Royal Garden Party a Fizzle - Thousands of Regrets

King George's action in ordering three weeks court mourning for the late Emperor of Japan, constitutes an entirely new departure for the reigning houses of Europe, and as such is likely to be much appreciated by the successor and the subjects of the dead Mikado.

When the successful issue of her war with Russia gave Japan a place among the great powers, and her alliance with Great Britain secured an altogether new importance in 1905, I expressed in these letters the opinion that England and the other countries of Europe would find it not impolitic but impossible to continue to slight the Japanese Empire in the matter of court mourning and the preceding seven years ago has now been made good by King George.

It must be remembered that when King George orders court mourning, the command becomes statutory. There are not merely official regulations, but the dignity of the crown, which falls to obey this compulsory behest.

The extent to which this royal mourning is carried at continental courts, especially at those of the petty sovereign states of Germany, is extraordinary. Thus when some time ago the foolish old Prince Maurice of Saxe-Altenburg died, the official gazette of the sovereign Grand-Duchy of Saxe-Meininger, in decreeing court mourning for him, expressly insisted that black underclothes should be included in the trappings of woe.

No surprise need be felt at the information which comes from England, both in the press and by private letters, to the effect that both King George and Queen Mary were extremely annoyed by the fact of many members of the court circle, and of the English great world, to appear at the monster garden party in the grounds of Windsor Castle a fortnight ago - an entertainment for which some ten thousand invitations had been issued.

The fact of the matter is, a "command" to a royal garden party such as that at Windsor has ceased to be regarded as a distinction. Of the 10,000 invitations issued, one-half at least were addressed to persons who have never been officially presented at court; some of them, indeed, being barred from court by reason of their professional occupation, such as actors and actresses, and ladies of birth who have resorted to shop-keeping, dress-making, etc., as a means of livelihood.

Some were Labor members of parliament of the most radical description, who had never worn evening dress, a frock coat, or a silk hat, and who appeared at the garden party in sack-suits of tweed and serge, soft shirts and soft hats. The guests included the grotesquely dressed Marquis of Townshend, who has

Young-Man-Proud-of-His-Wife

By RUTH CAMERON

A YOUNG man who had just been married went into a big newspaper office in a city near his home town and asked the editor to announce the portentous fact of his nuptials in the paper. His face was shining with pride and happiness, and after he had given the editor the item he wanted printed, he went out into the anteroom, brought his wife into the editorial sanctum and announced with infinite pride and delight to the editor and two or three reporters who were standing by, "This is the wife, I thought perhaps you'd like to meet her."

Of course, the newspaper men were vastly amused at the naive pride of the young bridegroom. They joked about him and mimicked him on the evening, and one of the would-be wits wrote a would-be funny story about the incident, which appeared in the paper the next morning.

In this story the enthusiastic groom was called Young-man-proud-of-his-wife. It was meant as a term of derision. To me it seems like a beautiful title. I have often wondered if the young bride saw the story and if she were ashamed. I sincerely hope not, for I think she had far more reason to be pleased and touched.

There is a young man in our neighborhood who is sometimes ridiculed because he is so proud of his wife that he is always stinging her praises and making opportunities to introduce her to all his acquaintances. They say even the wife herself is sometimes embarrassed by his open admiration.

It seems to me that this pride which a young wife or husband or a lover feels is one of the most beautiful things in the world, instead of the most amusing. I like nothing better than to find a man or woman who feels that way.

By your member how Corps of Sentimental Tommy fame is so stated when Gavina finally says she will have him that he visits all the neighbors for miles around, crying at each door, "I just cried in to tell you that Gavina says she will have me." Gavina was at first very much ashamed when she heard of this, but wiser Grizel thought it was "just sweet."

So do I. There are many people who consider the pride and devotion of lovers and young married folks something vastly amusing. Poor people! How unlucky they are not to be able to recognize beauty when they are fortunate enough to see it!

MAY ROBSON'S NEW COMEDY

A Night Out is the name of May Robson's new comedy of complications and humor in which she will appear at the Opera House tonight and continue her engagement for the entire week. A Night Out is the kind of a play that the theatre-goers call uproariously funny. The dialogue and situations are equal to the farcical element in the Rejuvenation of Aunt Mary, a comedy made famous by the superb ability of May Robson, whose distinguished success was won by her creation of original character roles. She stands alone among the pretty women of the stage who make their features with grace and poise, and gray hair is quite common to her recognition by her art in the impersonation of character studies.

COLONEL'S DAUGHTER ASSAULTED THE FIELD MARSHAL

Peculiar Case Arising From Regulation Forbidding Austrian Officers to Marry Without Sufficient Dower

Vienna, Aug. 5.—Fraulein Hirtl, the daughter of a colonel in the Austrian army, has been put on trial for assaulting her father's superior officer, Lieutenant Field Marshal von Borovetz, the commander of an army corps. The field-marshal, of high social position, is a widower and has a young daughter, who is a penniless girl, and, apparently, in the hope that the regulation might be some day relaxed, the pair joined their lives without any religious ceremony. The union was a happy one, three children were born, and when Hirtl recently attained the rank of a colonel, when no dowry but only a formal permission to marry his faithful companion, as this would, under the Austrian law also make her a penniless girl, she had the courage to refuse this permission, told Colonel Hirtl that he had sent in his resignation, and she had married the field-marshal.

Daily Hints For the Cook

OLIVE AND WALNUT SANDWICHES. Put English butter through the meat chopper using a rather coarse blade. Drain thoroughly and chop an equal bulk of olives stuffed with gherkins, and a chopping knife and bowl, as the meat chopper squeezes these too dry. Mix and add enough mayonnaise dressing to make a soft paste. Spread between white or entire wheat bread.

POP WINTERS' WIT

Col. Finesart—"If I were all the medals I own I couldn't see my shirt front." "O' Pop Winters—Then, colonel, you oughter put them medals on towards the back of the neck."

THE HAIR OF YOUR YOUTH

"Rich, glossy, luxuriant fascinating hair of youth you do not keep it so—continue to have it—plenty of soft youthful-looking hair, to dress in the many styles most becoming to you—that keep you looking young, attractive—that please you and your admirers too. Don't let the grey hairs in—they'll make you look old—lose your charm and freshness. Besides others notice them at once and comment on their youth."

TRAFFIC IN GIRLS NO BREACH OF LAW IN INDIA

Maybe Sold Legally as Dancing Girls or Concubines if Over Twelve Years—Seeking a Remedy

Calcutta, Aug. 5.—The "Times of India" gives a good deal of space to a case which came before the Bombay High Court. A woman was convicted of cheating in respect of a certain sum of money which she had received in advance as part of the hire agreed upon for letting her daughter for dancing to a person named the late purpose of the arrangement being concubinage. The high court upheld the view of the sessions judge and set aside the conviction and sentence.
