How Queens and Princesses Propose.

when a reigning queen contemplates matrimony, the future consort is relieved of the burden of taking the initiative through the fact that in this case the lady must broach the subject first. The same rule, remarks The Western Scot, "holds good with regard to all royal ladies who marry commoners." As instances of such royal proposals, this paper notes the following:

Queen Victoria has told how she managed to "put the question" to Prince Albert-how she first showed him Windsor and its beauties and the distant landmeape, and then said: "All this may be yours " The Queen of Holland, on a like occasion, simply sent a sprig of white heather, begging Prince Henry to look out its meaning in a book of flowers and their meanings. The Duchess of Argyll took the following means of proposing to the Marquis of Lorne : She was about to attend a state ball, and gave it out that she would choose as her partner for the first dance the man she intended to She selected the Marquis, who subsequently became her husband.

But perhaps the most interesting of all ways chosen was that of the Duchess of Pide. She took the Earl, as he then was to a drawer and showed him its contents. There he saw a number of traffer he had given her at different times, makeding sprins of several kinds of flowers new dead, he picked for her at different times. He was much impressed at the right nor did it require words on her at the make her meaning plain.

The Old Lover.

Been her husband forty years.
Didn't think I'd mind at all,
When she went away to Mary,
Just to see the baby small.
Knew, of course, that I would miss her,
Never thought that I would be
Just a hungerin' to see her,
Wishin' she'd come back to me.

Tain't because I'm old an' foolish That I'm achin' in this way; Just can't get along without her, Yearnin' for her every day. Things don't go the way they used to, Nancy's gone an' life's a sham; I'm just aching now to see her, Lonely? Well, I guess I am. Want to put my arms about her, Want to smooth her silvered hair, In my throat a lump's arisin' When I see her empty chair. This old house, so still and solemn. Isn't what it used to be: This old heart of mine's not, either, Nancy's gone away from me.

Gone to see our daughter Mary
An' her baby. When she went
Said she'd come back just the minute
That I wanted her, and sent
For her; Nancy, I'm a writing.
Come back right away, oh, do;
For the old man's, oh, so lonely.
An' he's yearnin' just for you.

The Kneeling Deer.

A traveller through Canadian woods Was hurrying benighted; 'Twas nearly midnight; and the moon His lonely pathway lighted.

When suddenly a shadow passed,
Along the footpath gliding;
He paused and 'neath a low-hung bough
Beheld an Indian hiding.

'Hush!'' And he held his finger up, While through the umbrage stealing. ''Tis Christmas eve! Me watch to-night To see the wild deer kneeling.''

The air was still; yet overhead
The pines were softly singing;
While glowed the moon, upon the snow
Their silent shadows flinging.

Ah! we may say the legend old
Was but an idle notion;
A Cornish peasant's fancy wild,
Transplanted o'er the ocean;

Yet on the first bright Christmas-eve, Around the lowly manger, The soft-eyed brutes with angels gazed Upon the heavenly stranger.

We cannot know how far and deep Their mystic instinct reacheth; Nor what mute sense of Right and Love These poor dumb children teacheth.

But Love that can redeem and save, For evil, good returning, Can hold all creatures to its heart, The humblest never spurning.

Honor the voice that dares to speak,
The cruel jest unheeding,
For those who cannot speak themselves,
A word of friendly pleading.

When You Are Old.

When you are old and gray and full of sleep,

And nodding by the fire, take down
this book,
And slowly read, and dream of the soft look

Your eyes had once, and of their shadows deep;

'How many loved your moments of glad grace, And loved your beauty, with love false or true!

But one man loved the pilgrim soul

And loved the sorrows of your changing face.

"And bending down beside the glowing bars

bars
Murmur, a little sadly, how love fled
And paced upon the mountains overhead.

And hid his face among a crowd of
