

missing than in the general action. Among the number was Colonel Carleton who was wounded, and carried off before the enemy began to charge.

Our total loss was 9 officers killed and 55 wounded; 49 non-commissioned officers and men killed and 542 wounded. The enemy's loss was more considerable. The Marquis of Montcalm was mortally wounded, and Brigadier-General Senezergues with about 200 officers and men lay dead upon the field.

We took 13 officers and 350 men prisoners: the number of their wounded we could not exactly find out, but from what we could learn they must have been above 1,000 or 1,200 men.

The command now devolved upon Brigadier-General Townshend, who by mistake, was said to have been wounded instead of Colonel Carleton.

Soon after the action a party of the enemy attempted to take the battery at Samope, but were repulsed with some loss.

Between twelve and one o'clock a considerable body of the enemy appeared upon the St Foy Road, in rear of our left, which we soon learned to be M. Bougainville's command, whom we left in the morning at Cape Rouge. Upon finding that the main point was already decided, and seeing some of our battalions in motion, and our artillery advancing towards him he withdrew.
